One Big Beautiful Bill Included Large Tax Cuts For Corporations Which Allowed Amazon And Meta To Pay Less Than 5% In Federal Corporate Income Tax

One Big Beautiful Bill Included Large Tax Cuts For Corporations Which Allowed Amazon And Meta To Pay Less Than 5% In Federal Corporate Income Tax. "OBBBA included large tax cuts for corporations, and the administration has added on to the benefits of these tax cuts with legally doubtful regulatory changes. Many of the corporate income tax cuts in OBBBA are retroactive, reducing companies' 2025 tax bills and resulting in more and more corporations disclosing that they had very low income tax liability, or none at all, for the year. For example, Amazon paid just 1.4 percent of its $89 billion in U.S. profits in federal corporate income tax while Meta paid 3.6 percent on $2.8 billion in profits and Tesla and Palantir paid nothing on their combined $7.2 billion. Table 3 shows a list of prominent companies that have, as of April 1, made their annual disclosures." [ITEP, 4/6/26]

The One Big Beautiful Bill Made The Largest Cuts Ever To Safety Net Programs To Fund Tax Breaks For The Ultrawealthy And Corporations. "President Trump's 'One Big Beautiful Bill Act' (OBBBA) made the largest-ever cuts to social safety net programs in U.S. history to fund tax cuts for the ultrawealthy and corporations. The OBBBA extends, expands, or implements more than $4.5 trillion in tax breaks — mostly for billionaires — while making more than $1 trillion in cuts to programs that many rely on for health care, adequate nutrition, and student loans." In a 219-to-211 vote, six Republicans joined nearly all Democrats in backing the resolution sponsored by Representative Gregory W. Meeks of New York, the top Democrat on the Foreign Affairs Committee. While the Senate has moved to cancel the president's tariffs in recent months, the vote was the House's first opportunity to formally register a position on Mr. Trump's trade policy since he returned to the White House and began deploying tariffs as an economic strategy." [New York Times, 2/11/26]

The rule would allow for up to one hour of debate on each measure. It would consider as adopted a substitute amendment to HR 2189 appending the text of the Innovate Less Lethal to De-Escalate Tax Modernization Act (HR 4242), as reported by the Ways and Means Committee. It also would block the expedited consideration of joint resolutions terminating President Donald Trump's 2025 tariff actions under the Feb. 1, April 2, July 30, and Aug. 6 executive orders by providing that each day during the period from Feb. 10, 2026 through July 31, 2026, will not constitute a calendar day under the federal law pertaining to terminating national emergencies." - The House Rejected A Republican Effort To Delay, For Months, Any Vote On Cancelling President Trump's Tariffs. "The House on Tuesday rejected a Republican effort to change the chamber's rules and delay for months any vote on canceling President Trump's tariffs, as G.O.P. defectors rebuked party leaders who have tried for a year to avoid weighing in on levies that are unpopular with many voters." [New York Times, 2/10/26]

According to the Congressional Record, Rep. Neguse said, "Mr. Speaker, if we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to strike section 4, which would stop an attempt by Republican leadership to block the House from taking up-or-down votes on President Trump's disastrous tariff policies through the end of July." A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the bill. The motion was agreed to by a vote of 216-214. [H. Res. 1042, Vote #59, 2/10/26; CQ, 2/10/26; Congressional Record, 2/10/26]

September 2025: McGuire Voted To Block Congress From Challenging Trump's Tariffs Through March 2026

September 2025: McGuire Voted For H Res 707, Which Extended Trump's Tariff Authority Through March 2026. On 9/16/25, McGuire voted for H Res 707, which passed by a vote of 213-211. According to a "vote note" from U.S. Rep. McClintock: "H Res 707 goes beyond the prerogative of the majority to decide what bills are taken to the floor. This resolution amends existing law to extend the authority of the President to impose tariffs until March 30. That makes this a substantive question of policy and the responsibility of individual members to pass judgment. Under the Constitution, the power to impose tariffs is a congressional power and needs to be restored to Congress." [Congress.gov, H Res 707, Vote #268, 9/16/25; U.S. Rep Tom McClintock, 9/16/25]

A measure that effectively blocks challenges to Trump's sweeping global tariff declarations through March 2026 was adopted on a 213-211 vote. The vote was gaveled down only after GOP whips had a drawn-out struggle on the floor with a band of Republicans who initially opposed the legislation before flipping to yes. The vote was held open for more than a half-hour as they worked to bring the members back on board." [Politico, 9/16/25]

McGovern said, "Mr. Speaker, I am going to urge that we defeat the previous question. I will offer an amendment. My amendment will simply strike section 2 of the rule. That section, tucked in the rule by Republicans this morning, prevents the House from voting on Trump's disastrous worldwide tariffs, the ones destroying the economy and raising prices on regular Americans." The rule would also block expedited consideration of joint resolutions to terminate national emergencies declared by President Donald Trump on Feb. 1, 2025, by specifying that each day for the remainder of the first session of the 119th Congress will not be considered a calendar day under the National Emergencies Act." Trump's Tariffs Were The Largest Tax Increase In American History And Raised Prices On Groceries

Center For Economic And Policy Research: Trump's Tariffs Were The Largest Tax Increase In The Country's History. "Donald Trump is putting in place the largest tax increase in the country's history with his big import taxes (tariffs). We won't know the full size of Trump's taxes until after Liberation Day III (August 1), and probably not even then, but we already know that they are huge. This is evident from the tariff revenue the government is collecting. In June the government collected $26.6 billion in tariff revenue. That is up from around $6 billion a month in 2024 before Trump's tax hikes. The difference of $20 billion comes to $240 billion on an annual basis. Summed over a decade, as we do with other measures, this comes to $2.4 trillion. This would be a substantial tax hike in itself, roughly $1,900 per household, but we know that the figure is almost certain to go much higher. Trump is threatening taxes of an additional 10 to 30 percent on imports from our major trading partners, such as Mexico, Canada, the European Union, and Japan. The tax take could easily end up being twice its current level, making Trump's tariff frenzy by far the largest tax increase in US history." [Center For Economic and Policy Research, 7/17/25]

Trump's Tariffs Contributed To Prices Rising For Groceries. "President Donald Trump pledged to bring down grocery costs. But his administration's policies are contributing to an acceleration in prices, food economists and companies say. Grocery prices last month rose at their fastest pace in three years, stoked by Trump's tariffs, a crackdown on immigration, and extreme weather hurting food production. Prices jumped 0.6% in August from the month prior, according to the latest reading from the Bureau of Labor Statistics, and they are up 2.7% from a year ago. Food prices are deeply personal to consumers, and weekly grocery bills shape their overall perceptions of the economy. More than half of Americans count grocery costs as a major stress in their lives. Low-income and middle-income Americans, hit the hardest by rising grocery costs, are changing where they shop and what they buy. Companies are also taking extreme measures to appeal to shoppers strained by higher prices, such as bringing back paper coupons." [CNN, 9/20/25]

The Iran War Fueled An Extra $1.8 Billion That Virginians Spent On Gas

Virginians Spent An Extra $1.8 Billion On Gas Since The Start Of The Iran War. "Two recent reports show how the Iran war is driving up the cost of living in Virginia. Virginians have spent an extra $1.8 billion on gasoline since the start of the Iran war on Feb. 28, according to a report from the Congressional Joint Economic Committee. That breaks down to an extra $573 per household. The average price for a gallon of gas in Virginia was $3.97 on Tuesday, up from $2.99 a year ago, according to AAA." [Dogwood, 7/28/26]

The Iran War Caused The Price Of Crude Oil To Surge Which Increased Utility Bills

Crude Oil Prices Surged Since The Start Of The Iran War. "Oil markets have lurched from panic to relief and back again since the outbreak of war in the Middle East, with markets bracing for further volatility. Prices surged more than 55% since the start of the war, with Brent crude jumping from around $72 a barrel on February 27 to nearly $120 at its peak, as fears mounted over supply disruptions through the Strait of Hormuz. Brent crude jumped 51% in March, one of the largest one-month oil price surges on record." [CNBC, 4/21/26]

If Global Crude Oil Prices Rise, The Cost For Heating A Home Would Also Increase. "Understanding why prices change helps homeowners stay ahead of their energy costs. Below are the key factors that influence heating oil pricing and shape what you pay each season. 1. Global crude oil prices This is the foundation of all fuel pricing. Heating oil is refined from crude oil. When global crude prices rise due to supply shortages, geopolitical instability, or production cuts, heating oil follows. When crude prices fall, heating oil prices typically ease as well—though not always at the same speed. Why it matters to homeowners: your local price per gallon is tied to international markets, even if you're heating a building in Brooklyn or a home in Westchester." [Energo, accessed 8/26/26]

American Households Were Expected To Pay Higher Prices For Utilities Because Of The Higher Prices Of Oil And Gas Due To The War. "Many parts of the U.S. economy are still dependent on fossil fuels, and higher prices for oil and gas increase the prices for gasoline, electricity, fertilizer, food, and more. As long as this war continues—and perhaps for some time thereafter—American households will pay higher prices at the pump, on their utility bills, and on their grocery bills." [Center for American Progress, 3/11/26]

"Today, the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) announced a OneGov initiative with Meta that supports government-wide use of Llama, its open source AI models, making them more accessible to all federal departments and agencies. The streamlined OneGov approach eliminates individual agency negotiations, saving time and reducing duplicated efforts across the federal government. This landmark arrangement will accelerate federal agency access to open source AI models and tools from Meta, bolstering the objectives outlined in America's AI Action Plan and supporting OMB Memoranda M-25-21 (Accelerating Federal Use of AI through Innovation, Governance, and Public Trust) and M-25-22 (Driving Efficient Acquisition of Artificial Intelligence in Government). 'In alignment with President Trump's AI Action Plan, GSA is dedicated to integrating AI into government operations,' said Federal Acquisition Service Commissioner Josh Gruenbaum. 'Thanks to Meta and its commitment to advancing public sector services, our federal partners now have easier access to Llama and open source AI, which offers unique benefits for federal agencies and government use cases. Through these OneGov initiatives, GSA is driving an unprecedented acceleration of AI adoption across the federal government.' As open source models, Llama models offer federal agencies the ability to retain full control over data processing and storage. Given the models are publicly available, technical teams can build, deploy, and scale AI applications at a lower cost, delivering significant value to American taxpayers. 'America is leading on AI and we want to make sure all Americans see the benefit of AI innovation through better, more efficient public services. With Llama, America's government agencies can better serve people,' added Mark Zuckerberg, Founder and CEO of Meta. This OneGov arrangement is unique given Meta makes its Llama models freely available. GSA focused its expertise on backend work, verifying that Llama meets federal requirements and provides consistent, streamlined access across government. By working together with Meta to ensure federal agencies can access Llama in accordance with the government's needs and legal requirements, this collaboration strengthens the federal government's ability to test, adapt, and deploy AI while maintaining full control over sensitive data. Open models like Llama give agencies the flexibility to build mission-specific solutions, reduce reliance on closed providers, and foster transparency and reproducibility in AI research." Dominion Energy Was A Utility Corporation That Was Regulated As A Monopoly By The Virginia State Corporation Commission

Dominion Energy Was A Utility Corporation That Was Regulated As A Monopoly By The Virginia State Corporation Commission. "Dominion Energy is a utility corporation that provides power to two-thirds of Virginians. The Dominion name and logo are inescapable: on monthly bills, utility trucks, and regional offices; on the glass headquarters that towers over Richmond and the nearby Dominion Energy Center for performing arts; at the Charity Classic golf tournament and all the other sports events and philanthropies that the utility sponsors. Dominion is regulated as a monopoly by the State Corporation Commission, or SCC, whose task is to set fair rates for the customer and a fair return for the utility. Dominion also provides more than $1 million a year in campaign gifts to Virginia politicians (the state places no limits on political contributions), including members of the general assembly, who pass the legislation that determines how the company is regulated. The main authors of these bills are Dominion's lawyers and lobbyists." [The Atlantic, 6/13/23]

McGuire Voted For The One Big Beautiful Bill That Raised Virginians' Costs On Health Care And Utilities

July 2025: McGuire Voted For H.R. 1, The One Big Beautiful Bill Act

July 2025: McGuire Voted For H.R. 1, The One Big Beautiful Bill Act. In July 2025, McGuire voted for: "Motion to concur in the Senate amendment to the bill that would permanently extend nearly $4 trillion in expiring individual and business tax cuts, create several new tax breaks and fund border and immigration enforcement and air traffic control upgrades. It would cut Medicaid and other safety net programs to partly offset the cost. Among other provisions, it would raise the statutory debt ceiling by $5 trillion and appropriate more than $448 billion in mandatory funding for Trump administration priorities and other needs, including $153 billion for defense, $89 billion for immigration enforcement, and $89.5 billion for border control and security. It also would increase the state and local tax deduction cap to $40,000 annually for five years for households making up to $500,000 a year until 2030, when it would permanently revert to $10,000." The motion was agreed to by a vote of 218-214. [HR 1, Vote #190, 7/3/25; CQ, 7/3/25]

The One Big Beautiful Bill Made The Largest Cuts To Medicaid In History And Raised Health Insurance Premiums For Hundreds Of Thousands Of Virginians

The Hill: The Republican Tax And Spending Bill Contained The Largest Cuts To Medicaid Since The Program Began. "Senate Republicans on Tuesday passed the largest cuts to Medicaid since the program began in the 1960s, a move that would erode the social safety net and cause a spike in the number of uninsured Americans over the next decade. The tax and spending bill is projected to cost more than $3 trillion during that time, but it would be partially paid for with about $1 trillion in cuts to Medicaid. Almost 12 million lower-income Americans would lose their health insurance by 2034, according to the Congressional Budget Office (CBO). It still needs to pass the House again, where some moderate Republicans have expressed concerns about the cuts." [The Hill, 7/1/25]

- NPR: Trump Dubbed His Tax And Policy Bill The "One Big Beautiful Bill." "President Trump muscled a 900-page package through a closely divided Congress — and that might have been the easy part. The tax and policy bill, which Trump dubbed the 'One Big Beautiful Bill,' encompasses much of his second-term agenda." [NPR, 7/11/25]

About 350,000 Virginians Were Expected To Be Without Health Care Due To Trump's Budget Law That Didn't Extend Expiring Health Insurance Premium Tax Credits. "The combination of cuts to Medicaid and other federal health care programs in President Donald Trump's recent budget law and the failure of Congress to renew expiring health insurance premium tax credits is expected to leave about 350,000 Virginians without health care coverage over the next decade, according to a new KFF analysis. The report, published on Aug. 20, assessed data from the Congressional Budget Office, which predicted the Medicaid and other cuts in the budget reconciliation law passed by the Republican-led Congress and signed on July 4 by Trump would leave 7.5 million more Americans without health insurance by 2034. The CBO also predicted that millions of additional people will lose coverage because Congress has not renewed enhanced tax credits to offset the price of premiums for Affordable Care Act marketplace health insurance plans, which expire at the end of 2025." [Virginia Independent, 8/25/25]

- More Than 400,000 Virginia Were Expected To See Higher Health Insurance Costs. "KFF predicted that, due to a $1 trillion cut to Medicaid and other federal health care programs over the next decade, as well as other provisions of Trump's budget law, Virginia would see an increase in its uninsured population of about 310,000 individuals. […] Unless Congress acts by the end of the year, an estimated 411,000 Virginians will see higher health insurance costs, with the amount they pay in premiums expected to rise by more than 20% for those who purchase their insurance through the ACA marketplace due to rising costs and fewer subsidies." [Virginia Independent, 8/25/25]

Energy Prices Were Expected To Increase By 5% In Virginia Because Of The Big Beautiful Bill

CNN Headline: "See How Your Energy Prices Will Change Because Of The GOP Tax Bill." [CNN, 7/4/25]

Energy Prices Were Expected To Rise Over The Next Decade Due To The Big Beautiful Bill Which Ended Tax Credits That Lowered The Cost To Build Wind And Solar. "Household energy bills will be higher over the next decade now that Republicans have passed their tax and spending bill, according to a new analysis. President Donald Trump and Republicans are phasing out tax credits that lower the cost to build wind and solar, which are now largely cheaper than fossil fuels like natural gas and coal. More wind and solar on the electric grid helps keep utility bills lower, and Biden-era tax credits would have ramped up those projects." [CNN, 7/4/25]

Virginia Could Face A 5% Energy Cost Hike Due To The Big Beautiful Bill. "Trump's tax and spending bill could add hundreds of dollars onto yearly household energy costs for Americans across the country, according to a new analysis from think tank Energy Innovation. People in states including Kentucky, Missouri, South Carolina and Oklahoma could see up to 14% higher energy costs by 2035 now the bill has passed, compared with a scenario where the bill had not passed." Virginians Were Projected To Pay $256 More Per Year Since The Big Beautiful Bill Was Passed. "Average household energy costs in Virginia are projected to hit $5,399 annually by 2035 now the bill has passed – $256 more per year than if the bill had not passed." [CNN, 7/4/25]

John McGuire Message Backup #3

While data centers and the Valley Link Transmission line are being forced on our communities, Congressman McGuire has taken thousands of dollars from a giant monopoly utility company PAC and corporations that stand to profit from these corporate power grabs.

While Data Centers And The Valley Link Transmission Line Are Being Forced On Our Communities,

Virginia Was The Nation's Digital Capital And Had The Most Data Centers In The Country

Virginia Had The Largest Data Center Market In The World. "Virginia hosts the largest data center market in the world and is home to 35% (almost 150) of all known hyperscale data centers worldwide. Data centers operating in Virginia benefit from densely packed fiber backbones, as well as an advantageous cost environment centered on a competitive tax rate, affordable and abundant electricity (with rapidly expanding renewable power options), and competitive construction costs." [Virginia Economic Development Partnership, accessed 8/31/26]

Virginia Was The Nation's Digital Capital Due To The Abundance Of Data Centers. "Demand for internet access and electronic storage has grown alongside digital technology itself. At the center of that growth are the energy infrastructure and data centers that governments and companies began developing in Northern Virginia in the late 20th century. Today, the region houses the world's largest concentration of data centers, making Virginia the nation's digital capital." [Virginia Mercury, 7/6/26]

A Virginia State Commission Approved The Plan For The Valley Link Transmission Project Despite Pushback From Virginians

Various Groups Of Virginians Fought And Urged Against The Valley Link Transmission Project

May 2026: Historic Preservation And Environmental Groups Cautioned Against The Potential Impacts Of The Proposed High-Powered Valley Link Transmission Line. "Ten historic preservation and environmental groups are cautioning against the potential impacts of the proposed high-powered Valley Link transmission line that will span 115-miles across Virginia, casting it as a danger to the state's natural resources. The high-voltage line that will stretch from just outside Lynchburg to Culpeper County would be the largest transmission project in Dominion Energy's territory." [Virginia Mercury, 5/20/26]

May 2026: People From Nine Different Virginia Counties Urged The Shutdown Of Dominion Energy's Valley Link Transmission Line Project. "The Culpeper County Board of Supervisors hosted Dominion Energy for a presentation on the Valley Link high-voltage transmission line project that would impact nine counties. The project would impact thousands of homeowners, farmland, and rural landscape. People from nine different counties attended the meeting to ask the Culpeper Board of Supervisors to shut down Dominion Energy's plan by voting against permitting and zoning requirements to build a massive substation in Richardsville. The crowd of Virginia residents overflowed into the lobby and into the parking lot. There was not enough seating inside, so some people stood outside and watched the meeting on their phones." [ABC 7, 5/20/26]

April 2026: Several Virginia Counties Coordinated To Push Back Against The Transmission Line Project. "A controversial proposal to run high-voltage power lines through parts of Central Virginia is drawing growing opposition from local leaders. Several counties are coordinating efforts to push back against the plan in a unified summit. The Joshua Falls to Yeat Transmission Line Project is a $1 billion proposal that looks to strengthen the electricity infrastructure. It would span 115 miles through nine counties, including Louisa, Orange, Culpeper, Spotsylvania, Goochland, Fluvanna, Buckingham, Appomattox and Campbell County. According to Valley Link, the project is designed to support Virginia's increasing energy demand and is in partnership with Dominion Energy and Transource." [ABC 8 News, 4/2/26]

July 2026: The Virginia State Corporation Commission Approved The Plan For The Transmission Line

July 2026: The Virginia State Corporation Commission Approved The Plan For The Transmission Line. "For 20 years, Vicky Hu has called her Ashburn neighborhood home. She raised her family here. She planned to retire here. That plan is now in jeopardy after the Virginia State Corporation Commission approved a route this week for new high-voltage transmission lines that will run directly through her backyard — clearing the final regulatory hurdle for Dominion Energy to begin construction." Dominion Energy Was A Utility Corporation That Was Regulated As A Monopoly By The Virginia State Corporation Commission

Dominion Energy Was A Utility Corporation That Was Regulated As A Monopoly By The Virginia State Corporation Commission. "Dominion Energy is a utility corporation that provides power to two-thirds of Virginians. The Dominion name and logo are inescapable: on monthly bills, utility trucks, and regional offices; on the glass headquarters that towers over Richmond and the nearby Dominion Energy Center for performing arts; at the Charity Classic golf tournament and all the other sports events and philanthropies that the utility sponsors. Dominion is regulated as a monopoly by the State Corporation Commission, or SCC, whose task is to set fair rates for the customer and a fair return for the utility. Dominion also provides more than $1 million a year in campaign gifts to Virginia politicians (the state places no limits on political contributions), including members of the general assembly, who pass the legislation that determines how the company is regulated. The main authors of these bills are Dominion's lawyers and lobbyists." [The Atlantic, 6/13/23]

Dominion Energy Contracted With Data Centers To Provide Energy Capacity In Virginia, Raising Virginians' Energy Bills

Reuters: Dominion Energy Contracted With Data Centers To Provide Energy Capacity. "Dominion Energy (D.N), opens new tab, the U.S. electric utility powering 'data center alley' in Northern Virginia, said on Tuesday it was in some stage of contracting to provide data centers with 47 gigawatts of capacity, more electricity than what is needed for all of Virginia. The expansion of artificial intelligence and cloud computing has led to the rapid proliferation of energy-intensive data centers, which is sending U.S. power demand to record highs. Dominion is the world's biggest data center-serving electric utility, having connected about 450 data centers in what is known as the data center crossroads of the world in Virginia. The company's data center pipeline grew by 17% since the end of last year. 'We continue to see robust demand from data centers,' Dominion CEO Robert Blue said on a company call with investors, who hinted at earlier speculation that the Virginia data center market may be oversaturated." Dominion provides electricity in Loudoun County, nicknamed 'Data Center Alley' because it hosts the largest cluster of data centers in the world. The utility works closely with the Big Tech companies that are investing tens of billions of dollars in data centers as they train artificial intelligence models. 'We have not observed any evidence of slowing demand from data center customers across our service area,' Dominion's chief financial officer, Steven Ridge, told analysts on the company's first-quarter earnings call." Dominion says it needs more money for projects that produce and transmit more energy to meet exploding demand, largely from data centers, which require massive amounts to cool warehouses full of computers. That includes new natural gas plants, transmission lines and other infrastructure. The company has also been affected by 'persistent inflationary trends in the costs of goods and labor,' Dominion officials wrote in their filing." [WHRO, 8/20/25]

Skyrocketing Data Center Electricity Use Benefitted Utilities By Delivering Consistent Revenue

Skyrocketing Data Center Electricity Use Benefitted Utilities By Delivering Consistent Revenue. "The electricity use from data centers is skyrocketing, and utilities are racing to keep up. Data centers in the United States consumed about 4.4% of the country's total electricity in 2023, and this figure is projected to increase to approximately 6.7% to 12% by 2028, driven by the growing reliance on big data and IoT. Utilities benefit from serving data centers. Their high, steady energy demand provides consistent revenue, helping utilities plan for future growth. However, the surge in data centers has put pressure on electric utilities. These facilities consume enormous amounts of power, sometimes straining local grids and requiring costly infrastructure upgrades." [Gridx, 4/3/25]

Serving Data Centers Was A Lucrative Opportunity For Utility Companies And Incentivized Them To Offer Attractive Rates To Big Tech Companies. "A new paper by Legal Fellow Eliza Martin and Electricity Law Initiative Director Ari Peskoe explores how the public is paying the energy bills of some of the largest companies in the world. Amazon, Google, Meta, Microsoft, and other technology companies are looking to secure electricity for their new power-hungry data centers. To provide energy to these new facilities, electric utilities are expanding their systems with new power plants and transmission lines. Because utilities profit by building infrastructure, serving data centers is a lucrative opportunity that is incentivizing utilities to offer attractive rates to Big Tech companies."
