

Ex-professional wrestler Rodimer has been accused of getting in multiple physical fights in Florida restaurants and bars from 2010 through 2013, including admitting to a fight that resulted in Rodimer's arrest for battery and left Rodimer enrolled in an anger management course.

Associated Press: "Florida Court Records And Sheriff's Office Documents Detail Three Incidents From 2010 Through 2013 Where Dan Rodimer Was Accused Of Punching Or Throwing Someone To The Ground In Disputes At Nightclubs And Restaurants." "A former professional wrestler running in a Republican primary for a U.S. House seat in Nevada has been accused of assault three times, according to police records obtained by The Associated Press. Florida court records and sheriff's office documents detail three incidents from 2010 through 2013 where Dan Rodimer was accused of punching or throwing someone to the ground in disputes at nightclubs and restaurants." Rodimer Admitted Being In A Physical Altercation In The Waffle House: "I Pushed The Guy Back." [10:10] "Sure enough, the guys start poking me, poking me, poking me. One guy pushes me. And there's three of them. There's three of them, Victor! Okay, I'm a giant, don't get me wrong. I'm six foot seven and 300 pounds. Sure enough, all I did was push the guy. It was one push and he said that oh I dropped the F-bomb and this and this. This is what they stated. No, it was a push! I pushed the guy back." Las Vegas Review Journal, [5/31/18]

August 2011: Rodimer Was Arrested For Battery. Collier County Sheriff, accessed [8/24/20]
