Key Findings

Malliotakis Is Wrong For New York

Everyone from New York’s law enforcement to women to seniors to workers would lose under Malliotakis’ leadership. Malliotakis has voted against billions in police funding, in addition to the federal COVID-19 relief bill that allowed for millions in NYPD funding, and supported Trump’s proposal to federally defund the NYPD. She consistently opposed codifying protections for abortion access established in Roe v. Wade throughout her career, and downplayed the threat to these rights. In Washington and Albany, Malliotakis voted against ensuring equal pay and against measures to protect LGBT New Yorkers from discrimination. Malliotakis even voted against preventing cuts to Medicare, which tens of thousands of her constituents use, and against measures to limit prescription drug costs for seniors. Malliotakis opposed increasing protections for unions and raising the minimum wage, which she claimed was “not meant to support a family.”

Malliotakis hurt New York’s (and New Yorkers’) bottom line. Malliotakis opposed major investments in New York City, whether it was in critical federal COVID-19 relief, billions in direct payments to New Yorkers, the expanded child tax credit, or historic funding of child care and energy efficiency programs. Instead, Malliotakis backed Trump’s proposal to federally defund New York City. Malliotakis also hurt New York taxpayers by supporting Trump’s efforts to raise taxes on the middle class and instating the SALT deduction cap, causing New Yorkers to pay billions more in taxes – all while cutting them for the wealthiest corporations and individuals.

Malliotakis kicked New York when it was down at the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic and profited off of the opioid epidemic while opposing funding to fight it. In April 2020, Malliotakis voted to cut hospital funding by $400 million and provide nursing homes with a COVID-19 liability shield, which critics said would provide financial incentives to put residents in harm’s way. Malliotakis also invested in two opioid manufacturers that were sued for their roles in perpetuating the opioid crisis – all while voting against more than $1 million in funds to combat it.

Malliotakis Is Just Another Swampy, Flip-Flopping, Fraud Politician

Malliotakis was an ineffective career politician and lobbyist who voted against her constituents’ interests. Malliotakis has worked in politics for nearly two decades, including time as a lobbyist with Con Ed. It shows – as a New York Assemblymember, Malliotakis voted against requiring paid family leave and consumer protections after Con Ed lobbied on the bills. She also claimed she “managed” Con Ed’s PAC, which gave money to Democrats like Bill De Blasio. As a legislator, though, Malliotakis hasn’t done much – she passed just six bills over the course of nearly a decade in the New York Assembly.

Malliotakis can’t be believed, whether it’s about her policy positions or claims to help New Yorkers. Malliotakis is a serial flip-flopper who has changed stances on everything from two-way tolling on the Verrazano Bridge to Trump’s border wall to marriage equality. She even claimed to oppose public campaign financing, despite taking millions in public funds for her own mayoral campaign in 2017 and misusing official resources to bolster her own House campaign. Malliotakis also repeatedly faked claims that she helped distribute PPE to New Yorkers during the pandemic, and even promoted a photoshopped image of herself delivering supplies.

Malliotakis claimed to oppose Public Campaign Financing, but repeatedly used public resources to bolster her political career. Malliotakis loves to feign outrage about wasteful government spending, while taking every possible dollar to bolster her own career. In December 2021, after Max Rose announced his congressional candidacy, Malliotakis spent roughly $26,000 on franked advertisements that were essentially “campaign ads” paid with taxpayer money. Malliotakis has also used public money to fund her 2017 Mayoral campaign, despite saying she was opposed to doing so, and used the leftover funds to pay fines for campaign finance violations.

Malliotakis Is An Extremist Who Defended The Big Lie

Malliotakis voted to throw out 2020 election results and stood with violent January 6 insurrectionists instead of our police. Immediately after the disgraceful violence at the Capitol on January 6th, Malliotakis voted against the certification of election results from Arizona and Pennsylvania. She then expressed sympathy for the extremist mob by saying she understood their “frustration.” Even though New Yorkers protested at Malliotakis’ office over her votes against election certification, Malliotakis claimed that “nobody in my district ever talks to me about the election.”

Malliotakis has repeatedly attended violent and bigoted political events and refused to condemn them or their extremist hosts. In December 2020, Malliotakis spoke at a rally attended by the Proud Boys and her “longtime consultant,” Leticia Remauro – who yelled “Heil Hitler” at the event – in support of a bar that had been ordered to close over its repeated violations of pandemic safety guidelines. Days later, the bar's manager drove his car into a police officer, but Malliotakis refused to comment on the bar or the manager's actions. In July 2020, Malliotakis led a "pro-NYPD" rally where protesters called for counter-protesters to be sexually assaulted and even hospitalized one of them, yet Malliotakis again refused to condemn the violence. She also participated in a march where attendees compared vaccine mandates to Nazi Germany, a dinner where Lauren Boebert made transphobic and Islamophobic remarks, and a St. Patrick's Day march that banned LGBT individuals and advocacy groups.

Malliotakis has embraced radical right-wingers and amplified their dangerous misinformation. Malliotakis has called Rudy Giuliani "NYC's BEST Mayor" and embraced Trump's endorsement of her 2020 campaign, in a sharp departure from when she tweeted "#NEVERTRUMP" in 2016 and said she regretted voting for him in 2017. Malliotakis also elevated Trump's claim that "hydroxychloroquine works" as a COVID-19 treatment, which experts labeled "questionable."

Malliotakis Opposed Historic Investments In New York City And Instead Backed Trump's Proposal To Federally Defund ItFebruary 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against And Attacked The American Rescue Plan, Which Invested Billions In Pandemic Recovery And Direct Payments To New Yorkers*Malliotakis Voted Against The American Rescue Plan Act, Which Provided Direct Payments, Aid To Local Governments, Schools, And Businesses, An Expanded Child Tax Credit, And Vaccine Distribution Funds

Malliotakis Voted Against Passage Of The American Rescue Plan Act. In February 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the fiscal 2021 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, comprising a coronavirus relief package that would provide roughly $1.9 trillion in funding to further address the health and economic effects of COVID-19, including approximately $350 billion in direct aid to state and local governments; $47.8 billion for testing and contact tracing; $168 billion to assist educational institutions; and $50 billion to assist small businesses. It would extend and increase federal unemployment compensation benefits for 24 weeks and increase the weekly amount to $400; provide tax rebates of $1,400 for individuals with incomes of $75,000 or less; extend or expand a number of employer and individual tax credits, including credits to subsidize health insurance premiums; and gradually increase the federal minimum wage to $15 per hour. Among other provisions, the bill would provide $195.3 billion for direct assistance to states and $130.2 billion for local governments; $128.6 billion through fiscal 2023 for an Education Department elementary and secondary school emergency relief fund and $39.6 billion for grants to higher education institutions, including to provide emergency financial aid; and continue the 15% increase in Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits through September 2021. It would provide $47.8 billion for COVID-19 testing and contact tracing; $7.5 billion for vaccine administration and distribution; and $6.1 billion for vaccine and therapeutic development, manufacturing and procurement. It would require Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program to fully cover the cost of COVID-19 vaccines. It would expand eligibility in 2021 and 2022 for federal tax subsidies toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums, including to fully cover premium costs for individuals earning up to 150% of the federal poverty level and cap premiums at 8.5% of household income. It would provide $50 billion for small business assistance, including $25 billion for restaurants. It would provide $30.5 billion for transit, $18 billion for airline and aviation manufacturing industry payroll support; and $4 billion for Agriculture Department pandemic-related assistance. It would incrementally increase the federal minimum wage annually to reach $15 per hour in 2025, including for tipped workers, teens and workers with disabilities. It would create a program to provide financial assistance to multiemployer pension plans.” The bill passed by a vote of 219-212. HR 1319, [Vote #49, 2/27/21; CQ, 2/27/21]

The American Rescue Plan Provided $1,400 Direct Payments, Aid To State And Local Governments, Schools, And Small Businesses, An Expanded Child Tax Credit, And Vaccine Distribution Funds. “President Biden signed the $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan Act into law on Thursday, finalizing an early policy victory that will send much-needed aid to millions of Americans still struggling from the COVID-19 pandemic. [...] The American Rescue Plan provides $1,400 direct payments to individuals making up to $75,000 annually, $350 billion in aid to state and local governments and $14 billion for vaccine distribution. The bill also provides $130 billion to elementary, middle and high schools to assist with safe reopening. [...] It includes an additional $300 billion in weekly jobless benefits through September and an expanded tax credit of up to $3,600 per child, initially distributed in monthly installments. The child tax credit could raise 4 million children out of poverty, according to an analysis by the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities. More than $50 billion will be distributed to small businesses, including $7 billion for the Paycheck Protection Program. The bill also provides $25 billion for relief for small and mid-sized restaurants, which have suffered significantly during the pandemic.” CBS News, [3/12/21]

Malliotakis Repeatedly Criticized ARP For Allocating Money To New York

July 2021: Malliotakis Criticized ARP For Giving Money To “Big City Mayors Like Mine To Combat Crime After They Defunded The Police.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I mean, look, any way you look at it -- when you look at the $1.9 trillion package that was put forth for COVID relief, we said that we didn't need that money, we just needed a fraction of the money to do what needed to be done in an emergency situation. Now you see them spending all sorts of money in all sorts of different areas and giving it to big city mayors like mine to combat crime after they defunded the police. They're putting a billion dollars towards illegal immigrant housing when we have homeless veterans, we have homeless people in our streets in our city. So, we have to be able to take the time to review legislation, see what is exactly in it. That page - that bill, 600 pages, $1.9 trillion, they gave us just an hour to actually debate it, just a few hours to read it.” Fox News, [7/20/21] (VIDEO) :00

February 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Funding For New York In ARP, Which She Said “Rewarded” Business Closures And Higher Unemployment Rates. “[BARTIROMO:] President Biden's $1.9 trillion COVID relief package, only 9 percent of it is about COVID. And much of it is about other things, including bailouts to the states like New York. What is it going to take to get New York back on track, Congresswoman? I mean, look at the House valuations plummeting, population numbers plummeting, homelessness up, murder, and crime numbers up as well. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly we need a new mayor, we need to restore some sanity to our legislature and our city council because they keep adopting whether it's bad policies on crime, whether it's driving up taxes. Look, I think the issue here is the Governor was actually rewarded for shutting down the economy and driving people out of work. The Democrats actually changed the formula before they were getting money based on population. Now they're getting money based on unemployment rate, which is why governors Cuomo and Newsom are doing the best in this COVID package.” Fox News, [2/26/21] (VIDEO) :56

October 2021: Malliotakis Blamed ARP For “Making The Economy Worse”

October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed The American Rescue Plan “Disincentivizes Work” And Caused A Labor Shortage. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] They passed a $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan that was supposed to put people back to work, but it actually did the opposite. It actually disincentivizes work and production, I think that's part of the problem you're seeing here. There are a number of causes but a big part of it is labor shortage and that was a result of the president and the democrats wanting people to stay home than to come to work and produce. And so you have lack of warehouse workers, you have lack of truck drivers and so you're seeing a major issue here.” Fox Business, [10/14/21] (VIDEO) :17

- Malliotakis Claimed Unemployment Insurance Created Labor Shortages By “Penalizing Production And Work In This Country.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] And the supply chain shortage is not -- you know, the ships are there. The issue is actually we don't have the workers who are at the warehouses, who are truck drivers because the President thought it was a good idea to pay people more to stay home. They're penalizing production and work in this country, and that is why we're seeing the problems we're seeing with the bare shelves all around America." The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 28:56

Malliotakis: The American Rescue Plan Was A "Bust" That "Only Created Inflation And Rising Costs Not Jobs And Economic Stimulus." - PolitiFact Rated The Claim That Biden's Spending Caused Inflation "Mostly False," Since Most Recent Government Spending, With ARP Factored In, Occurred Before Biden Took Office. "There's no question that high levels of government spending can fuel inflation. But the spending that has occurred since Biden took office, primarily through the American Rescue Plan, accounts for just a part of new government spending over the past 18 months. [...] Scott said, 'Thanks to the insane tax-and-spending spree of President Joe Biden and Democrats in Washington, we are seeing six straight months of raging inflation.' Inflation is up, and there's broad agreement that government spending has been a factor. However, most of the big spending coursing through the economy took place before Biden and the Democrats were in charge in Washington. In the past, there's been a lag of one to two years between higher government spending and higher inflation. The massive relief package in March has had little time to spur inflation. As for taxes, they haven't gone up. And if they had, that would tend to put the brakes on inflation. We rate this claim Mostly False." PolitiFact, [7/29/21]

Malliotakis: The American Rescue Plan "Ended Up Making The Economy Worse" And "Didn't Need To Be Spent." "MALLIOTAKIS: And by the way, the $1.9 trillion that was passed earlier this year that was supposed to be an economic recovery, or COVID recovery fund, ended up making the economy worse. When you look at the labor shortages, when you look at the ports, how they're so backed up and they cannot take these containers down, the lack of truck driving due to people being paid to stay home rather than report back to work, the impact it's had on inflation. All of that is showing how this $1.9 trillion that was spent didn't need to be spent. If they simply reopened the economy and returned everyone back to work we would be I think in a better situation today. You didn't need that excessive spending." New Yorkers Received $22.2 Billion In Economic Impact Payments Through ARP

Individuals In New York Received $22.2 Billion In Third Round Economic Impact Payments Of Up To $1,400 Through The American Rescue Plan. New York received $22.2 billion in Third Round Economic Impact Payments through The American Rescue Plan Act: "The U.S. Department of the Treasury and the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) released state-by-state data through early June for the 163.5 million Economic Impact Payments (EIPs) totaling nearly $390 billion received by individuals through the American Rescue Plan Act. With this round of payments, the IRS and the Bureau of the Fiscal Service (BFS) have delivered more EIPs and more total direct relief than in any previous round of direct relief. All 50 states saw more total relief with this round of payments than in previous rounds. [...] The EIPs under the American Rescue Plan included payments of up to $1,400 per qualifying dependent, a significant increase over the $500 and $600 per qualifying child from the first and second rounds of payments, respectively.” Department of the Treasury, Press Release, [6/29/21]

Malliotakis Repeatedly Called For Increases In Relief To Restaurants, Then Said She Voted Against The ARP’s $48.7 Million In Relief To Restaurants In Her District Because The Aid Was “In No Way Tailored”

As Of August 2021, New York’s 11th Congressional District Had Received $48.7 Million In Restaurant Revitalization Funding To Help Restaurants Keep Their Doors Open As Part Of The American Rescue Plan.

As of August 2021, New York’s 11th Congressional District had received $48.7 million in Restaurant Revitalization Funding as part of The American Rescue Plan: “The American Rescue Plan Act established the Restaurant Revitalization Fund (RRF) to provide funding to help restaurants and other eligible businesses keep their doors open. This program will provide restaurants with funding equal to their pandemic-related revenue loss up to $10 million per business and no more than $5 million per physical location. Recipients are not required to repay the funding as long as funds are used for eligible uses no later than March 11, 2023.” U.S. Small Business Administration, RRF FOIA, [8/18/21; U.S. Small Business Administration, accessed 9/7/21]

While there are many components of the bill that I support, like providing aid to restaurants and small businesses that were mandated to close and providing assistance for the unemployed, and returning taxpayer money to citizens in the form of a ‘stimulus’ check, it is in no way tailored to the specific needs of our nation or its struggling citizens.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [2/23/21]

December 2020: Malliotakis Said Restaurant Relief Should Be Mandatory For States With Restricted Dining That Received Federal Pandemic Aid.

“Congresswoman-elect Nicole Malliotakis is hopeful that some kind of federal aid is on the way, likely in the form of PPP which includes restaurants. If states receive federal money, she believes there should be a requirement that a portion be used to provide relief to restaurants that the governor shut down. She says that for years entrepreneurs have paid their taxes, fines and fees to the state and they now need help to cover the shortfall created at no fault of their own.” Staten Island Advance, [12/12/20]

November 2020: Malliotakis Said She Hoped “That The Current Congress Will Pass A Tailored Relief Package That Will Include Desperately Needed Lifelines To Small Businesses And Restaurants.”

November 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better

Malliotakis Voted Against The Build Back Better Act. In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the fiscal 2022 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, that would provide approximately $2 trillion in investments and tax cuts to address climate change and child care, health care, education, housing and other social policies intended to support families. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a "maximum fair price" for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program's debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. It would provide $78.9 billion to improve IRS operations and tax enforcement." The bill passed by a vote of 220-213. HR 5376, [Vote #385, 11/19/21; CQ, 11/19/21]

Parts of it could come back. Is there anything you like? [MALLIOTAKIS:] There’s not much in there to like, to be honest. Look, it’s really riddled with a lot of unnecessary spending, and at the end of the day with the inflation that we’re facing, there is no reason to be taking on new entitlement programs. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we’ve been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. And again, these are hard assets, very different from starting new entitlement programs that we can’t afford. And I think Joe Manchin was right, even with the child credit, you know, that is entitled to people who are in the country – they wanted to give that to people illegally, and they also wanted to give it to people who were not working, which defeats the purpose of a child care credit. So I think that we’re on the right track right here, we successfully pushed back against the Build Back Better is dead.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [12/20/21] (VIDEO) :56

Build Back Better Would Invest In Child Care And Reduce Household Energy Costs

Roosevelt Institute: Build Back Better Act Would Invest In Child Care, Creating Jobs And Allowing Parents To Get Back To Work. “Convenient, affordable childcare is a major obstacle for working parents, illuminated even more so by school and daycare closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, which has disproportionately impacted women’s labor force participation. Increasing the capacity of industries in order to curb inflation of specific prices requires increasing the supply of labor. The Build Back Better Act invests in existing and new childcare facilities in underserved areas and provides subsidies to make childcare more affordable for qualifying households. Together, these investments would increase the supply of childcare, create new jobs, and allow parents to get back to work. Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

Center For American Progress: Build Back Better Act Would Invest In Clean Electricity And Energy Efficiency, Reducing Energy Costs By $500 Per Year For The Average Household. “Build Back Better helps break the United States’ dependence on fossil fuels—an industry that’s particularly vulnerable to extreme weather, which has and will continue to be exacerbated by climate change—consumer energy costs will be reduced. Specifically, proposed investments in clean electricity and energy efficiency will make energy costs more affordable, saving the average household approximately $500 a year in reduced energy costs. This much-needed investment in clean energy would come at a time when energy prices have pushed up inflation for consecutive months.” Center for American Progress, [11/16/21]

2020: Malliotakis Supported Pulling Federal Funds From NYC

July 2020: Malliotakis Said The Proposed Plan To Defund NYPD By $1 Billion “Will Surely Increase Crime And Make Our City And Its Neighborhoods More Dangerous.” “As I write this, we are already fighting a new battle as Mayor de Blasio and radicals on the City Council are pushing through a plan to defund the NYPD by $1 billion (nearly 17% of the overall NYPD budget), an action that will surely increase crime and make our city and its neighborhoods more dangerous. Defunding makes the changes we’ve made to bail reform all the more important and emphasizes the need for further changes to the law. Their short-sighted plan is wrong and the decrease in police funding will only amplify the problems that our city already faces. It undercuts the fixes we applied to bail reform and cynically sets the stage for a continued rise in crime by slashing the resources the NYPD needs to keep our city and its people safe.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [7/1/20]

Trump on Wednesday signed a five-page memo ordering all federal agencies to send reports to the White House Office of Management and Budget that detail funds that can be redirected. The COVID-19 Liability Shield Provided "Incentives For For-Profit Nursing Home Operators To Put Residents At Risk Of Harm;" 15,000 New Yorkers Died In Nursing Homes During The Pandemic

January 2021: Attorney General Letitia James Recommended Repealing The Shield Because It "Can Provide Financial Incentives To For-Profit Nursing Home Operators To Put Residents At Risk Of Harm." "Eliminate the recently enacted immunity provisions that can provide financial incentives to for-profit nursing home operators to put residents at risk of harm by refraining from investing public funds to obtain sufficient staffing to meet residents' care needs, to purchase sufficient PPE for staff, and to provide effective training to staff to comply with infection control protocols during pandemics and other public health emergencies. The state's immunity laws were designed to provide necessary protection to frontline health care workers who placed their lives on the line during the pandemic, managers who are faced with impossible choices in caring for patients with COVID-19 in circumstances that are not of their own making, and facilities whose processes led to those decisions in good faith. These circumstances can include shortages of ventilators, respirators, medicine, other equipment, or available beds or services. As written, the immunity laws could be wrongly used to provide any individual or entity from liability, even if those decision were not made in good faith or motivated by financial incentives." In February 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the fiscal 2021 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, comprising a coronavirus relief package that would provide roughly $1.9 trillion in funding to further address the health and economic effects of COVID-19, including approximately $350 billion in direct aid to state and local governments; $47.8 billion for testing and contact tracing; $168 billion to assist educational institutions; and $50 billion to assist small businesses. It would extend and increase federal unemployment compensation benefits for 24 weeks and increase the weekly amount to $400; provide tax rebates of $1,400 for individuals with incomes of $75,000 or less; extend or expand a number of employer and individual tax credits, including credits to subsidize health insurance premiums; and gradually increase the federal minimum wage to $15 per hour. Among other provisions, the bill would provide $195.3 billion for direct assistance to states and $130.2 billion for local governments; $128.6 billion through fiscal 2023 for an Education Department elementary and secondary school emergency relief fund and $39.6 billion for grants to higher education institutions, including to provide emergency financial aid; and continue the 15% increase in Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits through September 2021. It would provide $47.8 billion for COVID-19 testing and contact tracing; $7.5 billion for vaccine administration and distribution; and $6.1 billion for vaccine and therapeutic development, manufacturing and procurement. It would require Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program to fully cover the cost of COVID-19 vaccines. It would expand eligibility in 2021 and 2022 for federal tax subsidies toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums, including to fully cover premium costs for individuals earning up to 150% of the federal poverty level and cap premiums at 8.5% of household income. It would provide $50 billion for small business assistance, including $25 billion for restaurants. It would provide $30.5 billion for transit, $18 billion for airline and aviation manufacturing industry payroll support; and $4 billion for Agriculture Department pandemic-related assistance. It would incrementally increase the federal minimum wage annually to reach $15 per hour in 2025, including for tipped workers, teens and workers with disabilities. It would create a program to provide financial assistance to multiemployer pension plans.” The bill passed by a vote of 219-212. HR 1319, [Vote #49, 2/27/21; CQ, 2/27/21]

June 2021: Aided By “An Enormous Infusion Of Federal Pandemic Aid,” New York City Increased NYPD Funding By $200 Million. “Helped along by an enormous infusion of federal pandemic aid, New York City officials on Wednesday adopted the city’s largest budget ever, a $98.7 billion spending plan that restores many of the service cuts prompted by the sudden economic downturn caused by the coronavirus. The budget, which includes $14 billion in federal aid, represents a sharp reversal from last year when the city locked down its economy to control the outbreak, creating a major financial strain and forcing a reduction in spending. [...] The budget increases spending for the New York Police Department by $200 million, including a $166 million increase for overtime.” New York Times, [6/30/21]

The American Rescue Plan Provided $350 Billion In State And Local Funding To Hire Law Enforcement Officials, Pay Overtime For Community Policing, And Restore Law Enforcement To Pre-Pandemic Levels.

“Today, the Treasury Department is highlighting that communities experiencing a surge in gun violence as a result of the pandemic may use the American Rescue Plan’s $350 billion in state and local funding for purposes such as: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic. [...] In addition, the Treasury Department is clarifying that any community may use ARP state and local aid for the above strategies and any other public safety programs, up to the level of revenue loss the jurisdiction experienced during the pandemic. And any community may use ARP funds to rehire police officers and other public servants to restore law enforcement and courts to their pre-pandemic levels.”

Department Of The Treasury: “There Are Many Ways In Which The State And Local Fiscal Recovery Funds [...] Can Support Communities Working To Reduce And Respond To Increased Violence.” “Under Treasury’s Interim Final Rule, there are many ways in which the State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds (“Funds”) under the American Rescue Plan Act can support communities working to reduce and respond to increased violence due to the pandemic. [...] In all communities, recipients may use resources to rehire police officers and other public servants to restore law enforcement and courts to their pre-pandemic levels. [...] In communities where an increase in violence or increased difficulty in accessing or providing services to respond to or mitigate the effects of violence, is a result of the pandemic they may use funds to address that harm. This spending may include: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic o Community Violence Intervention (CVI) programs, including capacity building efforts at CVI programs like funding and training additional intervention workers.” Department of the Treasury, [7/19/21]

Biden: “The American Rescue Plan, Which We Passed In The First 100 Days Of My Administration, Is Providing Much-Needed, Historic Relief To Bring Back Those Law Enforcement Jobs.” President Biden: “The American Rescue Plan, which we passed in the first 100 days of my administration, is providing much-needed, historic relief to bring back those law enforcement jobs and social service jobs. Much of this relief has already arrived. The rest is on its way. And we’re now providing more guidance on how they can use the $350 billion nationally that the American Rescue Plan has available to help reduce crime and address the root causes. For example, cities experiencing an increase in gun violence were able to use the American Rescue Plan dollars to hire police officers needed for community policing and to pay their overtime. Mayors will also be able to buy crime-fighting technologies, like gunshot detection systems, to better see and stop gun violence in their communities. They can use the funding to scale up wraparound services for the residents as well, including substance abuse and mental health services that we know will make a difference in prevention of crime.” White House, [6/23/21]

They're putting a billion dollars towards illegal immigrant housing when we have homeless veterans, we have homeless people in our streets in our city. November 2021: Malliotakis Opposed Restoring SALT Deductions In Build Back Better

Build Back Better Would Raise The SALT Deduction Cap To $80,000. “The fate of the state and local tax deduction, a tax break that homeowners in high-tax states like New York counted on for decades, now depends on the fate of President Biden's ‘Build Back Better’ plan to stitch a tighter social safety net. House negotiators agreed earlier this month to lift the cap on the deduction – set at $10,000 by the Republican-led Senate in 2017 – to $80,000 through the year 2030 and to include the change in the Build Back Better plan.” Associated Press, [11/14/21]

So are you going to vote against Build Back Better even with the SALT being part of that. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well as you know Roseanna I am one of the founding members of the SALT caucus. I very much support restoring SALT but if it’s going to be tied with a bunch of other nonsense, I just simply won’t be able to support that package. What good is it to give taxpayers back some money with one hand if we’re going to cost them tons of other money with the other hand? Is it in or is it out? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don’t know what’s going to happen just yet. Washington Post: Final Tax Bill Included A “Significant Tax Break For The Very Wealthy” And “A Massive Tax Cut For Corporations.”

“A new tax cut for the rich: The final plan lowers the top tax rate for top earners. Under current law, the highest rate is 39.6 percent for married couples earning over $470,700. The GOP bill would drop that to 37 percent and raise the threshold at which that top rate kicks in, to $500,000 for individuals and $600,000 for married couples. This amounts to a significant tax break for the very wealthy, a departure from repeated claims by Trump and his top officials that the bill would not benefit the rich. April 2021: Malliotakis Said Proposed Increases In The Corporate Tax And Taxes On The Wealthy “Always [...] Fall On The Middle Class.”

“[FISHER:] But one of the other big sticking points, of course, is how to pay for it. And President Biden really went out of his way tonight to make the case that this should not fall on middle class Americans, that he wants to raise taxes on the wealthy and corporations. Is there -- did you feel like there was any room for negotiation on that front? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Look, I think at the end of the day, it always does fall on the middle class. The reality is that when the wealthy people are not investing in expanding and growing their businesses and creating good jobs, when the when the American government is borrowing more money and spending and hitting a $30 trillion debt, you know, that’s causing inflation, the cost of products will go up. It would provide $50 billion for small business assistance, including $25 billion for restaurants. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. The expanded credit benefits roughly 9 in 10 children across the country, and already data show signs of success. - JEC Analysis Showed The CTC Had Dramatically Reduced Food Insecurity And Financial Hardship, And Was Expected To Inject Nearly $19.3 Billion Into Local Economies Each Month. “JEC analysis of data from the Census Bureau show the expanded CTC is already having a major impact on family budgets, with dramatic declines in food insufficiency and financial hardship, and the JEC estimates that monthly CTC payments will inject nearly $19.3 billion into local economies each month. The expanded CTC will generate nearly $19.3 billion in spending in local economies across the U.S. each month. Family finances improved significantly following the first monthly expanded CTC payments in July. Data from the Census Bureau show that following the July payments, there were significant declines in the share of households with children reporting financial hardship and food insufficiency. Families are using the expanded CTC payments to meet the needs of their household. Among those who responded to the Census Bureau’s survey: 47% spent their CTC payment on food, 28% spent it on internet and other utilities, 26% spent it on school expenses, and 17% of those with at least one child under age 5 spent it on child care.” Joint Economic Committee, [9/9/21]

[...] Eligible families received a payment of up to $300 per month for each child under age 6 and up to $250 per month for each child age 6 to 17. This tax relief is having a real impact on the lives of America’s children. According to the Census Bureau’s Household Pulse Survey data released earlier this week, parents reported having less trouble covering the costs of food and other household expenses after receiving their first CTC payment. In March 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would expand enforcement authorities of the National Labor Relations Board and modify procedures by which employees may unionize and elect representation under federal labor law. The bill would authorize the NLRB to enforce any orders it issues and to impose a number of civil monetary penalties, including penalties of up to $50,000 against employers who prevent or punish organizing activities by employees. It would require the NLRB to seek temporary injunctions against employers charged with engaging in unfair labor practices and allow employees to bring civil action if the board fails to seek an injunction. It would outline a number of procedures by which employees may petition for and elect representation for collective bargaining through an election directed by the NLRB. It would require the NLRB to schedule pre-election hearings within eight days of a petition being filed; prohibit employers from certain interference or participation in such elections; and require the NLRB to certify and order the employer to engage in collective bargaining with an elected labor organization. It would outline procedures for initial collective bargaining between an employer and a union, including to provide for federal mediation services if an agreement is not reached 90 days after the bargaining begins and referral to an arbitration panel if an agreement is not reached in an additional 30 days. Among other provisions, the bill would prohibit employers from taking certain retaliatory actions against employees who participate in a strike, including permanently replacing or discriminating against such employees. It would specify that employees’ right to strike is protected regardless of the duration, scope, frequency, or intermittence of the strike. It would modify definitions of ‘employee’ and ‘supervisor,’ particularly to narrow the classification of independent contractors and supervisors, two categories of employees not eligible for collective bargaining. 2017: Malliotakis Supported Limiting New York City’s Paid Sick Leave Law, Including By Reducing The Number Of Paid Sick Days

2017: When Asked Whether She Would Repeal New York City’s Paid Sick Leave Law, Malliotakis Called For A “Compromise” With The Business Community Such As Reducing Or Limiting Paid Sick Leave Days. “[LEHRER:] Would you try to repeal or change New York City’s paid sick leave law as too burdensome on business? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I think that’s something that needs to be discussed. I wouldn’t move to repeal it, but I do believe maybe we can make it better. Sometimes, there’s unintended consequences when you pass bills like this, and we need to learn from that and we need to engage the business community and individuals on how it’s affecting them, and perhaps there’s a compromise that we can work with. [...] Perhaps maybe it needs to be fewer days or perhaps we need to look at – there’s other issues, too, it’s not just that issue, it’s the two-week schedule issue.” WNYC, [7/6/17] (AUDIO) 4:40

June 2021: Malliotakis Faced Criticism For Her Silence On The Closure Of Staten Island’s E-Z Pass Center, Which Eliminated 300 Union Jobs

5/21/21: MTA Announced Staten Island’s E-Z Pass Customer Service Center, Which Had Not Operated Since March 2020, Would Permanently Close. “The Staten Island E-Zpass Customer Service Center, located at 1150 South Ave., will be permanently closed as the MTA transitions to a new vendor that will support the E-Zpass program in the years to come, according to the MTA. ‘After a competitive RFP process, we have selected a new vendor to operate our customer service centers that will result in improved service for tens of thousands of Staten Island E-Zpass customers. Importantly, all jobs will remain in New York,’ said Ken Lovett, senior advisor to the MTA chairman & CEO. June 2021: Communications Workers Of America Local 1102, Which Represented The Workers At The Staten Island E-Z Pass Customer Service Center, Protested Its Closure. “A decision to close Staten Island’s E-Zpass Customer Service Center is expected to cost the borough hundreds of jobs, prompting workers and elected officials to urge the state to reverse course before it’s too late. On Thursday, the Communications Workers of America (CWA) Local 1102, which represents the workers at the Staten Island E-Zpass Customer Service Center, held a virtual rally urging the New York State Thruway Authority to vote down a pending contract that would seal the fate of the Staten Island center.” Staten Island Advance, [6/3/21]

After all of that, due to no fault of our own, we are on the brink of having our jobs axed. It would be a disgusting betrayal for New York State to dismiss our sacrifice and approve the elimination of our jobs,’ said customer service representative Hope Gilmore. ‘After putting our health and safety at risk for the past year, my co-workers and I are being rewarded with the loss of our jobs,’ added colleague Frank Buonivicino. ‘My livelihood is hanging in the balance of a pending vote that doesn’t take into account my welfare or the well-being of my family.’” Staten Island Advance, [6/3/21]

Republican And Democratic Staten Island Assemblymembers Spoke Out Against The Closure.

“Assemblyman Michael Cusick (D-Mid-Island) said that the planned closure is not only a disservice to the workers, but also the thousands of Staten Island residents, particularly the less technologically-savvy seniors, who rely on the in-person services provided by the center. [...] Echoing those sentiments, Assemblyman Michael Reilly (R-South Shore) said the decision will not only negatively impact the workers that stand to lose their jobs, but also the residents who rely on those workers. Before, during and after the vote, we heard from leaders like Senator Savino, Councilwoman Rose, AM Fall, AM Cusick and AM Reilly — a bipartisan call to action to save over 300 union jobs on Staten Island. This isn’t about politics, it’s about common sense and standing up for workers when they’ve struggled so much over the past year and a half. With that said, it’s beyond disappointing that Rep. Malliotakis Voted Against Preventing Medicare Benefit Cuts

Malliotakis Voted Against Preventing Sequestration Cuts To Medicare And Providing The Senate With Procedures To Increase The Debt Limit. In December 2021 Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill, as amended, that would extend from Dec. 31, 2021, to March 31, 2022, a temporary suspension of the 2 percent annual sequester of Medicare payments, and provide for payment reductions of 1 percent for the period of April 1 through June 30, 2022. As an offset, it would increase sequestration percentages above 2 percent in fiscal 2030. It would also require budget year debit for 2022 to be rolled over to the 2033 scorecards under statutory pay-as-you-go requirements, thus delaying spending cuts to Medicare and other mandatory programs subject to sequestration that would otherwise be triggered in January. It would delay a number of other Medicare payment reductions and policies, including to extend a temporary increase in payment amounts for physicians to provide a 3 percent increase for services furnished in 2022; delay for one year a provision that would phase in payment reductions for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests, prohibiting any reductions for 2021 and 2022 and prohibiting reductions greater than 15 percent for 2023 through 2025; and delay through 2022 the implementation of the Medicare radiation oncology model. It would decrease from $165 million to $101 million funding that may be expended from the Medicare Improvement Fund for fiscal 2021. Finally, the bill would establish procedures to expedite Senate consideration of a joint resolution to increase the debt limit by a specific dollar amount. Specifically, it would provide for a non-debatable motion to proceed to the joint resolution and, if the motion is agreed to, up to 10 hours of debate on the measure with no amendments or other motions in order, immediately followed by a vote on passage. Such procedures would be valid for consideration of one joint resolution by Jan. 16, 2022." Passed by a vote of 222-212. S 610, [Vote #404, 12/07/21; CQ, 12/7/21]

Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better And Said She Was "Completely Against All Elements" Of The Bill

Malliotakis Voted Against The Build Back Better Act. In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the fiscal 2022 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, that would provide approximately $2 trillion in investments and tax cuts to address climate change and child care, health care, education, housing and other social policies intended to support families. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a "maximum fair price" for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program's debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. It would provide $78.9 billion to improve IRS operations and tax enforcement.” The bill passed by a vote of 220-213. HR 5376, [Vote #385, 11/19/21; CQ, 11/19/21]

Parts of it could come back. Is there anything you like? [MALLIOTAKIS:] There’s not much in there to like, to be honest. Look, it’s really riddled with a lot of unnecessary spending, and at the end of the day with the inflation that we’re facing, there is no reason to be taking on new entitlement programs. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we’ve been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. And again, these are hard assets, very different from starting new entitlement programs that we can’t afford. And I think Joe Manchin was right, even with the child credit, you know, that is entitled to people who are in the country – they wanted to give that to people illegally, and they also wanted to give it to people who were not working, which defeats the purpose of a child care credit. So I think that we’re on the right track right here, we successfully pushed back against the Build Back Better is dead.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [12/20/21] (VIDEO) :56

Similar to the Senate bill, it would create a new initiative within the Department of Commerce to help promote the resiliency of the nation's supply chains. I'm disappointed that Senate Republicans agreed to a rules change that allowed the Democrats to move forward with raising the debt limit by trillions of dollars with just a simple majority instead of a 60 vote requirement. Being in the minority, Republicans have little leverage. By agreeing to this deal, they threw away the little negotiating leverage Republicans had to get Democrats to commit to less taxes and spending, less bureaucracy, fewer mandates or new entitlement programs.

While I believe it is vitally important that our nation doesn't default on our debt, Senate Republicans should have held out to minimize the damage of the Democrats' radical agenda. Democrats are the ones responsible for our record-high inflation, labor shortages, rising energy costs and supply chain issues. Raising the debt limit will only exacerbate the problem.

Malliotakis Repeatedly Voted Against Abortion Access Protections In Roe And Downplayed Their Importance

September 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The Women’s Health Protection Act, Which She Called “Barbaric” and “Inhumane”

September 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The Women’s Health Protection Act, Which Would Federally Codify Roe V. Wade Protections

Malliotakis Voted Against The Women’s Health Protection Act. In September 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill that would statutorily establish that health care providers have a right to provide and patients have a right to receive abortion services, and it would prohibit certain restrictions related to abortion services. The bill would specify that rights established by the bill may not be restricted by certain requirements or limitations related to abortion services, including prohibitions on abortion prior to fetal viability, or after fetal viability if a provider determines that continuation of a pregnancy would pose a risk to a patient's life or health; requirements that patients disclose reasons for seeking an abortion or make medically unnecessary in-person appointments; requirements that providers provide medically inaccurate information or perform specific medical tests or procedures in connection with the provision of abortion services; limitations on providers' ability to prescribe drugs based on good-faith medical judgment, provide services via telemedicine or provide immediate services when a delay would pose a risk to a patient's health; and requirements for facilities and personnel that would not apply to facilities providing medically comparable procedures. It would also prohibit requirements or limitations that are similar to those established by the bill or that impede access to abortion services and expressly or implicitly single out abortion services, providers or facilities. It would specify factors that courts may consider to determine whether a requirement or limitation impedes access to abortion services, including whether it interferes with providers' ability to provide services; poses a risk to patients' health; is likely to delay or deter patients in accessing services or necessitate in-person visits that would not otherwise be required; is likely to result in a decreased availability of services in a state or region; is likely to result in increased costs of providing or obtaining services; or imposes penalties that are not imposed on other health care providers for comparable conduct. American Independent Fact Check On WHPA: “No, Democrats Did Not Vote For Abortion ‘On Demand Until Birth.’” “[HEADLINE:] Fact check: No, Democrats did not vote for abortion 'on demand until birth' [...] Democrats in the House of Representatives on Friday passed the Women's Health Protection Act, a bill that would set in law the abortion rights protections enshrined in the Constitution and affirmed in the Supreme Court's 1973 ruling in Roe v. Wade. House Republicans, who unanimously opposed the legislation, falsely accused the Democrats of voting for ‘on-demand’ abortion through nine months of pregnancy. [...] But, like the precedents set by the Supreme Court's decisions in Roe and in Planned Parenthood of Southern Pennsylvania v. Casey, the Women's Health Protection Act would guarantee the right to choose whether to have an abortion only up to the point where a fetus is viable outside the uterus.” American Independent, [9/24/21]

For close to a half-century, the Democratic Party has used Roe v. Wade as a political bogeyman to scare women and score political points by threatening that electing Republicans would result in this landmark decision on abortion rights being overturned. History puts the lie to this scare tactic. Since the decision on Roe v. Wade was handed down in 1973, there have been six Republican presidents. For 20 of those years, there’s been a Republican majority in either the House or the Senate and for a four-year period under George W. In April 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill that would narrow the legal defense an employer may use in a lawsuit alleging pay discrimination on the basis of sex. Specifically, it would require employers to demonstrate that a difference in pay between employees is based on a business-related 'bona fide factor other than sex, such as education, training, or experience' as opposed to being based on 'any factor other than sex.' It would prohibit employers from retaliating against employees involved in lawsuits under fair labor standards law; prohibit employers from relying on a prospective employee's wage history for hiring or wage determinations; increase employers' liability for compensatory or punitive damages related to pay discrimination violations; and provide for automatic inclusion of all affected individuals in class action lawsuits related to pay discrimination. Among other provisions, the bill would authorize a new Labor Department grant program for public and private entities to carry out negotiation skills training programs to address pay disparities. It would establish an annual national award for an employer that made a 'substantial effort to eliminate pay disparities between men and women.' It would require the Labor Department to conduct a number of studies on sex-based pay disparities and require the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to collect compensation data disaggregated by employees' sex, race and national origin. It would require the Labor Department and EEOC to provide technical assistance for small businesses to comply with the bill's provisions. It would add a definition of 'sex' with respect to federal fair labor standards law, which would include sexual orientation or gender identity." Additionally, he said the Paycheck Fairness Act would make it illegal for employers to ask employees about their salary history in the hiring process and promote pay transparency by requiring more employers to report pay data to the government. And if so, how much money should they owe to help combat those effects? The deal, which requires a judge's approval, would not resolve claims against Mylan, which is scheduled to face trial in January. Paul Geller, a lawyer for the plaintiffs, said they were ‘pleased that Pfizer resolved its part of this class action lawsuit over the pricing of EpiPens.’ Pfizer did not admit wrongdoing. In a statement, the company said that it ‘denies any wrongdoing and continues to believe that its actions were appropriate.’ The EpiPen is a handheld device that treats life-threatening allergic reactions by automatically injecting a dose of epinephrine. The litigation followed a public outcry in 2016 after Mylan, which owns the rights to market and distribute the devices, raised the price of a pair of EpiPens to $600, from $100 in 2008, putting it in the center of an ongoing U.S. debate over the high cost of medicines.” Reuters, [7/16/21]

2010: Con Ed Listed Malliotakis As An “Additional Lobbyist” On Four Bimonthly Lobbying Disclosures.

Consolidated Edison listed Malliotakis as an “additional lobbyist” on its bimonthly lobbying disclosures covering January – February 2010, March – April 2010, May – June 2010, and November – December 2010. Malliotakis was one of between 26 and 33 additional lobbyists listed on the disclosures. New York State Joint Commission on Public Ethics, Lobbyist Bimonthly Reports, January – December 2010, accessed [7/14/17]

An “Additional Lobbyist” Referred To The Subordinate Of A “Principal Lobbyist” Who “Work[ed] For Them As Part Of The Lobbying Effort.” “What was known as an additional lobbyist in 2010 is now known as an individual lobbyist following the implementation of JCOPE’s Comprehensive Lobbying Regulations in January 2019, according to JCOPE spokesman Walt McClure. Both terms refer to someone who works for a ‘Principal Lobbyist,’ McClure said in an email. In the bi-monthly reports Rose’s campaign published, Malliotakis is listed along with more than 20 names as subordinate to a Con Ed lobbyist, who is no longer with the company. ‘When a Principal Lobbyist files a Statement of Registration or a Lobbyist Bi-Monthly Report, they are required to list the names of those additional/individual lobbyists who are working for them as part of the lobbying effort on behalf of a particular client (or themselves, in the case of an entity that lobbies on its own behalf),’ McClure said.” Staten Island Advance, [7/10/20]

“Additional Lobbyists” Were Considered “Registered Lobbyists” According To The New York Joint Commission On Public Ethics, Which Was Established After Malliotakis Worked For Con Ed. “According to McClure, additional lobbyists were considered registered and required to take a training course every three years. However, JCOPE was only established in 2011, when Malliotakis had already taken office in the Assembly.” Staten Island Advance, [7/10/20]

August 2010: Malliotakis’ Incumbent State Assembly Opponent Janele Hyer-Spencer Said That Malliotakis “Came To [Her] In [Her] Office To Lobby For The Grid And Increased Con Ed Rates.” “In her campaign for the East Shore/Brooklyn Assembly seat, Republican Nicole Malliotakis has slammed incumbent Janele Hyer-Spencer, a Democrat, for taking campaign contributions from ‘special interests.’ But Ms. Hyer-Spencer said that

her challenger's status as a registered lobbyist for Consolidated Edison is proof that Ms. Malliotakis has special interests of her own. [...] Ms. Hyer-Spencer also said that Ms. Malliotakis at one time 'came to me in my office to lobby for the grid and increased Con Ed rates.'" Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

But Ms. Malliotakis said that the meeting occurred three years ago, and that she was there to give a standard informational presentation on how the Con Edison electrical system functions. 'It had nothing to do with lobbying for a rate increase,' she said, adding that she was not registered with the integrity commission when the meeting took place. Ms. Malliotakis said she was the Staten Island public affairs manager for the utility at the time, and that Con Edison held such meetings with lawmakers each year before the beginning of the summer cooling season. Ms. Malliotakis said that was the 'only time I've ever met with her.'" Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

2010: Malliotakis Denied That She Was A Registered Lobbyist And Said She Only Worked Indirectly On Con Ed's Lobbying. "But Ms. Malliotakis said that she is 'not a registered lobbyist' and does not meet with elected officials as part of her job. She said that anybody at Con Edison who works even indirectly on the utility's lobbying efforts — such as preparing research or other information for use by Con Edison's listed principal lobbyist, John Banks — is required by law to be listed with the commission. 'She is misrepresenting me,' said Ms. Malliotakis." Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

July 2020: Con Ed Spokesperson Alfonso Quiroz Confirmed That Malliotakis Worked For The Company's Government Relations Team And "Attended Meetings Where Lobbying Took Place." "Lobbying accusations have followed Nicole Malliotakis throughout her life in politics, and the assemblywoman has tried to distance herself from the label. Most recently, the campaign of her opponent in the upcoming congressional election, Rep. Max Rose (D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn), published four documents from 2010 showing her listed as an 'additional lobbyist' for Con Edison, where Malliotakis (R-East Shore/South Brooklyn) once worked. Con Ed confirmed the veracity of those documents on June 29, and the company issued the following statement on Malliotakis' four years with the organization: 'Nicole worked as a manager in the company's Issues Management group in Government Relations and attended meetings where lobbying took place,' spokesman Alfonso Quiroz wrote in an email." July 2020: Malliotakis' Campaign Denied That She Was Ever A "Registered Lobbyist" For Con Ed And Said She Was Listed As An "Additional Lobbyist" "Out Of An Abundance Of Caution." "Malliotakis' campaign spokesman Rob Ryan issued a statement Monday continuing the attempts to distance the candidate from common perceptions of lobbying work like expensive meals and backroom deals. 'The facts are clear; Nicole Malliotakis was never a 'registered lobbyist,' Con Ed, out of an abundance of caution, listed her as an 'additional lobbyist' along with engineers, planners and designers who provided information from their departments to those who briefed elected officials,' he said." - New York Was One Of Only 10 States That Lacked A Public Advocate For Utilities. “Ferris, who works for AARP, has spearheaded a campaign to give a voice to those who struggle to pay increasingly heavyweight utility bills. To do that he’s supporting a bill in the New York State Legislature that would finally guarantee a place for ratepayers at the regulatory table and while AARP is the signature organization for seniors, it's a fight they've taken on for all ratepayers in the state. It's a modern twist on the old battle cry of the American colonists – 'no taxation without representation-' but in this version the AARP has called for representation via a public advocate's office - independent and insulated from political pressure - that can ensure transparency and accountability whenever the utilities (all seven of them) belly up to the regulatory bar looking for rubber stamp approval for rate hikes. New York State is only one of ten states - and by far, the largest - that lacks this sort of consumer protection." Huffington Post, [6/30/16]

The bill's memo noted "This bill would protect consumers that pay their utility bills to an authorized payment agent. Under present law, if certain kinds of payment agents fail to remit utility payments promptly, consumers could be forced to pay the same bills twice or suffer disconnection, late penalties or other charges. This bill would not only prevent these results, but also avoid utility rate increases due to credit losses occurring when payment agents fail to remit payments to the utility." - Without The Bill, Homeowners Would Have Been Forced To Pay For Defective Water Lines That The Department Of Environmental Protection Found Were The Fault Of A Utility Company. "As well, under current law, the homeowners still bear the responsibility and financial cost of repeatedly replacing their water pipes, despite determinations by the Department of Environmental Protection that a public utility is at fault. Without any ability to cure the stray current causing damage to their water pipes, the homeowners at each site have been forced to continually replace their pipes or experiment with different technology in hopes of preventing the continual leaks. Some homeowners have had to replace their pipes up to 3 times. The cost to some of the homeowners, has been over ten thousand dollars each. Homeowners should not be burdened by damages and costs that are of no fault of their own but are the fault of a public utility company, whose are responsible for maintaining their own infrastructure." Since fixing every known leak, which requires pipes be ripped up and replaced, is expensive, utilities were being allowed to backlog a certain number of leaks. Malliotakis Claimed To Oppose Public Campaign Financing, But Repeatedly Used Public Resources To Bolster Her Own Campaigns

Malliotakis Called Public Campaign Financing A “Form Of Embezzlement” That Would Increase Corruption...

March 2021: Malliotakis Called Public Campaign Financing A “Form Of Embezzlement” That Would Abuse Taxpayers And Increase Corruption. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] This bill shamefully allows candidates for Congress to use tax dollars to fund campaigns with a $6 match for every $1 raised. Any normal person would call this a form of embezzlement. Tax dollars are supposed to be used to maintain our transportation infrastructure, fund our schools, and keep the public safe, not to fund campaigns. As a representative from New York City, which has public financing of campaigns, and as a former candidate for mayor, I can tell you that it does nothing to take big money out of politics, and it does nothing to level the playing field. Bill de Blasio still received big donations bundled by lobbyists and special interests, and I would have still been outspent four to one with or without matching funds. Using taxpayer money to fund political campaigns is not only wrong; it is an abuse of taxpayers and has led to more corruption. Multiple candidates and elected officials in New York City were convicted for exploiting the system and developing schemes to illegally pad their campaigns with taxpayer money.” Malliotakis Floor Statement via C-SPAN, [3/3/21] (VIDEO) 28:09

- March 2021: Malliotakis Called Public Campaign Financing “Embezzlement” In A Tweet. “Hold on to your wallets! Nancy Pelosi is at it again. This time she wants to use your money to fund congressional campaigns by taking $6 in tax dollars for every $1 raised. To normal people, this is embezzlement. It’s a failure in NYC and it will be a failure for the nation.”

If it's 50 Democratic senators with Kamala Harris, the deciding, you know, the tie - breaking the tie? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, think about all the policies that Nancy Pelosi and the House Democrats put up on the floor last year. They wanted to use your taxpayer money to fund political campaigns. Imagine your tax dollars going to fund the socialist squad's campaigns to the tune of up to $5 million per candidate.” Fox News, [1/5/21] (VIDEO) :25

- Malliotakis Opposed Taxpayer Funding For “Phone Calls Our Friends And Neighbors Don’t Want, Mailers That Fill Up Garbage Cans And Signs That Blow Across The Roadways.” “When the PECF was first established in the 1970s, the participation rate only reached around 27 percent. Since then, participation has been steadily declining, and since 2000, overall participation has averaged about 12 percent. Put into real numbers, this only amounts to roughly $11.8 million. The remaining cost, potentially $450 million, would have to be made up by other revenue sources and that means a bigger tax bill for hard-working families. Instead of wasting hundreds of millions of dollars to pay for phone calls our friends and neighbors don’t want, mailers that fill up garbage cans and signs that blow across the roadways, we could instead be investing that money into programs that our constituents rely on every day.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis and Joseph Borelli Op-Ed, [4/1/14]

Malliotakis Partially Used A Belated Public Campaign Finance Payment Of $15,118 To Pay Off The Fines.

“Under the public matching funds system, which provides taxpayer dollars to eligible candidates, Malliotakis received a belated payment of $15,118 from NYCCFB on Thursday, meaning she is only responsible for paying $11,601 in fines, according to the board.” New York Daily News, [11/19/20]

She took out $13,356 in ads that ran on 1010 WINS from Dec. 7 — a day after Democratic former Rep. Max Rose announced he’s challenging her for his old seat — through Jan. 2. The Staten Island Democrat is preparing to launch a rematch as soon as this fall against GOP Rep. It's a rare spot of optimism for House Democrats in the uphill battle to keep their majority. - A Day After Rose Announced He Would Run Against Malliotakis, Her Congressional Office Spent A Total Of $26,646 On Radio Spots That A Good Government Group Described As "Campaign Ads." "But around the same time, Malliotakis used thousands of dollars in government funds for what a good-government group described as 'campaign ads' herself, the Daily News has learned. She took out $13,356 in ads that ran on 1010 WINS from Dec. 7 — a day after Democratic former Rep. Max Rose announced he's challenging her for his old seat — through Jan. 2. She also spent $13,290 of her office's funds on ads on 106.7 FM that ran starting on the same date. The radio spots highlighted her conservative stances on issues from the defense budget to 'election integrity.'" New York Daily News, [1/11/22]

It stated her ads were 'compliant with the regulations and ... official in nature, referencing her policy work and positions in Congress.' After News Broke That Rose Planned To Challenge Malliotakis, Her Congressional Office’s Franking Increased Dramatically

9/16/21: Politico Reported That Max Rose Was “Plotting A Comeback Bid” And Had Begun Hiring Campaign Staff. “Max Rose is officially plotting a comeback bid. The Staten Island Democrat is preparing to launch a rematch as soon as this fall against GOP Rep. Nicole Malliotakis — and Rose may get a leg up, given the seat will likely become far more favorable in redistricting. It’s a rare spot of optimism for House Democrats in the uphill battle to keep their majority. [...] Rose has begun hiring a campaign team since leaving his post on President Joe Biden’s Covid task force in June, as well as reaching out to supporters in anticipation of another run, according to sources close to the former congressman. ‘He’s rocking and rolling,’ said a source close to Rose who addressed the planned campaign on condition of anonymity. ‘He’s been assembling a team, talking to donors, speaking with community leaders. He’s been doing all the steps to line up to potentially make an announcement.’” Politico, [9/16/21]

House Ethics Rules Prohibited Members From Using Official Resources On Campaign Activities, Including Photos On Capitol Grounds And Content Originally Published By House Offices Under Certain Conditions

The House Ethics Committee Prohibited Use Of Official Resources In Campaign Activities. “Official resources of the House must, as a general rule, be used for the performance of official business of the House, and hence those resources may not be used for campaign or political purposes. The laws and rules referenced in this section reflect ‘the basic principle that government funds should not be spent to help incumbents gain reelection.’” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The Ethics Committee Directed Incumbents To Remove “Official Indica,” Like Letterheads, And Official Contact Information, From Materials It Distributed That Were Originally Published By Their House Offices. “A separate question that arises at times is whether a Member’s campaign, having received a copy of an item that the congressional office issued publicly – such as a press release or Congressional Record statement – may then reproduce and distribute that item at campaign expense. The Committee addressed this matter in its Advisory Opinion No. 6, which was issued on September 14, 1982, and is reprinted in updated form in the

appendices. A Member's campaign is free to reproduce and distribute, for campaign purposes, materials that were originally prepared by the congressional office, provided that the following requirements are satisfied: The materials were prepared by the congressional office for a bona fide official purpose, and the official use of the materials has been exhausted; All the expenses associated with reproducing and distributing the materials are paid from campaign funds; and The materials themselves or the context in which they are presented clearly establishes their campaign or political purposes and hence their nonofficial use, so that there is no appearance that private funds are supplementing official allowances. In reproducing such materials, the campaign must remove all official indicia, such as the official letterhead from a press release that the congressional office had issued, and any references to the address or telephone number of the congressional office. The name of any congressional staff contact that appeared in the material as issued originally must also be deleted." House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The Ethics Committee Directed Incumbents' Campaigns To Only Repost Content Published By Their House Offices After Its Original Use Was "Exhausted," Usually "A Few Days After" The House Office Posted It.

"Member's campaign is free to reproduce and distribute, for campaign purposes, materials that were originally prepared by the congressional office, provided that the following requirements are satisfied: The materials were prepared by the congressional office for a bona fide official purpose, and the official use of the materials has been exhausted; [...] A question may arise as to when the official use of an item has been 'exhausted' as that term is used here. As a general matter, the official use of the normal press release is exhausted once it has been disseminated and the media have had an opportunity to utilize its contents. Thus usually a campaign will be able to reproduce the contents of congressional office press releases a few days after their original issuance, provided that the other requirements set forth above are satisfied." House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The House Ethics Committee Considered Content Taken On Or Near Capitol Grounds An Official Resource And Prohibited Its Use In Campaigns.

"The House buildings, and House rooms and offices – including district offices – are supported with official funds and hence are considered official resources. Accordingly, as a general rule, they may not be used for the conduct of campaign or political activities. Thus, for example, a Member may not film a campaign commercial or have campaign photos taken in a congressional office. For rules on filming and taking of photos on grounds near the Capitol, the office of the Sergeant at Arms should be contacted. In addition, House rooms and offices are not to be used for events that are campaign or political in nature, such as a meeting on campaign strategy, or a reception for campaign contributors." Malliotakis Supported Two-Way Tolling On The Verrazzano Bridge In 2019, Then Opposed It By January 2020

March 2019: Malliotakis Signed A Letter To Cuomo In Support Of Two-Way Tolling. "A source close to Rose showed the Home Reporter a March 25 letter to Gov. Andrew Cuomo that was signed by a bipartisan group of elected officials in Brooklyn and Staten Island, including Malliotakis, stating their 'strong support' for a two-way toll system and asking the governor to endorse it." Brooklyn Reporter, [12/18/19]

- Malliotakis Said She Changed Her Mind On Two-Way Tolling After Reading An MTA Study That Projected 4,000 Vehicles Would Congest South Brooklyn Traffic During Rush Hour. "Malliotakis is opposed to the split-tolling plan, calling it a 'two-way toll scheme' that will result in 4,000 additional vehicles clogging Southwest Brooklyn streets during evening rush hours. Malliotakis cited a recent study by the Metropolitan Transportation Authority when she presented the 4,000 vehicle figure. 'Traffic is already a nightmare. It's going to get worse,' she told the Home Reporter. [...] Malliotakis said she decided to oppose two-way tolling after reading the MTA study." Brooklyn Reporter, [12/18/19]
- Rose: Malliotakis "Continues To Misinform The People Of Staten Island About The Contents Of The MTA Study." "Now, it's not surprising that Malliotakis continues to misinform the people of Staten Island about the contents of the MTA study, despite the report being public for months now. The study projects a decrease of 4,000 vehicles traveling into Brooklyn every morning. That's more than a million fewer vehicles on the Staten Island Expressway every year, 85% of which would be out-of-state cars and trucks taking advantage of the toll-free route across Staten Island and into Manhattan. To quote from the MTA report, 'during the AM peak hour, the SIE is heavily congested and operates at a very low level of service. A relatively small decrease in traffic volumes during the AM peak hour may result in better traffic flow and thus better travel speeds.'" Staten Island Advance, Max Rose Op-Ed, [1/22/20]

January 2020: Malliotakis Opposed Two-Way Tolling On The Verrazzano Bridge, Which She Said Would Not Reduce Traffic And Increase Toll Costs For Staten Islanders. "That's why, when the MTA's chairman joined a news conference last April, under the Verrazzano Bridge, with Reps. Max Rose, Jerry Nadler and Nydia Velazquez, to inform us that two-way tolling was a good thing for Staten Island, I was skeptical of their bureaucratic double-talk and knew instantly that their claims had to be verified. [...] The MTA claims it stands to gain an additional $12 million in revenue from the change. But what does Staten Island and Southern Brooklyn get from the windfall? Nothing! The sad reality is that our congressman has been hoodwinked by the MTA, Rep. Nadler and Rep. Velazquez and it's all at our expense. Two-way tolling won't reduce our congestion or increase vehicle speeds and the projected $12 million increase will be gobbled-up by the MTA and will never be used to reduce the sky-high tolls." June 2015: Malliotakis Voted Against Requiring Certain Parents To Vaccinate Their Children Against Meningococcal Disease. On June 17, 2015, Malliotakis voted "no" on S04324, a bill that required certain parents to ensure the immunization of their children against meningococcal disease. The bill passed the Assembly 111 to 29 and was signed into law on October 26, 2015. 2019: Malliotakis Voted To Prohibit Religious Exemptions From School Vaccine Requirements

June 2019: Malliotakis Voted For Bill Prohibiting Exemptions From Vaccinations Based On Religious Beliefs. On June 13, 2019, Malliotakis voted "Yes" on A02371, a bill that "Relates to exemptions from vaccinations due to religious beliefs; and repeals certain provisions relating to exemption from vaccination due to religious beliefs." The bill passed the Assembly 84-61 and was signed into law on June 13, 2019. New York State Assembly, A02371, Introduced [1/22/19]

Malliotakis Was One Of Only Three Republicans To Vote For Bill Banning Religious And Philosophical Objections To Required School Vaccinations. “New York became the fifth state to ban religious and philosophical objections to vaccines required to attend school. The bill had wide support from New York voters, a Siena College poll this week showed. But opponents of the measure traveled repeatedly to Albany, unsuccessfully urging lawmakers to vote the bill down. The Senate ultimately voted 36-26 to approve the bill, with the Assembly voting in favor 84-61. [...] In the Assembly, 84 members voted in favor of the bill. All were Democrats except three: Assembly members Mark Johns, R-Webster, Monroe County; Colin Schmitt, R-New Windsor, Orange County; and Nicole Malliotakis, R-Staten Island.” New York Journal News, [6/14/19]

- In Response To Protests Over Her Vote, Malliotakis Said School Vaccine Mandates Were “Recommended By Public Health Officials For The Wellbeing And Protection Of All New Yorkers.” “A group of parents, angry about state Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis’ vote to overturn religious exemptions for vaccinations, protested outside of Angelina’s Ristorante in Tottenville Wednesday evening. Malliotakis, R-East Shore/Brooklyn, was reportedly eating at the restaurant as the group stood outside with signs and railed against bill A2371a. Because of the law’s passage in Albany earlier this month, unvaccinated children who previously were allowed to attend school in New York state will now be barred from both public and private learning institutions. [...] The assemblywoman responded by saying, ‘Medical history and science have shown that vaccinations are safe and effective in eradicating a wide range of contagious and deadly diseases. In light of the recent measles outbreak in both the United States and Europe, which has now even infected children here on Staten Island, we are taking the necessary steps recommended by public health officials for the wellbeing and protection of all New Yorkers and require that all students be vaccinated unless there is a medical reason.’” Staten Island Advance, [6/27/19]

September 2021: Malliotakis Advocated Against The New York City Vaccine Mandate, Which She Equated With The “Vaccine Police,” “Segregating Classes Of People,” And “Overreach”

Malliotakis “Led” A Lawsuit By Elected Officials And Business Owners Seeking To Block New York City’s Vaccine Mandate For Restaurants, Bars, Gyms, And Indoor Entertainment Venues. “A week from Monday, people in New York will be required to show proof of vaccination in order to enter restaurants, bars, gyms and other fitness facilities, movie theaters, and live theaters [...] On Friday, Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, a Republican whose district is Staten Island and southwest Brooklyn, led a lawsuit by elected officials and business owners from Staten Island that attempts to block the vaccination pass from being implemented. ‘The government shouldn’t be imposing such a mandate on its people and on the small business owners,’ Malliotakis said at a rally in Staten Island with leaders of some of the groups that filed the lawsuit.” PIX 11, [8/6/21]

They were not made here. September 2021: Malliotakis: The Mayor’s “Vaccine Mandate Is A Government Overreach And Places An Undue Burden On Small Businesses To Be The ‘Vaccine Police.’” “Through a spokesperson, Malliotakis stressed a need for vaccine ‘encouragement’ as opposed to enforcement. ‘I am vaccinated, my family is vaccinated, my office has sponsored several pop-up clinics and we helped well over 650 constituents make vaccine appointments,’ she said. ‘However, [the mayor’s] vaccine mandate is a government overreach and places an undue burden on small businesses to be the ‘vaccine police.’ We should continue to encourage the vaccine but not mandate it.’” Brooklyn Paper, [9/30/21]

September 2021: Malliotakis Said The NYC Vaccine Mandate Was “Segregating Classes Of People.” “Friday on Fox Business Network’s ‘Varney & Company,’ Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-NY) addressed the New York City coronavirus vaccine mandate for indoor spaces, which went into effect this week. [...] ‘When I was on your show a couple of weeks ago, I said that I was opposed to this vaccine mandate because, number one, it’s just unfair. You are segregating classes of people, and you’re also hurting these small businesses that have bore the brunt of these mandates throughout the entire pandemic despite the fact that it’s 1%, science shows, 1% is traced back to restaurants. I’ve spoken to business owners in my district who are either closing their indoor area or they have had party cancellations, and they are suffering because they don’t have the staffing to be able to check these and ensure that they are authentic. December 2015: Malliotakis: “I Would Be Concerned About Running With Donald Trump At The Top Of The Ticket Because We Are In The Position Of Having To Defend Everything He Says, And He Says Some Pretty Divisive Things.” “Former Hewlett-Packard CEO Carly Fiorina last month announced a New York leadership team with two former members of Congress. Texas Sen. Ted Cruz and former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush also are courting GOP leaders in the state. Florida Sen. She also cited tax reform plans to end the deduction of local property taxes as a 'major issue' that could harm New Yorkers. 'I have no problem saying it, I have said it when I disagree,' she said. 'I think that it's important to be diplomatic and disagree respectfully. We still have to have a relationship with Washington just like we have to have a relationship with Albany and the governor. I do believe that the mayor has a bad relationship with both and that the people of New York City suffer as a result.'" New York Daily News, [9/18/17]

The Save Democracy Act would enhance federal election integrity by addressing three key areas of concern during the 2020 election to eliminate all doubt in the future. These three areas include securing voter registration by requiring citizenship verification and prohibiting automatic registration by states. It protects ballot casting by prohibiting states from issuing unrequested absentee ballots and halts questionable harvesting tactics. It safeguards ballot tabulation by requiring that at least two representatives of each Presidential campaign observe polls and vote counting operations and prohibits delays or pauses in ballot tabulation once counting has begun. Malliotakis Voted Against Certifying 2020 Election Results, Amplified Voter Fraud Claims, And Refused To Recognize Biden As The President-Elect Before January 6, 2021

Before The Capitol Insurrection, Malliotakis Claimed Voter Fraud Affected The 2020 Election And Supported Investigations Into It

December 2020: Malliotakis Signed A Letter In Support Of A Congressional Investigation Into Voter Fraud Claims During The 2020 Election

December 2020: Malliotakis Signed A Letter With 25 Other Incoming Republican Members Of Congress In Support Of A Congressional Investigation Into Voter Fraud Claims During The 2020 Election.

“Congresswoman-elect Nicole Malliotakis joined 25 of her fellow incoming Republican members of Congress in a letter Tuesday calling for a congressional investigation into the 2020 election. In the letter to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi (D-California), Malliotakis and the others, who were all elected Nov. 3, wrote that the nation’s election process had ‘devolved into chaos,’ and that their constituents are ‘deeply concerned’ about election integrity.” Staten Island Advance, [12/17/20]

The Letter Claimed That The Election “Devolved Into Chaos” And That There Were “Verified Reports” Of Invalid Absentee Ballots, Missing Voting Machine Memory Cards, And Restrictions On Election Observers.

In a letter to Nancy Pelosi signed by Malliotakis, a group of freshmen Republicans wrote, “As the members-elect of the 117th Congress, we urge you to promptly act to support the integrity of our election process. Multiple states engaged in litigation and thousands of witnesses have submitted sworn affidavits of reported fraud related to the 2020 presidential election. One thing is clear – our elections process has devolved into chaos. As elected representatives of the People’s House, we are tasked with voicing the concerns of our constituents, and they are deeply concerned about the integrity of our elections. [...] In the 2020 election, we have verified reports of: • Absentee and mail-in ballots with missing or unverified signatures • Missing and unaccounted voting machine memory cards • Restrictions on bipartisan election observers during critical phases of the election process” Letter to Nancy Pelosi via Axios, [12/15/20]

November 2020: Malliotakis Denied That Trump Was Attempting To “Undermine” The 2020 Election

November 2020: When Asked If It Concerned Her That Trump Was Attempting To Overturn An Election That She Won, Malliotakis Responded, “I Don’t Believe That The President Is Undermining Anything.”

“[BASH:] Does it concern you that the president is undermining the results of an election that both of you won? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don’t believe that the president is undermining anything. I believe that he is within his legal rights to be questioning any irregularities that have -- may have surfaced. Look, this is a legal process. This is the Constitution. This should be all settled in December. And the president said, should Joe Biden be elected by the electors, that he will conform with a peaceful transition. I think that’s very important. But in order for us to work together and to have bipartisanship, we need the public to have trust in our system. And this really is the -- about the integrity of our election system. And like Nancy says, I look forward to working with anybody and everybody who’s going to work with us for the American people, when all is said and done.” CNN, [11/29/20] (VIDEO) 8:48

12/7/20: Malliotakis On Voter Fraud Claims And Investigations: “There Are Witnesses That Have Come Forward And That Needs To Be Thoroughly Investigated. I Find There’s Nothing Wrong With That.”

“[MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe we will know the President-elect when we have all our Electoral College votes cast. I believe that there are irregularities that are being investigated. December 2020: Malliotakis Refused To Say Whether Voter Fraud Occurred In States Other Than New York

December 2020: When Asked If There Was Voter Fraud In The 2020 Election, Malliotakis Said She Was “Not Privy To The Evidence That The Legal Team Has” And That She “Can’t Speak To What’s Happening In Other States.”

“[HOST:] Do you believe, though, that this presidential election, the 2020 presidential election had voting irregularities that we haven’t seen before? Do you think that, that something specific happened during this election? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I’m not privy to the evidence that the legal team has. What I can say is that things were done very differently this year because of the pandemic and so many of the absentee ballot processes were changed. I can tell you here in New York there were a couple of dead voters who did cast absentee ballots that we identified in my particular, in my particular race. So, but I can’t speak to what’s happening in other states. That’s for the members of the state legislature and the judicial system to be able to thoroughly investigate.” GMA 3 via GMA 3 Facebook, [12/7/20] (VIDEO) 1:27

“Holding a surprisingly large lead on election night, Nicole Malliotakis declared victory over Max Rose in their bitter race for Congress on Staten Island. ‘We have returned the 11th Congressional District to Republican hands,’ Nicole Malliotakis told a crowd of her supporters late Tuesday night. Rose, the Democratic incumbent, has not conceded, citing that at least 40,000 absentee ballots still need to be counted. Max Rose, denying the Democrat a second term representing one of the few conservative-leaning parts of New York City. Malliotakis, a New York State Assembly member, opened a big lead over Rose on Election Day in a district that includes all of Staten Island and part of Brooklyn. She declared victory on Nov. 3 and Rose conceded the race Nov. 12, but The Associated Press didn’t call the race until Tuesday because New York City’s Board of Elections refused for weeks to publicly release information about its count of a large number of absentee ballots.” Associated Press, [12/1/20]

11/17/20: Malliotakis Said Of Presidential Election Results, “There Is No Reason To Rush The Issue” And Added That Trump Had A “Right To Wait For A Complete Count And Certification Of The Results.” “But Ms. Malliotakis has yet to acknowledge Joseph R. Biden Jr. as the president-elect, nor has she publicly disputed President Trump’s baseless claims of widespread voter fraud. ‘There is no reason to rush the issue,’ she said in a statement on Monday. ‘President Trump and his team have every legal right to wait for a complete count and certification of the results.’” New York Times, [11/17/20]

Between November 2020 And January 5, 2021, Malliotakis Refused To Say Whether Biden Won The 2020 Election

1/5/21: Malliotakis Did Not Answer Direct Questions About Whether She Believed Biden Won The 2020 Election Or If He Would Be Sworn In. “On Tuesday, Malliotakis’ office did not answer a request for comment on which states she intends to object to. Nor did her emailed response answer direct questions on whether she believes Joe Biden won the election or if a Democrat will take office on Jan. 20 — the constitutionally-mandated inauguration day ratified in the 20th Amendment.” Staten Island Advance, [1/5/21]

12/7/20: When Asked If She Recognized Biden As The President-Elect, Malliotakis Said, “I Believe We Will Know The President-Elect When We Have All Our Electoral College Votes Cast.” “[HOST:] Want to start off by talking about the presidential election results. Do you believe that the president has won, and do you believe his claims are valid?

[MALLIOTAKIS:] Here in my district, we found two dead Democrats that voted. We want to make sure that all the ballots are counted, but that they're legitimate. 1/4/21 – 1/5/21: Malliotakis Announced She Would Vote Against Certifying 2020 Election Results For “Some Of These States” And Declined to Elaborate Further

1/4/21: Malliotakis: “I Don’t See A Situation In Which I Don’t Object To At Least Some Of These States.” “[McCULLOUGH:] What do you make of this electoral challenge that we’ll see the day after the Georgia election? [MALLIOTAKIS:] [...] On Wednesday, Leader McCarthy has told us to do what we believe is the right thing for our constituents, what we believe is the right thing. Look, I’m among the freshmen who have written to Nancy Pelosi to express outrage with what have occurred in this election process and that we need to have an investigation. We need to be transparent about it, that’s just what Americans want. It may not be enough votes to overturn the election, it may be. It could be ten votes, it could be 10,000 votes or 100,000 votes. Really what this is about is the integrity of the system and ensuring that every vote that is counted is a legal one, and we need to ensure that those votes that are counted are illegal are prosecuted, and that’s what this really is about more than anything. So look, I don’t see a situation in which I don’t object to at least some of these states, but I’m going to be thoughtful and mindful and listen to the entire debate on Wednesday, and I look forward to providing some clarity for the American people.” Kevin McCullough Radio, [1/4/21] (AUDIO) 3:05

[...] ‘I don’t see a situation where I don’t object to some of these states,’ the recently elected congresswoman said during a Monday interview with Kevin McCullough on AM 570. 1/21/21: Malliotakis Said She Went Into The Floor Discussion Before Voting Against Certifying The Results Of The 2020 Election “With An Open Mind.” “[BURNETT:] So how do you square saying you want to work with President Biden when you were questioning the legitimacy of the election on January 6th? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I went into that floor discussion with an open mind. You know, I didn't personally sign any objections, but I said I was going to listen to what was brought and discussed on the floor. Certainly constituents of mine had expressed concerns about irregularities, there would be concerns about absentee ballots being mailed to individuals who didn't request them, some individuals going to vote and their names were already accounted for in terms of somebody who had voted. And so, I think that there are tens of millions of Americans out there who had concerns and wanted to have hearings on this issue.” CNN, [1/21/21]

1/6/21: Malliotakis Voted Against Certifying Election Results In Arizona And Pennsylvania, She Later Said She Did Because “Court Cases In Those States Had Not Been Heard”

Malliotakis Voted To Object To The Counting Of 2020 Electoral Votes From Pennsylvania And Arizona

Malliotakis Voted For Objecting To The Counting Of 2020 Electoral Votes From Pennsylvania. In January 2021, Malliotakis voted for the “Rep. Perry, R-Pa., and Sen. Hawley, R-Mo., objection to the counting of electoral votes from the state of Pennsylvania during the joint session of Congress, on the grounds that they were not, under all of the known circumstances, regularly given.” The objection was rejected, 138-282. January 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certification Of Election Results Because “There Had Been Court Cases In Those States That Had Not Been Heard” And The States Violated Their Constitutions

1/21/21: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certification Of Election Results Because “There Had Been Court Cases In Those States That Had Not Been Heard.” “[BURNETT:] So -- so how do you bring the desire to make sure everything is done and every vote that counts -- that should count, counts with actually objecting the results of an election in states that aren't even yours? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, again, these states were objected to by members within the House. And I listened and I -- I decided to vote along -- against the certification because I did believe, in those two particular states -- by the way, states that violated their state constitutions and the U.S. Constitution -- they changed rules without the proper approval of the state legislature. There had been court cases in those states that had not been heard. In fact, a case in Arizona was never heard due to a time issue because there was a deadline for certification. December 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certifying Electors From Arizona And Pennsylvania Because They Violated Their State Constitutions. “[ANCHOR:] On January 6, right after the attack on the Capitol, in an attempt to overturn the results of the election, you voted to throw out the electoral votes of two states, and then later voted against creating a panel to investigate the attack. Do you think the riot represented a fundamental attack on democracy? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly I was in the Capitol that day, and I was obviously very concerned about what occurred, but the reality is that vote on January 6, was simply an interpretation of the Constitution. Those two states violated the Constitution, and therefore I voted because to not uphold the electors for those two particular states. [ANCHOR:] What states violated the Constitution, how did that happen? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, Arizona and Pennsylvania, according to the Constitution, the electors need to be decided by the state legislature in those two states. They didn't do that, they circumvented the legislature. And that is why it was a violation. It's a simple reading of the constitution of those two states.” NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 9:25

October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Dead People “Managed To Vote” In Her Election In 2020 And Said Proposal 4 Would Make The Problem Worse By Allowing Universal Absentee Voting. “In my race last year, by the way, you remember the New York Post wrote an article about how there were a couple of dead people who managed to vote in our election as well. November 2020: The New York Post Reported That Two Ballots In NY-11 Appeared To Be Requested From Deceased Registered Democrats Frances Reckhow And Gertrude Nizzere. "Ballots have been mailed in to the New York City Board of Elections in the name of dead voters, The Post has learned. Records show that the elections board received an absentee ballot from a Frances Reckhow of Staten Island, a registered Democrat. The BOE mailed an absentee ballot requested by Frances M. After The Insurrection, Malliotakis Denied She Spread Claims Of "Widespread" Voter Fraud Or Intended To Overturn The Election, And Recognized Biden As President-Elect

"[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, look, it doesn't matter to me if it was one vote, 10 votes, or 10,000 votes, the American people deserve to know. One vote that's fraudulent is one too many. And by the way, those two states, without those electoral votes, President Biden would still be president today. And so, it wouldn't have changed any outcome of the election. And that was never my intention. And by the way, Democrats since 1989 have challenged the electoral vote of every single Republican president. So, I see that there's a double standard here when it comes to that process that we have on the House floor and our ability to certify and our requirement to either certify or not certify." After January 6, 2021, Malliotakis Denied That She Ever Claimed There Was “Widespread [Voter] Fraud” In The 2020 Election And Refused To Say Whether She Believed Trump’s Fraud Claims

After January 6, 2021, Malliotakis Denied That She Ever Claimed There Was “Widespread [Voter] Fraud” In The 2020 Election, But There Were “Irregularities That We Need To Crack Down On”

1/21/21: Malliotakis: “I Have Never Said Anything About Widespread Fraud” In The 2020 Election. “[BURNETT:] Yes, again -- again -- again, I just -- I just -- I just want to make sure that -- that -- that you are clear there was no widespread fraud? There is no question about what happened in this election, and that is very different than saying we - [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don't - I don't think - (CROSSTALK) BURNETT: -- want to make sure that every vote counts that should count and every vote that shouldn't, shouldn't. Those are -- those are two very different things to talk about. MALLIOTAKIS: Absolutely. Well, absolutely. And I have never -- I have never said anything about widespread fraud. I've said that there have been certain irregularities that need to be looked at closer and that the American people deserve to know if -- if that took place in this election.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) 4:18

[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, look, I think that, like many Americans, that people have concerns about individuals who are not citizens voting or people getting absentee ballots that they didn't request, people going -- making their way to the -- the booth in the wrong district and voting. You know, these are things that do happen and -- and you know, I think we can agree on that, that there are these irregularities. I think it's how do we crack down on it and how do we safeguard our election system to make sure that it is -- it is one of integrity? And again, I don't think -- I think widespread fraud is a totally different thing.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) 5:20

[MALLIOTAKIS:] I think the Vice President did what he was constitutionally required to do. Look, I was among those who voted against certification for the two questionable states. I have serious concerns about what has occurred in those states. The states' rights do not supersede law and the Constitution, and there are a number of irregularities, there are a number of changes made that many people believe led to fraud. 1/7/21: When Asked If The 2020 Election Was Stolen From Trump, Malliotakis Responded By Saying It Was Irrelevant Whether Allegations Of Voter Fraud Were Sufficient To Overturn The Election. “[HOST:] What precipitated the violence in the Capitol was the ‘Stop the Steal’ rally early in the day. Do you feel that it was stolen from Donald Trump? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe that it doesn't matter whether it was ten votes, 10,000 votes, or enough to overturn the election. I think what occurred in these particular states needs to be investigated.

[HOST:] And it will be. [MALLIOTAKIS:] And they did not have their day in court. Malliotakis Dodged Questions About Whether The Capitol Insurrection Represented An Attack On Democracy Or “Legitimate Political Discourse”

December 2021: When Asked If The Insurrection Represented An “Attack On Democracy,” Malliotakis Did Not Directly Answer, Pivoting To Claim Her “Vote On January 6th Was Simply An Interpretation Of The Constitution.” “[ANCHOR:] On January 6, right after the attack on the Capitol, in an attempt to overturn the results of the election, you voted to throw out the electoral votes of two states, and then later voted against creating a panel to investigate the attack. Do you think the riot represented a fundamental attack on democracy? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly I was in the Capitol that day, and I was obviously very concerned about what occurred, but the reality is that vote on January 6, was simply an interpretation of the Constitution. Those two states violated the Constitution, and therefore I voted because to not uphold the electors for those two particular states. [ANCHOR:] What states violated the Constitution, how did that happen? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, Arizona and Pennsylvania, according to the Constitution, the electors need to be decided by the state legislature in those two states. Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Bipartisan, 9/11-Style Commission To Investigate January 6th Attack, Which She Claimed Was Redundant And Politicized

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Bipartisan, 9/11-Style Commission To Investigate January 6th Attack

Malliotakis Voted Against A Bill Establishing A Bipartisan Commission To Investigate The January 6, 2021 Attack On The U.S. Capitol. In May 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill that would establish a national commission to investigate facts and causes related to the Jan. 6, 2021, “domestic terrorist attack” on the U.S. Capitol; examine and evaluate evidence developed by relevant federal, state and local governmental agencies; and build upon the investigations of other entities. It would require the commission to investigate facts and circumstances of the attack related to intelligence and law enforcement agency activities and factors contributing to the attack, including online platforms and foreign influence operations; identify and analyze the causes of and lessons learned from the attack with regard to law enforcement operations and security protocol at the Capitol; and submit to the president and Congress reports containing findings and recommendations for corrective measures that are agreed to by a majority of the commission. The commission would be composed of ten members, evenly chosen by the majority and minority parties, who have national recognition and significant experience in at least two subject areas related to the attack, such as law enforcement, intelligence, law, civil rights and counterterrorism. Among other provisions, the bill would authorize the commission to issue subpoenas and hold hearings and specify that the commission would submit its final report by the end of 2021 and terminate 60 days after submitting the report.” The bill passed 252-175. H R 3233, [Vote #154, 5/19/21; CQ, 5/19/21]

Malliotakis Called The Bipartisan Commission To Investigate The January 6th Insurrection “Redundant” And Politicized, Complained It Did Not Investigate Unrelated Riots Earlier In 2020

May 2021: Malliotakis: “I Believe Creating An Additional Commission Is Redundant And Would Interfere With Criminal Prosecutions.” “Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn) and most of her Republican colleagues don't think what the Democratic majority has proposed is the right move. Here's why, according to Staten Island's only congressional representative. ‘At this time, there are several ongoing investigations underway by the Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Department of Homeland Security in which over 400 people have been arrested and charged in connection to the violence and destruction that occurred at the Capitol on January 6,’ she said in an emailed statement. [...] Malliotakis said that in addition to the ongoing criminal investigations that have charged more than 440 people, two ‘bipartisan commissions are underway in the Senate, in which the findings are imminent and expected to be made public within weeks.’ ‘After reading the legislation and consulting with counsel, I believe creating an additional commission is redundant and would interfere with criminal prosecutions,’ she continue. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Because everything Nancy Pelosi does is political. Everything she does is politicized. [ANCHOR:] Okay. Okay. Okay. Okay. Okay. It’s personal, it’s about Nancy Pelosi, you don't care about why five people were killed and dozens were wounded, and a scaffold was set up outside and the Speaker's office was, was ransacked and so forth. You don't want to look into that at all? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think we have a lot of the answers to that already. And that is why people are being prosecuted according to the law. Look, I mean, I think you’re being very political right now in saying this, because Nancy Pelosi set up a committee that is completely political. Malliotakis Criticized The Bill For “Exclud[ing] Other Political Violence Including The Riots That Destroyed Cities Across America Over The Summer.” “Malliotakis' office pointed to 10 amendments Republicans submitted in the House that Democrats rejected as to what they'd like to see added to the legislation. Some of the amendments set deadlines for the commission to issue a report and its funding, while others increase the authority of Republicans on the commission. ‘This bill omits language that would prohibit interference with current criminal investigations and limits the scope to exclude other political violence including the riots that destroyed cities across America over the summer, the vehicular attack against Capitol Police in April, in which an officer was killed, and the attempted murder of Republican Members of Congress in June of 2017,’ she continued.” Staten Island Advance, [5/20/21]

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Select Committee To Investigate January 6th Attack Following The Failure To Establish A Bipartisan Commission

Malliotakis Voted Against The Establishment Of The Select Committee To Investigate The January 6 Attack On The US Capitol. In June 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Agreeing to the resolution that would establish a special committee in the House of Representatives to investigate facts and causes related to the Jan. 6, 2021, ‘domestic terrorist attack’ on the U.S. Capitol; examine and evaluate evidence developed by relevant federal, state and local governmental agencies; and build upon the investigations of other entities. It would require the committee to investigate facts and circumstances of the attack related to intelligence and law enforcement agency activities and factors contributing to the attack, including online platforms and foreign influence operations; identify and analyze the causes of and lessons learned from the attack with regard to law enforcement operations and security protocol at the Capitol; and submit to Congress reports including findings and conclusions of its investigations, legislative recommendations, and recommendations for corrective measures. The resolution would authorize the speaker of the House to appoint 13 members to the committee, including five members after consultation with the minority leader. Among other provisions, it would authorize the committee chair to issue subpoenas, authorize such sums as may be necessary for committee expenses, and specify that the committee would terminate 30 days after filing its final report to Congress.” The bill passed 222 to 190. Big Lie & January 6th Insurrection

National Voter Fraud Claims & Support For Trump's Litigation Of Election Results

November 2020: When Asked If It Concerned Her That Trump Was Attempting To Overturn An Election That She Won, Malliotakis Responded, "I Don't Believe That The President Is Undermining Anything."

"[BASH:] Does it concern you that the president is undermining the results of an election that both of you won? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don't believe that the president is undermining anything. I believe that he is within his legal rights to be questioning any irregularities that have -- may have surfaced. Look, this is a legal process. This is the Constitution. This should be all settled in December. And the president said, should Joe Biden be elected by the electors, that he will conform with a peaceful transition. I think that's very important. But in order for us to work together and to have bipartisanship, we need the public to have trust in our system. And this really is the -- about the integrity of our election system. And like Nancy says, I look forward to working with anybody and everybody who's going to work with us for the American people, when all is said and done." CNN, [11/29/20] (VIDEO) 8:48

12/7/20: Malliotakis On Voter Fraud Claims And Investigations: "There Are Witnesses That Have Come Forward And That Needs To Be Thoroughly Investigated. I, I Find There's Nothing Wrong With That."

"[MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe we will know the President-elect when we have all our Electoral College votes cast. I believe that there are irregularities that are being investigated. I, I find there's nothing wrong with that." GMA 3 via GMA 3 Facebook, [12/7/20] (VIDEO) :42

December 2020: When Asked If There Was Voter Fraud In The 2020 Election, Malliotakis Said She Was "Not Privy To The Evidence That The Legal Team Has" And That She "Can't Speak To What's Happening In Other States."

"[HOST:] Do you believe, though, that this presidential election, the 2020 presidential election had voting irregularities that we haven't seen before? Do you think that, that something specific happened during this election? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I'm not privy to the evidence that the legal team has. What I can say is that things were done very differently this year because of the pandemic and so many of the absentee ballot processes were changed. I can tell you here in New York there were a couple of dead voters who did cast absentee ballots that we identified in my particular, in my particular race. So, but I can't speak to what's happening in other states. That's for the members of the state legislature and the judicial system to be able to thoroughly investigate." 1/7/21: When Asked If The 2020 Election Was Stolen From Trump, Malliotakis Responded By Saying It Was Irrelevant Whether Allegations Of Voter Fraud Were Sufficient To Overturn The Election.

"[HOST:] What precipitated the violence in the Capitol was the 'Stop the Steal' rally early in the day. Do you feel that it was stolen from Donald Trump? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe that it doesn't matter whether it was ten votes, 10,000 votes, or enough to overturn the election. I think what occurred in these particular states needs to be investigated. [HOST:] And it will be. [MALLIOTAKIS:] And they did not have their day in court. As a matter of fact, they were -- they did not have their day in the court, and that's part of the problem, the evidence was never heard due to deadlines, and I think that's why you're seeing so much frustration and why you have tens of thousands of Americans come to the Capitol yesterday. But we do need to move forward now as a nation and work together as much as possible to get our nation back on track, overcome this virus, reopen our economy, and get Americans back to work." 1/21/21: Malliotakis: "I Have Never Said Anything About Widespread Fraud" In The 2020 Election.

"[BURNETT:] Yes, again -- again -- again, I just -- I just -- I just want to make sure that -- that -- that you are clear there was no widespread fraud? There is no question about what happened in this election, and that is very different than saying we - [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don't - I don't think - (CROSSTALK) BURNETT: -- want to make sure that every vote counts that should count and every vote that shouldn't, shouldn't. Those are -- those are two very different things to talk about. MALLIOTAKIS: Absolutely. Well, absolutely. And I have never -- I have never said anything about widespread fraud. I've said that there have been certain irregularities that need to be looked at closer and that the American people deserve to know if -- if that took place in this election." When Asked If She Was “Duped” Into Spreading The Big Lie, Malliotakis Said, “Widespread Fraud Is A Totally Different Thing” And That “There Are Irregularities That We Need To Crack Down On.”

“[BURNETT:] So, what I'm asking you - (CROSSTALK) is do you feel that you got duped and played a little bit in this? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, look, I think that, like many Americans, that people have concerns about individuals who are not citizens voting or people getting absentee ballots that they didn't request, people going -- making their way to the -- the booth in the wrong district and voting. You know, these are things that do happen and -- and you know, I think we can agree on that, that there are these irregularities. I think it's how do we crack down on it and how do we safeguard our election system to make sure that it is -- it is one of integrity? And again, I don't think -- I think widespread fraud is a totally different thing.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) 5:20

Votes Against Election Certification

1/21/21: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certification Of Election Results Because “There Had Been Court Cases In Those States That Had Not Been Heard.” “[BURNETT:] So -- so how do you bring the desire to make sure everything is done and every vote that counts -- that should count, counts with actually objecting the results of an election in states that aren't even yours? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, again, these states were objected to by members within the House. And I listened and I -- I decided to vote along -- against the certification because I did believe, in those two particular states -- by the way, states that violated their state constitutions and the U.S. Constitution -- they changed rules without the proper approval of the state legislature. There had been court cases in those states that had not been heard. In fact, a case in Arizona was never heard due to a time issue because there was a deadline for certification. I think the American people deserve the -- deserve to hear what -- what -- what could be presented.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) :21

December 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certifying Electors From Arizona And Pennsylvania Because They Violated Their State Constitutions. “[ANCHOR:] On January 6, right after the attack on the Capitol, in an attempt to overturn the results of the election, you voted to throw out the electoral votes of two states, and then later voted against creating a panel to investigate the attack. Do you think the riot represented a fundamental attack on democracy? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly I was in the Capitol that day, and I was obviously very concerned about what occurred, but the reality is that vote on January 6, was simply an interpretation of the Constitution. Those two states violated the Constitution, and therefore I voted because to not uphold the electors for those two particular states. [ANCHOR:] What states violated the Constitution, how did that happen? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, Arizona and Pennsylvania, according to the Constitution, the electors need to be decided by the state legislature in those two states. They didn't do that, they circumvented the legislature. And that is why it was a violation. It's a simple reading of the constitution of those two states.” NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 9:25

December 2021: When Asked If The Election Was Wrongly Decided, Malliotakis Only Said That Her Votes Against Election Certification Would Not Have Overturned The Result Of The Election. “[ANCHOR:] You said that those should be thrown out. So you think the election was wrongly decided? Is that true? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Those electors were not determined in accordance to the Constitution and the law. That is what I said. And quite frankly, it wouldn't have changed the outcome of the election wouldn't have made a difference, because it wasn't enough electors to overturn the election.” NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 10:43

was one vote, 10 votes, or 10,000 votes, the American people deserve to know. One vote that's fraudulent is one too many. And by the way, those two states, without those electoral votes, President Biden would still be president today. And so, it wouldn't have changed any outcome of the election. And that was never my intention. And by the way, Democrats since 1989 have challenged the electoral vote of every single Republican president. So, I see that there's a double standard here when it comes to that process that we have on the House floor and our ability to certify and our requirement to either certify or not certify." December 2021: Malliotakis Defended Her Vote Against Certifying Presidential Electors By Saying The Number Of Electors She Opposed Would Not Have Been Enough To Change The Final Result. Refusal To Recognize Biden As President-Elect

"[HOST:] Want to start off by talking about the presidential election results. We have yet to hear President Trump formally concede to Joe Biden. Where do you stand on election results? Do you believe that Joe Biden is, in fact, the President-elect? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe we will know the President-elect when we have all our Electoral College votes cast. 1/7/21: Malliotakis Did Not Directly Answer When Asked Whether Pence Did The Right Thing By Swearing In Biden As The President-Elect And Repeated Her "Serious Concerns" About Election Fraud. "[HOST:] Do you think the Vice President did the right thing in gaveling in Joe Biden as president-elect, and therefore the President was wrong to be angry at him for doing so? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think the Vice President did what he was constitutionally required to do. Look, I was among those who voted against certification for the two questionable states. I have serious concerns about what has occurred in those states. The states' rights do not supersede law and the Constitution, and there are a number of irregularities, there are a number of changes made that many people believe led to fraud. It's personal, it's about Nancy Pelosi, you don't care about why five people were killed and dozens were wounded, and a scaffold was set up outside and the Speaker's office was, was ransacked and so forth. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we’ve been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. December 2021: Malliotakis Said Build Back Better Would Mean “Starting New Entitlement Programs We Can’t Afford,” Including The Child Tax Credit. “[VARNEY:] They’ll try to bring parts of it back. Parts of it could come back. Is there anything you like? [MALLIOTAKIS:] There's not much in there to like, to be honest. Look, it's really riddled with a lot of unnecessary spending, and at the end of the day with the inflation that we're facing, there is no reason to be taking on new entitlement programs. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we've been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. And again, these are hard assets, very different from starting new entitlement programs that we can't afford. And I think Joe Manchin was right, even with the child credit, you know, that is entitled to people who are in the country – they wanted to give that to people illegally, and they also wanted to give it to people who were not working, which defeats the purpose of a child care credit. So I think that we're on the right track right here, we successfully pushed back against the Build Back Better is dead.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [12/20/21] (VIDEO) :56

BBB Salt Deduction Cap Repeal

Malliotakis On Build Back Better: “I Very Much Support Restoring SALT But If It’s Going To Be Tied With A Bunch Of Other Nonsense, I Just Simply Won’t Be Able To Support That Package.” “[SCOTTO:] In that Build Back Better is the SALT deduction which would obviously help people in New York. So are you going to vote against Build Back Better even with the SALT being part of that. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well as you know Roseanna I am one of the founding members of the SALT caucus. I very much support restoring SALT but if it's going to be tied with a bunch of other nonsense, I just simply won't be able to support that package. What good is it to give taxpayers back some money with one hand if we're going to cost them tons of other money with the other hand? So I think we have to see how this debate continues and what ends up in that spending bill and what's taken out. We've seen significant changes already.” Fox 5, via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [11/8/21] (VIDEO) 5:00

Malliotakis Said Democrats Insisting On Including SALT In Reconciliation “Could Essentially Kill The Entire Package.” “MALLIOTAKIS: So that is my number one concern. But I will say also, there are a handful of Democrats from New York, New Jersey, and California who have said they will not vote for any bill unless it contains the SALT deduction. So let's see if they keep their word on that because that could essentially kill the entire package.” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 3:12

Malliotakis On The SALT Deduction: “What Good Is It If We Give Money Back To The Taxpayer On The Federal Level And Then The City And The State Just Increase Taxes.” “[BARTIROMO:] What's the story on the SALT deduction? Do you want that in there? I know that some of your colleagues are pushing for it and in order to pay for it they want this 80,000 new auditors at the IRS, the $80 billion Biden is allocating to the IRS so they can surveil our bank accounts and tell the IRS every transaction $600 or more, that's how they're going to pay for a SALT deduction. Is it in or is it out? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don't know what's going to happen just yet. I'm always in favor of giving more tax dollars back to hardworking New Yorkers, but we also have to make sure that burden is not increased by our mayor and governor. What good is it if we give money back to the taxpayer on the federal level and then the city and the state just increase taxes and take it on their end?” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 2:23

Claims That BBB Was Socialist

October 2021: Malliotakis Said Build Back Better Would “Put Us On A Path Towards Socialism” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It's hard to say what exactly will be in this package. As you know, they keep changing the price tag. It was $3.5 trillion which although with inflation it will be much more. Now they're saying it will be $2 trillion. They keep changing some of the specifics and some of this policy sigh but they still intend to double the number of IRS agents and they still intend to look into every American's account. They still look to extend welfare without work requirements and other programs -- new social programs. So we have to see what's actually in this package at the end of the day. But regardless, we can tell by what they've been saying that it's not going to be good for this country. It's going to be put us on a path towards socialism. And if we could stop it early enough, I think America will be better off.” Fox Business News, [10/25/21] (VIDEO) :57

August 2021: Malliotakis Said The $3.5 Trillion Budget Proposal Was “Socialism” And That It Should Be Separated From The Infrastructure Bill. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] My concern is that this package that was just passed by the Senate on infrastructure will be tied to that $3.5 trillion which I think is very damaging. I think this is socialism, it is a package that is looking to push further people like Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and Bernie Sanders' socialist agenda. So I do really hope that these are separate bills. There's difference between necessities that we need for economic growth and population growth like transportation, infrastructure investment and then all of this type of socialism, government control. That is exactly what this is about. It's about making people dependent on the government, and that's' certainly not the direction that we should be going in in this country.” Fox Business, [8/10/21] (VIDEO) 1:23

BBB Economic Impacts

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would “Perpetuate Labor Shortages” And “Disincentiviz[e] Work And Production.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Now, let me move forward to the bill that I am opposed. And I have been very vociferous against. That's the bill that many of you seem to be very upset with, and it's very important that we make that distinction. The socialist spending package that I'm against is the one that will perpetuate labor shortages. It provides welfare without work expansion. Some of the problems we're seeing with disincentivizing work and production, that's in that particular bill that has not come up yet and hopefully it will not come up.” Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/6/21] (VIDEO) 5:44

Malliotakis On Reconciliation: “It’s Continuing To Increase Inflation And Put Pressure On The Costs Of Goods On Every American Family.” “MALLIOTAKIS: But I'm equally concerned about this $3.5 trillion, and whether it ends up being $2 trillion or $3.5 trillion doesn't matter. The reality is that it's continuing to en-debt future generations, it's continuing to increase inflation and put pressure on the costs of goods on every American family. And we know as New Yorkers, when Democrats tell you that they're going to create programs that are supposed to ease the burden on the working and middle class, what does it do? It increases our taxes, it increases our cost of living and it's driving New Yorkers out. It's certainly not a framework now that we should be implementing on the federal level.” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 1:49

BBB Health Care Impacts

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would “Increase Prescription Drugs.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Now, let me move forward to the bill that I am opposed. And I have been very vociferous against. That's the bill that many of you seem to be very upset with, and it's very important that we make that distinction. [...] Some of the things that would increase prescription drugs, some of the things that would drive up utility costs, all in that other bill that AOC is pushing.” Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/6/21] (VIDEO) 5:44

BBB IRS Impacts

October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Build Back Better Would “Double The Number Of IRS Agents And They Still Intend To Look Into Every American's Account.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, it's quite possible they'll try to jam something down our throats this week. It's hard to say what exactly will be in this package. As you know, they keep changing the price tag. It was $3.5 trillion which although with inflation it will be much more. Now they're saying it will be $2 trillion. November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Included “Some Of The Indoctrination Of The Green New Deal And Colleges.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Now, let me move forward to the bill that I am opposed. And I have been very vociferous against. That's the bill that many of you seem to be very upset with, and it's very important that we make that distinction. [...] Some of the indoctrination of the Green New Deal and colleges, again, also in that socialist spending spree that I'm opposed to." Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/6/21] (VIDEO) 5:44

COVID-19 & Pandemic Relief

American Rescue Plan – Opposition To Funding New York

July 2021: Malliotakis Criticized ARP For Giving Money To “Big City Mayors Like Mine To Combat Crime After They Defunded The Police.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I mean, look, any way you look at it -- when you look at the $1.9 trillion package that was put forth for COVID relief, we said that we didn't need that money, we just needed a fraction of the money to do what needed to be done in an emergency situation. Now you see them spending all sorts of money in all sorts of different areas and giving it to big city mayors like mine to combat crime after they defunded the police. They're putting a billion dollars towards illegal immigrant housing when we have homeless veterans, we have homeless people in our streets in our city. So, we have to be able to take the time to review legislation, see what is exactly in it. That page - that bill, 600 pages, $1.9 trillion, they gave us just an hour to actually debate it, just a few hours to read it.” Fox News, [7/20/21] (VIDEO) :00

February 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Funding For New York In ARP, Which She Said “Rewarded” Business Closures And Higher Unemployment Rates. “[BARTIROMO:] President Biden's $1.9 trillion COVID relief package, only 9 percent of it is about COVID. And much of it is about other things, including bailouts to the states like New York. What is it going to take to get New York back on track, Congresswoman? I mean, look at the House valuations plummeting, population numbers plummeting, homelessness up, murder, and crime numbers up as well. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly we need a new mayor, we need to restore some sanity to our legislature and our city council because they keep adopting whether it's bad policies on crime, whether it's driving up taxes. Look, I think the issue here is the Governor was actually rewarded for shutting down the economy and driving people out of work. The Democrats actually changed the formula before they were getting money based on population. Now they're getting money based on unemployment rate, which is why governors Cuomo and Newsom are doing the best in this COVID package.” Fox News, [2/26/21] (VIDEO) :56

January 2021: While Speaking About ARP, Malliotakis Said The “Best Relief Package” Would Be “Reopening Our Economy.” “[BARTIROMO:] Meanwhile, we are talking this morning about a nearly $2 trillion pandemic relief plan from Joe Biden. The proposal includes $1,400 checks, increasing weekly unemployment benefits, raising the minimum federal wage to $15 an hour, and a nationwide vaccination effort.[...] So let's talk about this plan first. Do you think this has any shot of getting passed? [...] [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, now that the Democrats control all levels of government, I'm sure it does have a chance of getting passed. And of course, people like Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez won't be satisfied. They won't be satisfied until we have complete socialism, which means government control over our lives and a guaranteed minimum income to pay for that. We have to make sure that any relief package going forward is tailored. The best relief package, quite frankly, is reopening our economy.” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [1/15/21] (VIDEO) :00

ARP – Support For Funding New York

March 2021: Malliotakis Urged New York State And New York City To Not Raise Taxes “Considering That They're Going To Be Receiving Billions In Federal Aid.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I've actually called for the governor and the mayor to commit to not raising taxes, considering that they're going to be receiving billions in federal aid. You know, that is one commitment that they should be making to the people of New York who are already leaving in droves simply because they can't afford to live here anymore.” Fox Business News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [3/1/21] (VIDEO) :25

ARP – Criticism Of Spending

March 2021: Malliotakis Claimed A Bill To “To Address The Issues That We’re Facing In Our Community” Could Have Been $800 Billion And Added, “You Don’t Need To Spend $1.9 Trillion.” “No, if I had my way, the bill would be a much better bill, and it would actually go to address the issues that we’re facing in our community. It would go to make sure — it wouldn’t be spending all sorts of other money. That’s the problem. You can do all these things probably with an $800 billion bill. You don’t need to spend $1.9 trillion that we’re going to be now this woman, her grandchildren, her great-grandchildren will be owing debt, and will be — this is — we’re saddling our future generations with debt, when we could do a much smaller package that is tailored to the specific needs of those individuals that I represent and that are struggling, not doing this bloated package.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 6:49

March 2021: Malliotakis On ARP: “This Bill Is Extremely Bloated And Puts In All Sorts Of Alternative Spending That Is Unnecessary.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] And I have to tell you that, as a freshman member, one of my goals was to come here and to ensure that we provided relief to our community. But I have to tell you that this bill is extremely bloated and puts in all sorts of alternative spending that is unnecessary. There is still $1 trillion that is left over from the previous packages that remains unspent. There’s about $150 billion for PPP loans to support our small businesses. Eventually, that money turns into grants for them. There is also $64 billion that was put in to reopen America’s schools, which the Centers for Disease Control says only $25 billion is needed. So, there is plenty of money there that has not yet been spent.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) :30

ARP – Claims Of Redundant Spending

March 2021: Malliotakis: “There Is Still $1 Trillion That Is Left Over From The Previous Packages That Remains Unspent.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] There is still $1 trillion that is left over from the previous packages that remains unspent. There’s about $150 billion for PPP loans to support our small businesses. Eventually, that money turns into grants for them. So, there is plenty of money there that has not yet been spent.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) :40

Malliotakis: “Spend The Money That Has Already Been Allocated.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I think that is part of the problem. Spend the money that has already been allocated. They want to spend another $130 billion in this bill, which 95 percent of it can’t even be spent this year. So it is not for emergency reopening. That money has already been there. So, our argument has been, let’s — once again today, they denied allowing us to bring up the Reopen Schools Act, which would reopen our schools.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 3:24

Malliotakis: The CARES Act Allocated $64 Billion Of $25 Billion That The CDC Said Was Needed To Reopen Schools, And “Most Of That Money Is Still Sitting There.” “Well, first, with the schools, the CDC had estimated it would cost $25 billion to reopen America’s school safely. The last package passed in December, they allocated $64 billion. Most of that money is still sitting there. Take New York, for example, received $4 billion, and yet our schools in New York City are not yet reopened.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 3:03

ARP – Fraud Claims

October 2021: Malliotakis: “Covid Relief Has Been Riddled With Waste And Fraud To The Tune Of Maybe Hundreds Of Billions Of Dollars.” “MALLIOTAKIS: Congress does not just have the power of the purse but they have an obligation to ensure those tax dollars are spent appropriately. And when you look at some of these inspectors general reports that have come out with how Covid relief has been riddled with waste and fraud to the tune of maybe hundreds of billions of dollars and also look at what has occurred in Afghanistan where billions more has been wasted and you hear Secretary Blinken wanting to send more money there. My issue is that we should be reducing some of the funds that we’re spending as opposed to increasing the debt limit. So I’m very concerned about what Congress is about to do here.” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 1:00

Malliotakis Claimed ARP Money “Was Being Raided” With Fraudulent Unemployment Claims And PPP Applications. “[HOST:] I’m amazed that when all of these hundreds of millions, billions of dollars in the case of

New York City and Chicago, for example, were sent via the American Rescue Act to our big cities, the money wasn't spent investing in technologies to virus proof our public buildings and our transportation, instead it seems that this money is being dumped into politicians' hands. What are your thoughts? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, that is why a lot of us did not vote for this last package, because first of all the money was being raided. You saw a lot of this money that was given falsely to people who filed unemployment claims or PPP, in fact, there's been a lot of fraud that we've asked the Covid subcommittee to investigate and hold hearings. We need to have accountability for that, that's number one." Newsmax via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/28/21] (VIDEO) 3:13

ARP – Claims Of Insufficient Funds Combating COVID-19

March 2021: Malliotakis: “Just To Show You How Bloated [ARP] Is, Less Than 1 Percent Of The Funding Actually Goes To Our Number One Priority Right Now, Which Is Vaccine Production And Distribution.”

“[MALLIOTAKIS:] And I have to tell you that, as a freshman member, one of my goals was to come here and to ensure that we provided relief to our community. But I have to tell you that this bill is extremely bloated and puts in all sorts of alternative spending that is unnecessary. December 2021: Malliotakis Agreed With The Claim That ARP Funding Was Not Used To “Virus Proof” Public Buildings And Transportation And Was “Dumped Into Politicians’ Hands.” “[HOST:] I’m amazed that when all of these hundreds of millions, billions of dollars in the case of New York City and Chicago, for example, were sent via the American Rescue Act to our big cities, the money wasn’t spent investing in technologies to virus proof our public buildings and our transportation, instead it seems that this money is being dumped into politicians’ hands. ARP – Stimulus Checks

March 2021: Malliotakis Criticized ARP For Eliminating Stimulus Checks To Individuals With An Annual Salary Of $80,000 Or More And Granting Them To People In Jail. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] But, secondly, instead of cutting out the pork, what we saw the Senate do was actually take away from middle-class families. They lowered the stimulus payments, so it goes to — if you're a single individual earning $80,000, you get absolutely nothing. But yet they still left provisions in there, didn't clarify the bill, to still allow people who are sitting in jail as convicted felons to receive the stimulus checks. So, I still think there's like major issues with this bill.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 1:40

Malliotakis: “We Should Absolutely Be Providing Taxpayer Money, Their Money Back In The Form Of A Stimulus. But What We Should Not Be Doing Is All Sorts Of Other Things.” “I want to ensure that that money is actually getting back to the people. And that is the concern here. We should absolutely be focused on extending unemployment. We should absolutely be providing taxpayer money, their money back in the form of a stimulus. But what we should not be doing is all sorts of other things, $3.5 billion going to the Global Health Fund to deal with AIDS and malaria.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 5:34

ARP – Unemployment Insurance

October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed The American Rescue Plan “Disincentivizes Work” And Caused A Labor Shortage. “MALLIOTAKIS: They passed a $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan that was supposed to put people back to work, but it actually did the opposite. It actually disincentivizes work and production, I think that’s part of the problem you're seeing here. There are a number of causes but a big part of it is labor shortage and that was a result of the president and the democrats wanting people to stay home than to come to work and produce. And so you have lack of warehouse workers, you have lack of truck drivers and so you're seeing a major issue here." Fox Business, [10/14/21] (VIDEO) :17

ARP – Bail Reform

July 2020: Malliotakis Claimed Pelosi “Tried To Sneak In The Bail Reform Here In The COVID Relief Package.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] In New York City shootings are up by 73 percent this past month of June compared to last year, and that is on top of a 97 percent increase from 2019 to 2020, because of bail reform, Governor Cuomo's bail reform, we have seen 50 percent of criminals who are arrested for shooting someone being put back on the streets, and nine out of 10 people who are arrested with firearms, illegal firearms are released the very next day. And what does Nancy Pelosi want to do? She tried to sneak in the bail reform here in the COVID Relief Package.” Kevin McCarthy Facebook, [7/29/21] (VIDEO) 27:44

That's how out of touch these individuals in Washington are. COVID-19 Quarantine Periods

December 2021: Malliotakis Said “We Need To Learn To Live With” COVID-19 And “Can’t Have People Taking Off Ten Days” Of Work If They Have COVID-19. “This virus is not leaving, it is mutating, it is changing, it is evolving, but it is still here, and we need to learn to live with it, because we have to reopen this economy, we have to get people back to work, we can’t have people taking off ten days if they are with the virus, so I think we need to have a more practical approach here, and that’s something I’ve been advocating for since the beginning.” Newsmax via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/28/21] (VIDEO) :56

December 2021: Malliotakis Said She Was Quarantining For Ten Days After Contracting COVID-19. “[HOST:] I have to ask you, I know just several days ago, that you had tested positive for Covid. How are you doing? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I’m okay now, quarantining and following the CDC guidelines, although I’m quarantining for ten days, and now it’s just five days, so it seems that the rules are changing as we move along.” Newsmax via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/28/21] (VIDEO) :06

12/27/21: Malliotakis Criticized Gov. Hochul For Shortening The Recommended Quarantine Period To Five Days For Health Care Workers As “Not In Sync With The Science Of The CDC.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, we already know that here in New York City, the vaccination rate is 89%, which is above the national average, and the mayor and the governor have already implemented a vaccine mandate on city and state workers, health care workers as well, and what we’re seeing as a result of the mandate is that people are still getting Covid. Cases exploded last week so it’s not stopping the spread, but what it is doing is reducing the symptoms. The issue that has become as people are testing positive for Covid, despite being vaccinated, they are calling out sick and seeing shortages in the NYPD, FDNY, EMS, health care workers to the point where the governor has now said it’s going to be five days quarantine, you can return to work, which is obviously not in sync with the science of the CDC so they are making up these rules as they go along.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/27/21] (VIDEO) :46

COVID-19 Vaccines & Vaccine Mandates

December 2021: Malliotakis Said “The Vaccine Is Clearly Not Stopping The Spread, It Is Minimizing The Symptoms.” “[ANCHOR:] I look at the health data and the disease is most prevalent in our city, the only zip code in fact, in New York City with a double digit percentage positivity rate is in Staten Island, is in your district, over 11% along with three of the four top zip codes. You know, every month, I think for the last like five months, your district has had the highest per capita death rate from COVID in the city. Why not maybe take a different approach? [MALLIOTAKIS:] As I said, I've been encouraging people to be vaccinated, I don't think taking away their employment is the proper way of going about this. At the end of the day, the vaccine is clearly not stopping the spread, it is minimizing the symptoms. And that is why we are encouraging people so they don't end up being hospitalized to do that. But again, this is an individual's personal decision with their healthcare professional, we encourage people to continue to do that." NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 6:53

December 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Vaccine Mandates Would Exacerbate Supply Chain Issues And Inflation By Contributing To A Labor Shortage. "[MALLIOTAKIS:] However, we're seeing him [De Blasio] continue to push more mandates that will cripple our small businesses and businesses in general. Yesterday, we had a roundtable with industry leaders saying that his newest mandate on private businesses will even further hurt their quest to find workers and it's going to as a result – look, you don't have workers, you don't have people producing, the supply chain costs will go up, the cost of goods will go up, and it's certainly impacts our economy." Fox News, [12/8/21] (VIDEO) :31

Malliotakis: "I Encourage People To Get Vaccinated, But I Do Not Believe It Should Be Mandated To The Extent That We're Seeing From Our City, State, And Federal Leadership." "[MALLIOTAKIS:] My focus has really been on these vaccine mandates because I'm somebody who is vaccinated, have helped many people become vaccinated, we held pop-up sites including just this weekend in my district. My issue is that government should be encouraging individuals to get vaccinated – give the facts, give the data, show the benefits and let people make that determination with their doctor on what is best for themselves and their families. Some people have autoimmune issues and they have concerns, other people have natural immunity because they have survived covid. So there are different circumstances and certainly I encourage people to get vaccinated, but I do not believe it should be mandated to the extent that we're seeing from our city, state, and federal leadership." COVID-19 Testing

January 2022: Malliotakis Criticized Biden's Plan To Send Americans 500 Million COVID-19 Tests. "[CHAFFETZ:] But it also strikes me, Congresswoman, that it is not a very targeted approach. To just blankly send out 500 million tests, why not target those that are the most vulnerable? Why not target the people that actually are showing symptoms? I just don't understand why that isn't the prevailing thought there in Washington, D.C. [MALLIOTAKIS:] I agree with you. And this administration, sadly, has been just very reactive. So, instead of focusing on the treatments and therapeutics, they want to focus on more mandates." YouTube via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis, uploaded [1/3/22] (VIDEO) 3:13

December 2021: Malliotakis Said COVID-19 Testing "Does Nothing To Address The Actual Virus" And Urged A Shift To An Investment In Covid Treatments. "[HOST:] What do you think about this whole testing mess, lastly? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, look, testing is one thing. If you're positive, it's important to, you know, stop the spread to your relatives and loved ones, but again, it does nothing to address the actual virus, and treatments and therapeutics is where we need to be focused. I also think that if Covid has highlighted anything, it's the need for us to bring our supply chain home. The fact that there aren't tests, enough tests, in New York City is part of the issue, but I think, you know, making sure these medications are being brought home, the PPE, the things that we need, need to be made here in the United States, and that would address a lot of the supply chain issues that you're seeing from testing to the medication, et cetera." COVID-19 Mask Mandates

December 2021: Malliotakis Called For A Shift From Containing COVID-19 Through Mask And Vaccine Mandates To Investments In Treatments For The Virus. "[ANCHOR:] I want to start with Covid. Just listening to Lauren's report, we're hearing very sadly a lot about Broadway shut down, the Rockettes now, but there's been this soaring hospitalization, and a monstrous hit to the economy with restaurants choosing to close their doors. Your thoughts on what leadership could be doing now in New York to make things better as we head into the holidays, as people are gathering. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Look, they've tried everything from restrictions to mandates, and they continue to push more vaccine mandates and mask mandates. I think it's time for the administration to now turn to therapeutics and treatment. I think it's clear that Covid is here to stay, and vaccination – which I am vaccinated and, certainly, reduces the level of the severity of the symptoms – I think that we need to now put that same focus and attention on therapeutics like the monoclonal antibodies, like ensuring that the FDA rapidly approves the treatments that are pending.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/20/21] (VIDEO) :13

July 2020: Malliotakis Claimed Pelosi Wanted To Arrest Her Vaccinated Staff Members For Refusing To Comply With The Mask Mandate And Asked, “Where Is Their Priority When It Comes To Public Safety?” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Yet Nancy Pelosi is running around, saying she wants to arrest people, my staff members who are vaccinated, arrest them if they're not wearing a mask. So where is their priority when it comes to public safety? In my district yesterday, an 88-year-old woman was--she had--a gun--it was a gunpoint robbery in the middle of broad daylight, 3 p.m., an 88-year-old woman where they took her necklace if she didn't give it to them, they were threatening to shoot her. And that's just the latest example of the ridiculous things that are happening in our cities, because of the policies put in place by the Democrats.” Kevin McCarthy Facebook, [7/29/21] (VIDEO) 28:10

COVID-19 School Closures

December 2020: Malliotakis Called For A “Balanced Approach” To Business And School Reopenings And Added, “We Know That Lockdowns Are Not Working.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Look, we know so much more about this virus than we did six months ago. We know that lockdowns are not working. You know, Dr. Fauci, other medical professionals said our children should be going back to school. You know, we need to have a balanced approach here. With the vaccination coming out, we really need to move forward here. I don't believe that, you know, what, what, the, the real issue is that these governors have very arbitrary regulations. That, that is really what the issue - is here. A restaurant on this side of the block can't open, but across the street it can. Houses of worship, regardless of their size of capacity, can only have 10 or 25 individuals, and that was shot down by the Supreme Court. And then you have these small business owners, restaurants in my community that are devastated. They have not taken home any money for their families in months and you have their employees who are suffering, can't put food on the table. So, we need to have a balanced approach.” GMA 3 via GMA 3 Facebook, [12/7/20] (VIDEO) 4:53

3/15/20: During An In-Person Fox News Interview, Malliotakis Urged New York City Schools To Close “Temporarily For One Week” After Two Students In Her District Tested Positive For COVID-19. “[HOST:] Are you in favor of closing New York City's schools? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think it's very important. If we're shutting down Broadway, we're telling people in crowds of 500 or more events have to be cancelled, we're ending stadiums and gatherings. I think it's very important that we close down the schools temporarily for one week. Let us get an assessment of what exactly is going on. In my district, we just had two students that tested positive for coronavirus and the mayor wants to reopen the schools tomorrow. And parents rightfully are concerned as well as teachers.” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis for Congress, uploaded [3/15/20] (VIDEO) :50

WHO

May 2021: Malliotakis Said “We Really Should Be Demanding Accountability” Before Rejoining The WHO. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] And as a matter of fact, the Foreign Affairs Committee, we've actually questioned President Biden rejoining W.H.O., and as you know, we are the number one funder of the W.H.O. and we really should be demanding accountability before entering -- reentering and that is something that we brought up in the Foreign Affairs Committee as well. But it seems like our President is doing whatever -- whatever President Trump did, he wants to do the opposite and he doesn't want to actually get any concessions or renegotiate to get either a better deal if it's something like the Paris Accord, or in this case, demand answers and a thorough investigation.” Fox News, [5/2/21] (VIDEO) :22

Debt Limit

Malliotakis: “We Should Be Reducing Some Of The Funds That We’re Spending As Opposed To Increasing The Debt Limit.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Congress does not just have the power of the purse, but they have an obligation to ensure those tax dollars are spent appropriately. And when you look at some of these inspectors general reports that have come out with how Covid relief has been riddled with waste and fraud to the tune of maybe hundreds of billions of dollars and also look at what has occurred in Afghanistan where billions more has been wasted and you hear Secretary Blinken wanting to send more money there. My issue is that we should be reducing some of the funds that we’re spending as opposed to increasing the debt limit. So I’m very concerned about what Congress is about to do here.” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 1:00

December 2021: Malliotakis Advocated For A Balanced Budget Proposal As A Way To Limit National Debt. “[HOST:] The Senate piece from Lydia talking about the national debt approaching $30 trillion is stunning. What will it take to get both parties at the table at some point to figure something out? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think Republicans are right when they say they want to see a balanced budget. If you're going to spend money because there is a necessity here, you need to cut the money from somewhere else. One of the things that I have proposed is looking at making sure we are auditing these programs. The Inspector Generals have caught tens of millions of dollars in waste, fraud, and abuse, money that's been spent in Afghanistan.” Fox News, [12/30/21] (VIDEO) 1:48

Donald Trump

2017: Malliotakis Said That She Wished She Had Written In Marco Rubio Instead Of Voting For Trump And Added, “I Was Never Really A Supporter Of His.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] So, you have a choice, and I wasn’t excited about either choice. And so, I just voted for the person who I thought would shake up Washington. Look, in hindsight, obviously, Marco was my choice and I probably should have just written him in, because now I’ve got to deal with all these questions about Trump, when I’m not really – I never really endorsed him, I never really was out there campaigning for him, and – it’s sort of dogging me down in this campaign even though I was never really a supporter of his.” YouTube via New York Daily News, uploaded [6/21/20] (VIDEO) :00

Education

December 2021: Malliotakis Opposed A Proposal To Place School Safety Under The Jurisdiction Of The New York Department Of Education, Rather Than The NYPD. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] The second thing is the reduction in school safety. You have an administration currently that wants to remove our school safety under the umbrella of the NYPD, and instead move it to the Department of Education. We have seen significant reductions, in fact a 25 percent reduction, in our school safety officers in the city of New York. Election Law, Campaign Finance, & Voting Rights

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed The For The People Act Would “Dismantle The Integrity Of Our Election System” Through Public Campaign Financing, “Ballot Harvesting,” And Expanded Absentee Voting. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Nancy Pelosi’s bill HR 1, which was the Democrat’s number one priority this year, they had put HR 1 as their number priority, think about that. And we had raised the alarm that they were going to dismantle the integrity of our election system with these proposals, using taxpayer money to fund political campaigns, ballot harvesting, universal absentee ballots, same-day voter registration. Well, the people of New York resoundingly rejected it yesterday in those referendums and that is a strong message to Nancy Pelosi and the Democrats to back off.” Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/3/21] (VIDEO) 4:08

March 2021: Malliotakis Called Public Campaign Financing A “Form Of Embezzlement” That Would Abuse Taxpayers And Increase Corruption. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] This bill shamefully allows candidates for Congress to use tax dollars to fund campaigns with a $6 match for every $1 raised. Any normal person would call this a form of embezzlement. Tax dollars are supposed to be used to maintain our transportation infrastructure, fund our schools, and keep the public safe, not to fund campaigns. As a representative from New York City, which has public financing of campaigns, and as a former candidate for mayor, I can tell you that it does nothing to take big money out of politics, and it does nothing to level the playing field. Bill de Blasio still received big donations bundled by lobbyists and special interests, and I would have still been outspent four to one with or without matching funds. Using taxpayer money to fund political campaigns is not only wrong; it is an abuse of taxpayers and has led to more corruption. Multiple candidates and elected officials in New York City were convicted for exploiting the system and developing schemes to illegally pad their campaigns with taxpayer money.” Malliotakis Floor Statement via C-SPAN, [3/3/21] (VIDEO) 28:09

If it's 50 Democratic senators with Kamala Harris, the deciding, you know, the tie - breaking the tie? May 2020: Malliotakis Told An Audience At The Staten Island Jewish Community Center She Knew What It Was Like To Fight In Israel's Six-Day War Since She Was A "Republican In New York City." "Staten Island Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis raised some eyebrows when she told a Jewish congregation this week that she knows what it was like for Israeli soldiers to fight in the Six-Day War because she's 'a Republican in New York City,' the Daily News has learned. Malliotakis, who's mounting a Republican challenge against Rep. Max Rose (D-N.Y.) in November's congressional election, drew the curious comparison while on a Thursday night Zoom call hosted by the Staten Island Jewish Community Center in celebration of Jerusalem Day. 'When you think about the small army at the time that Israel had and that they were confronted with five armies — I mean, I'm a Republican in New York City so I can kind of understand what they may have been going through or thinking,' Malliotakis said on the call." [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well look, we need to be imposing sanctions, we need to be sending weapons to Ukraine so they can defend themselves, we need to working with our allies, particularly in NATO, to provide support to Ukraine, all this needs to be on the front end, not after they do the invasion, we need to prevent this invasion, and the only way we do that is if we set a very strong tone with Putin." He said he was going to do it in November. But it once again, they are showing Americans that barriers do work. And by the way, we're still paying for that border barrier. It's just not actually being constructed because he canceled the contracts. The reality is, is that Americans should be very concerned what they're seeing. Not only are these young people being exploited, exploited to be the getaway cars, but we're seeing record number of fentanyl coming over our border. Infrastructure & Transportation

BIF & Build Back Better

September 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Pelosi “Hijacked The Actual Infrastructure Bill” To Pass “Spending On So- Called Human Infrastructure.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I mean, look, there's no doubt that we, as a society just need to be more environmentally friendly. But certainly what they're pushing is, is a separate package that bases most of the spending on so-called human infrastructure, as opposed to true infrastructure needs, like sewer and water infrastructure, like roads, bridges, and highways, like the subway system, by the way here in New York City, which was gushing with water. These are the things that need to be modernized to be kept up with population growth, and Nancy Pelosi has hijacked the actual infrastructure bill that could potentially make that happen. So, I think there's two issues here. There is a national issue of them playing politics with the true meaning of infrastructure, and the other issue is the way that our mayor and our governor have been handling things over the years where they haven't used money wisely, putting it towards the things they needed to be put toward, to improve quality of life here." [BARTIROMO:] OK. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Because we've taken away AOC's leverage. Look, whenever I'm on the opposite side of AOC in a squad, I think I'm doing a good job for the people of my district. Republican Backlash To Malliotakis’ Support For BIF

Malliotakis Said She Was Getting Angry Calls Because Of “Misinformation” Conflating Infrastructure And Build Back Better. “I think what has really been the issue is the misinformation surrounding the infrastructure bill. And as I have tried to point out, it is 100 percent, cover to cover, real infrastructure, critical to my district and other districts across the country. What people are mostly upset about is the — Biden's Build Back Better bill, that reconciliation bill, that we are currently fighting in Washington [...] Look, I have gotten my own share of very disturbing phone calls as well from people outside of my district. It's very important that we do not try to mischaracterize these pieces of legislation, because that is where this anger is coming from. And, unfortunately, that's what has occurred here. And that's why I'm doing as many interviews as possible to explain to people that these are two separate bills. The infrastructure is cover-to-cover infrastructure that we desperately need, we have needed for decades in our country, and that local and national leaders just didn't put it forward the investment that was needed.” PBS Newshour, [11/17/21] (VIDEO) 6:23

Malliotakis Said The Angry Calls She Received After Her Infrastructure Vote Were Mostly From People Outside Of New York Who Thought The Bill Contained Provisions In The Reconciliation Proposal. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I will tell you, most of the angry phone calls I have gotten from people outside of New York are simply because they believe I voted for a bill that contains the IRS agents doubling to target Americans. They don't want to pay for that extra 87,000 IRS agents. They don't want to pay for amnesty. They don't want to pay for expanding welfare without work requirements or any other social programs. That is why people are extraordinarily upset. And that is why the Republican Party is united. It said, ‘A vote for the Democrats’ “infrastructure” bill is a vote for their socialist wish list. Americans won’t forget November 6th.’ And I understand that last night President Trump was saying that anyone who voted for it on the Republican side was a traitor. How do you respond to those kinds of attacks? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, the reason they voted it was an error. They weren’t talking about that bill. Crediting Trump For BIF

Malliotakis Said Trump Should Get “Some Credit” For BIF And Said That She Was “Appreciative To President Trump For Being One Of The First To Really Talk About The Need For Infrastructure.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I think at the end of the day, look, President Trump laid the groundwork for this infrastructure to pass. He also wanted $1 trillion in spending into America's infrastructure. And it's important for economic growth, right? And we lose trillions when -- over the next decade if we did not put in this investment to upgrade and modernize our infrastructure. So, I'm happy and I'm appreciative to President Trump for being one of the first to really talk about the need for infrastructure. So, what was the secret sauce here? Why was President Biden able to get infrastructure week finally where former President Trump couldn't do it? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I think at the end of the day, look, President Trump laid the groundwork for this infrastructure to pass. He also wanted $1 trillion in spending into America's infrastructure. And it's important for economic growth, right? And we lose trillions when -- over the next decade if we did not put in this investment to upgrade and modernize our infrastructure. So, I'm happy and I'm appreciative to President Trump for being one of the first to really talk about the need for infrastructure.” CNN, [11/8/21] (VIDEO) 2:18

Malliotakis Said Trump’s Infrastructure Plan “Would Have Been A Better Bill” Than BIF. “[START CLIP. REP. TIM BURCHETT:] They’re trying to compare it saying that Trump tried to do it and couldn’t, but Trump, it would have been a hundred percent infrastructure, this thing was about 23 to 30 percent, however you want to figure it, what you’d call traditional infrastructure. [END CLIP. HOST:] Congresswoman, what’s your response to that? [MALLIOTAKIS:] He’s absolutely right in saying if it was President Trump’s bill, because he also wanted to spend one trillion on infrastructure, it would have been a better bill. However, he is wrong when he says only 30 percent goes to infrastructure.” Fox News, via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [11/9/21] (VIDEO) 4:24

Labor & Working Families

March 2021: Malliotakis: “We Absolutely Need To Extend The Unemployment.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] With regards to the assistance for families, we absolutely need to extend the unemployment. I support that, and I support stimulus checks being returned to families who are taxpayers, absolutely.” PBS Newshour, [3/9/21] (VIDEO) 4:04

Policing & Public Safety

June 2021: Malliotakis Called For The Restoration Of Plainclothes Officers Who Combated Violent Crime. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Yes, some of these people have extensive histories. Two of the hate crimes that occurred in New York City recently, one individual had 40 prior arrests, the other had 77 prior arrests. So until the Democrats and Governor Cuomo decide that they're going to fix the bail reform, we're going to continue to have this problem. And Mayor de Blasio needs to restore the NYPD plainclothes unit that went after violent crimes.” Fox Business News, [6/28/21] (VIDEO) 3:21

Malliotakis Said New York City's Sanctuary City Status Made Deployment Of Federal Law Enforcement Necessary To Deport Undocumented People Who Committed Crimes. “[FORD:] There are folks who have said, yes, indeed we need help here, but they've questioned the idea of bringing federal law enforcement authorities into a particular city. Why do you feel that would be appropriate? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, as we saw when the city and the state were not prosecuting particular crimes like huge drug offenses in our city, that the DOJ came in and charged individuals on the federal level and that removed individual from our streets. Same thing with the sanctuary policy in New York City where we have individuals who are here illegally and they are committing crimes. New York City actually harbors those individuals, and some of them, again, it could be very dangerous, violent crimes, and New York City will harbor those individuals and protect them from deportation. We need the feds to step in and get those individuals removed.” PBS MetroFocus, [5/18/20] (VIDEO) 3:25

June 2021: Malliotakis Attributed Increasing Crime To “Policies That Totally Dismantle Bail Reform In New York And It's Just Releasing People Left And Right Back Onto Our Streets.” “[McDowell:] But if you look at the list of crime statistics just here in New York City, it's not just shootings and murder that are up. [...] [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, of course, they want you to look the other way now because they created this problem, whether it be through their rhetoric, whether it be through their policies that totally dismantle bail reform in New York and it's just releasing people left and right back onto our streets even those with extensive criminal histories, whether it be the defunding of the police, remember, one-sixth of the NYPD budget was cut last year. You know, they're the ones who created this problem and now they don't want people to look at the stats and see that there's something desperately wrong. But the people know it because they see the news, they read the newspaper, they see it every day.” Fox Business News, [6/28/21] (VIDEO) :12

December 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Attempts To End Qualified Immunity At The Federal Level “Only Had A Disastrous Effect In Discouraging People From Wanting To Join The Force.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Let the police do their jobs. Unless the commissioner and mayor allow them to do their jobs, they're going to have problems. They've seen record number of retirements. We lost very good, seasoned, hundreds of seasoned detectives, and stripping the qualified immunity – which is what they want to do at the federal level, and we've been able to successfully stop – it's only had a disastrous effect in discouraging people from wanting to join the force. I think all those things need to be addressed by the new, incoming mayor, and I'm hopeful he will get to it day one.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/20/21] (VIDEO) 4:50

December 2021: Malliotakis Called Qualified Immunity “A Protection That [Police Officers] Have To Be Able To Do Their Job, Knowing That The City Has Their Back [...] If They Do Everything Right.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It is not just cutting the police budget. It's also taking away their qualified immunity, a protection that they have to be able to do their job, knowing that the city has their back if they follow the guidelines of the NYPD guidebook and do everything right. so there is, more hypocrisy.” Fox News, [12/30/21] (VIDEO) 1:28

Racial Justice

July 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Black Lives Matter Was A “Marxist Organization.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] That's correct. They are showing to the world that they are Marxists, and that is what I've said about Black Lives Matter -- that they are a Marxist organization. As a matter of fact, here in New York City, when they had their protests, they had the hammer and sickle, the communist symbol painted on some of our public buildings, including our courthouses.” Fox News, [7/17/21] (VIDEO) 2:39

Taxes

April 2021: Malliotakis Said Proposed Increases In The Corporate Tax And Taxes On The Wealthy “Always [...] Fall On The Middle Class.” “[FISHER:] But one of the other big sticking points, of course, is how to pay for it. And President Biden really went out of his way tonight to make the case that this should not fall on middle class Americans, that he wants to raise taxes on the wealthy and corporations. Is there -- did you feel like there was any room for negotiation on that front? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Look, I think at the end of the day, it always does fall on the middle class. The reality is that when the wealthy people are not investing in expanding and growing their businesses and creating good jobs, when the when the American government is borrowing more money and spending and hitting a $30 trillion debt, you know, that's causing inflation, the cost of products will go up. You know, that's the reality, it will have an impact on everyday working Americans when the bill comes.” Fox News, [4/29/21] (VIDEO) 2:34

March 2021: Malliotakis Said New Yorkers Were “Fleeing” To Florida Due To Income Tax.

“[MALLIOTAKIS:] What I have to tell you, though, is, when you look at New York states compared to Florida, the reason why people are fleeing, they have no income tax. They also have million more residents and they're spending about $96 billion annually. Here in New York state, putting forward a $208 billion budget, almost the same amount that California spends, and California has twice as many residents. It's completely unsustainable and inappropriate during a time when New York is recovering and wants people, or I hope they want people, to reopen their businesses, create jobs, and get New Yorkers off unemployment and back to work.” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [3/15/21] (VIDEO) 1:07

Big Lie & January 6th Insurrection

1/4/21: Malliotakis: “I Don’t See A Situation In Which I Don’t Object To At Least Some Of These States.”

“[McCULLOUGH:] What do you make of this electoral challenge that we’ll see the day after the Georgia election? [MALLIOTAKIS:] [...] On Wednesday, Leader McCarthy has told us to do what we believe is the right thing for our constituents, what we believe is the right thing. Look, I’m among the freshmen who have written to Nancy Pelosi to express outrage with what have occurred in this election process and that we need to have an investigation. We need to be transparent about it, that’s just what Americans want. It may not be enough votes to overturn the election, it may be. It could be ten votes, it could be 10,000 votes or 100,000 votes. Really what this is about is the integrity of the system and ensuring that every vote that is counted is a legal one, and we need to ensure that those votes that are counted are illegal are prosecuted, and that’s what this really is about more than anything. So look, I don’t see a situation in which I don’t object to at least some of these states, but I’m going to be thoughtful and mindful and listen to the entire debate on Wednesday, and I look forward to providing some clarity for the American people.” Kevin McCullough Radio, [1/4/21] (AUDIO) 3:05

Build Back Better

October 2021: Malliotakis: “I Cannot Support That Reconciliation Bill. I Mean To Me That Is Taking Our Country Down A Path To Socialism, I Cannot Support That.” “HOST: Is all of that good stuff you just talked about, the hard infrastructure, worth losing if this reconciliation bill is not to your liking? MALLIOTAKIS: I cannot support that reconciliation bill. I mean to me that is taking our country down a path to socialism, I cannot support that. Particularly also, it’s not just these new social programs that are unsustainable and that we can’t afford, it’s the government intrusion, more government control, the increased taxes. And by the way, when President Biden says this doesn’t affect people under $400,000 he’s wrong. Look at inflation, and you see the cost of goods going up, whether its gasoline, whether it’s food in the grocery store, whether you’re going on vacation.” Bloomberg, [10/6/21] (AUDIO) 11:18

COVID-19 & Pandemic Relief

Malliotakis: The American Rescue Plan “Ended Up Making The Economy Worse” And “Didn’t Need To Be Spent.” “MALLIOTAKIS: And by the way, the $1.9 trillion that was passed earlier this year that was supposed to be an economic recovery, or COVID recovery fund, ended up making the economy worse. When you look at the labor shortages, when you look at the ports, how they’re so backed up and they cannot take these containers down, the lack of truck driving due to people being paid to stay home rather than report back to work, the impact it’s had on inflation. All of that is showing how this $1.9 trillion that was spent didn’t need to be spent. If they simply reopened the economy and returned everyone back to work we would be I think in a better situation today. You didn’t need that excessive spending.” Bloomberg, [10/6/21] (AUDIO) 8:34

November 2021: Malliotakis Said She Hoped New York City Would Reinstate A Weekly Testing Option For Unvaccinated City Employees. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well today, we’re going to be at the Capitol – some of my colleagues are joining me, and we’re going to be pushing back on these mandates. We’re hoping that the Mayor reinstates the weekly testing option, at least take a step back, allow that to occur, so that we can have a real conversation. This was a rush by the Mayor for no reason because the test results did not show there was an issue within the Fire Department, but now we’re going to see thousands of firefighters and police officers and sanitation workers locked out of their jobs and put on unpaid leave, and I think it’s very wrong to require this as part of their unemployment.” Joe Piscopo Show, [11/1/21] (AUDIO) 36:17

12/6/21: Malliotakis Praised Florida And Texas’ “Minimal Restrictions” And Said Their Covid Case Rates Were “Telling.” “[HOST:] With the omicron variant, are you concerned the Biden administration will overreact and move towards shutting down places like New York City and really be putting us back in lockdown mode? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I’m greatly concerned about the actions they’d be taking, him and our governor, and our mayor, for that matter. We have seen New York really get hurt, our children had been out of school for a tremendously long time, we had our businesses were shut down, we are now dealing with a vaccine passport here in New York, which we tried to sue to stop and were unsuccessful, and that is hurting our restaurant industry. Meanwhile, you see states that are striving, like Texas and Florida, that have remained open, they’ve had minimal restrictions possible, and yet if you look at their Covid rates, that’s something that is really, I think, telling here.” Fox News Rundown Podcast, [12/6/21] (AUDIO) 11:11

December 2021: Malliotakis Called COVID-19 Subcommittee Hearings On The Meatpacking Industry “Ridiculous” And An Example Of “Issues Americans Aren’t Concerned About.” “[HOST:] What would a Republican-led House mean in terms of investigations and oversight on issues like Afghanistan, the border, and more? [MALLIOTAKIS:] We will be able to have hearings on actual issues that the American people care about. Unfortunately, we see too many hearings taking place right now in Washington where they’re on issues that Americans aren’t concerned about. I’ll give you an example. I’m on the Covid Subcommittee with Steve Scalise. They’ve had hearing after hearing on these ridiculous issues, like the meatpacking industry, as opposed to the origins of the virus.” Fox News Rundown Podcast, [12/6/21] (AUDIO) 9:43

Malliotakis: “I Believe That The Debt Limit Could Be Passed By Those Who Are In Control Of Both Chambers And That Is The Democrats At This Time.” “HOST: Do you support this offer by Senator McConnell? MALLIOTAKIS: Well, we still don’t know all of the details and that is unfortunately the way things are in Washington. Many people say they have a deal and yet the members who have to vote on the deals don’t have the details. And I think that is at the end of the day what a responsible member would be waiting for. I believe that the debt limit could be passed by those who are in control of both chambers and that is the Democrats at this time.” Bloomberg, [10/6/21] (AUDIO) 5:22

Disaster Relief & FEMA

October 2021: Malliotakis Accused Gov. Hochul Of Giving FEMA Aid To Undocumented People That “Certain American Citizens Aren’t Eligible For.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It’s quite possible, and I think that’s why you’re seeing Governor Hochul, who was quite the moderate when she was in the House of Representatives, now that she’s trying to secure the Democratic nomination, she’s gone very far to the left. She’s chosen someone who was very vociferous supporting the defund the police movement as her lieutenant governor. She has come out with, you know, some real radical policies that, again, have made us less safe, but in addition to that, giving illegal immigrants funds that certain American citizens aren’t eligible for, like FEMA aid, for example. And we’re seeing that she’s going too far to the left because she’s trying to secure the nomination, and that’s a problem.” The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 23:02

Election Law, Campaign Finance, & Voting Rights

January 2022: Malliotakis Said She Legally Challenged New York City’s Non-Citizen Voting Law Because It Would Allow Foreign Actors To Influence Elections After 30 Days Of Residency In The U.S. “[COSBY:] I agree with you – I think there’s something – I think it opens a very dangerous door, and I also think about the people who come from foreign countries, as you talk about, who come in for thirty days and somehow can influence New York city elections, that’s stunning. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Yeah, I mean that’s exactly what this would do. And it votes the dilute of the American citizen, and that is why we’re challenging it in court.” Rita Cosby Show, [1/11/22] (AUDIO) 2:14

Infrastructure & Transportation

October 2021: Malliotakis Attributed The Plight Of Taxi Drivers To Congestion Pricing And The “War On Cars.” “[PISCOPO:] And now they’re not even protecting the taxi drivers, Nicole! [MALLIOTAKIS:] The taxi drivers have had some plight for some quite some time, and it’s because there is a war on cars, let’s be honest about what’s happening in the city of New York. The congestion fee, which I voted against when I was a state legislator and I’m trying to push back now at the federal level, but it’s very hard when you have Pete Buttigieg and the president supporting it. It’s just another tax, and my fight right now is to ensure that the people of Staten Island get a credit for the toll they already pay to connect to the rest of the city.” The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 27:56

Labor & Working Families

Malliotakis Claimed Unemployment Insurance Created Labor Shortages By “Penalizing Production And Work In This Country.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] And the supply chain shortage is not – you know, the ships are there. The issue is actually we don’t have the workers who are at the warehouses, who are truck drivers because the President thought it was a good idea to pay people more to stay home. They’re penalizing production and work in this country, and that is why we’re seeing the problems we’re seeing with the bare shelves all around America.” The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 28:56

2017: When Asked Whether She Would Repeal New York City’s Paid Sick Leave Law, Malliotakis Called For A “Compromise” With The Business Community Such As Limiting Paid Sick Leave Days. “[LEHRER:] Would you try to repeal or change New York City’s paid sick leave law as too burdensome on business? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I think that’s something that needs to be discussed. I wouldn’t move to repeal it, but I do believe maybe we can make it better. Sometimes, there’s unintended consequences when you pass bills like this, and we need to learn from that and we need to engage the business community and individuals on how it’s affecting them, and perhaps there’s a compromise that we can work with. [...] Perhaps maybe it needs to be fewer days or perhaps we need to look at – there’s other issues, too, it’s not just that issue, it’s the two-week schedule issue.” WNYC, [7/6/17] (AUDIO) 4:40

2019 – 2021: Johnson And Johnson Was Found Responsible For Fueling The Opioid Crisis And Paid Multi-Million And -Billion Settlements

August 2019: An Oklahoma Judge Found Johnson & Johnson Responsible For The State's Opioid Crisis And Ordered The Company To Pay $572 Million. "A judge Monday found Johnson & Johnson responsible for fueling Oklahoma's opioid crisis, ordering the health-care company to pay $572 million to remedy the devastation wrought by the epidemic on the state and its residents." Washington Post, [8/26/19]

Johnson & Johnson Was "Found Liable For Overly Aggressive And Deceptive Marketing Practices That Helped Lead To Thousands Of Overdose Deaths." "In a judgment filed Friday, state District Judge Thad

Balkman revised an earlier ruling against Johnson & Johnson and told the drugmaker to make a onetime payment of $465 million — not the $572 million he had originally ordered [...] His judgment is one answer to two central questions in this case and thousands of other litigation efforts connected to the country's opioid addiction crisis: Are drugmakers liable for the effects of the highly addictive opioid medications they produce? And if so, how much money should they owe to help combat those effects? In the Oklahoma case, the first state lawsuit to make it to trial, the answer to the first question was yes — Johnson & Johnson and its subsidiary Janssen Pharmaceuticals were found liable for overly aggressive and deceptive marketing practices that helped lead to thousands of overdose deaths.” NPR, [11/15/19]

2021: Johnson And Johnson Was One Of Three Drug Distributors Ordered To Pay A $26 Billion Settlement Over Allegations That It Downplayed The Addictiveness Of Opioids It Manufactured. “After nearly two years of wrangling, the country’s three major drug distributors and a pharmaceutical giant have reached a $26 billion deal with states that would release some of the biggest companies in the industry from all civil liability in the opioid epidemic, a decades-long public health crisis that has killed hundreds of thousands of Americans. [...] The distributors, which by law are supposed to monitor quantities of prescription drug shipments, have been accused of turning a blind eye for two decades while pharmacies across the country ordered millions of pills for their communities. Johnson & Johnson, which supplied opioid materials to other companies and made its own fentanyl patches for pain patients, is accused of downplaying the products’ addictive properties to doctors as well as patients.” New York Times, [7/21/21]

May 2014: Two California Counties Sued Johnson And Johnson Over Its Alleged Practice Of Deceptively Marketing Opioids, Which Boosted Their Sales And Drove Overdose Deaths. “Two California counties sued five of the world’s largest narcotics manufacturers on Wednesday, accusing the companies of causing the nation’s prescription drug epidemic by waging a ‘campaign of deception’ aimed at boosting sales of potent painkillers such as OxyContin. Officials from Orange and Santa Clara counties — both hit hard by overdose deaths, emergency room visits and escalating medical costs associated with prescription narcotics — contend the drug makers violated California laws against false advertising, unfair business practices and creating a public nuisance. [...] Named in the suit are: Actavis, Endo Health Solutions Inc., Johnson & Johnson’s Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Purdue Pharma, and Teva Pharmaceutical Industries’ Cephalon Inc.” Los Angeles Times, [5/21/14]

- November 2021: A California Judge Dismissed The Lawsuit; The Counties Planned To Appeal. “Four manufacturers of prescription opioids won the pharmaceutical industry’s first major legal victory in the opioid crisis, turning aside claims by local California governments that they contributed substantially to the epidemic. In a bench trial decision late Monday, a state judge flatly rejected a legal argument being employed in thousands of cases against the industry over its role in an epidemic of abuse that, according to federal data, has contributed to the deaths of some 500,000 people in the United States since the late 1990s and grown worse during the pandemic. [...] Judge Wilson’s decision is labeled ‘tentative,’ a procedural term, although in practice it is final. The plaintiffs have already announced they will appeal and noted that this is just one state case among thousands that have been filed.” New York Times, [11/2/21]

October 2020: Malliotakis Claimed Rose’s Criticism Of Her Owning Opioid Manufacturer Johnson & Johnson Stock Was Hypocritical Since It Was Included In His State Pension And Mutual Funds. “Malliotakis criticized Rose for running ads claiming that she profited from the opioid epidemic. ‘I own some shares of Johnson

& Johnson just like millions of Americans have in their retirement plans, including Max Rose who owns mutual funds in which Johnson & Johnson is the top holding,’ Malliotakis said. ‘He has it in his pension as all city, state and federal employees do. Most importantly, he accepted PAC contributions that are funded by Johnson & Johnson and every major pharmaceutical company, so it’s the hypocrisy, more than the dishonesty, that’s very insulting to the people of this district.’” Staten Island Advance, [10/31/20]

2018 – 2021: Pfizer Was Sued For Allegedly Marketing Opioids Deceptively And Illegally Inflating Drug Prices

August 2018: Allergan Sued Pfizer Over Allegations That It Had Deceptively Marketed An Opioid Allergan Had Acquired From A Company Pfizer Bought. “Allergan Plc on Thursday sued Pfizer Inc to require its rival to cover any damages it is forced to pay as a result of hundreds of lawsuits claiming Allergan deceptively marketed an opioid it acquired from a company Pfizer bought. In a lawsuit filed in federal court in Cleveland, Ohio, Allergan said the ‘primary basis’ for the claims against it was the alleged improper marketing and sale of Kadian, a form of morphine, in the years before it gained rights to the painkiller in late 2008. ‘But now that more than a thousand lawsuits seek to impose liability for that very marketing and sale, Pfizer has rejected any responsibility to indemnify Allergan,’ alleged Allergan Finance LLC, the subsidiary that filed the lawsuit.” Reuters, [8/2/18]

July 2021: Pfizer Settled For $345 Million In A Lawsuit That Alleged It Fixed EpiPen Prices; EpiPens Rose In Price From $100 To $600 Between 2008 And 2016. “Pfizer Inc (PFE.N) has agreed to pay $345 million to resolve claims by consumers who say they overpaid for EpiPens due to anticompetitive practices by the drugmaker and the company that markets the emergency allergy treatment, Mylan. The proposed class action settlement was disclosed in a filing in federal court in Kansas City, Kansas. The deal, which requires a judge’s approval, would not resolve claims against Mylan, which is scheduled to face trial in January. Paul Geller, a lawyer for the plaintiffs, said they were ‘pleased that Pfizer resolved its part of this class action lawsuit over the pricing of EpiPens.’ Pfizer did not admit wrongdoing. In a statement, the company said that it ‘denies any wrongdoing and continues to believe that its actions were appropriate.’ The EpiPen is a handheld device that treats life-threatening allergic reactions by automatically injecting a dose of epinephrine. The litigation followed a public outcry in 2016 after Mylan, which owns the rights to market and distribute the devices, raised the price of a pair of EpiPens to $600, from $100 in 2008, putting it in the center of an ongoing U.S. debate over the high cost of medicines.” Reuters, [7/16/21]

June 2020: 46 State Attorneys General Sued 26 Pharmaceutical Manufacturers, Including Pfizer, For Allegedly Conspiring To Drive Up Prices Of Generic Drugs. “Twenty-six drug manufacturers were sued on Wednesday by the attorneys general of most U.S. states and several territories, which accused them of conspiring to reduce competition and drive up generic drug prices. The lawsuit accused Novartis’ Sandoz unit, Teva Pharmaceuticals’ Actavis unit, Mylan, Pfizer Inc and other drugmakers of conspiring to rig the market between 2009 and 2016 for more than 80 drugs. Attorneys general from 46 states, the District of Columbia and four U.S. territories said the defendants prioritized profit over the public interest, depriving millions of consumers of lower prices for needed medication.” Reuters, [6/10/20]

Purchasing A Co-Op Grants Buyer An Interest Or Share In The Entire Building, Along With A Lease To Occupy A Unit. “Many people confuse condos with co-ops, thinking they are interchangeable. A condo is a private residence in a multiunit structure that includes ownership of commonly used property. A co-op is also a multiunit building, but that’s where the similarities end. A co-op owner has an interest or share in the entire building and a contract or lease that allows the owner to occupy a unit. While a condo owner owns a unit, a co-op owner does not own the unit. Co-ops are collectively owned and managed by their residents, who own shares in a nonprofit corporation. The corporation holds the title to the property and grants proprietary leases to residents, Isaacs said. The lease grants permanent rights to residents to live in their units and to use the common elements of the cooperative according to the co-op’s bylaws and regulations.” Washington Post, [1/31/18]

Ownership Stakes In Privately Held Entities Must Be Disclosed In House Financial Disclosures. “Ownership Interests in Privately-Held Partnerships, Corporations, and Other Business Entities. The manner in which you disclose ownership interests in a privately-held company depends on whether the company is actively engaged in a trade or business or was formed to hold investments (typically real estate). To disclose your ownership interest (or that of your spouse or dependent child) in a privately-held company that is actively engaged in a trade or business (such as a restaurant or car dealership), you must provide (1) the name of the business; (2) a brief description of the nature of its activities; and (3) its geographic location (city and state) in Block A of Schedule A. For example, “Peterson Construction Company, residential home builder, Phoenix, AZ.” It is not necessary to provide an itemized list of the assets of the business. You need only list the total value of your interest in the business and not such items as office equipment.” House Ethics Instructions, [2018]

2010: Con Ed Listed Malliotakis As An “Additional Lobbyist” On Four Lobbying Disclosures

2010: Con Ed Listed Malliotakis As An “Additional Lobbyist” On Four Bimonthly Lobbying Disclosures.

Consolidated Edison listed Malliotakis as an “additional lobbyist” on its bimonthly lobbying disclosures covering January – February 2010, March – April 2010, May – June 2010, and November – December 2010. Malliotakis was one of between 26 and 33 additional lobbyists listed on the disclosures. New York State Joint Commission on Public Ethics, Lobbyist Bimonthly Reports, January – December 2010, accessed [7/14/17]

An “Additional Lobbyist” Referred To The Subordinate Of A “Principal Lobbyist” Who “Work[ed] For Them As Part Of The Lobbying Effort.” “What was known as an additional lobbyist in 2010 is now known as an individual lobbyist following the implementation of JCOPE’s Comprehensive Lobbying Regulations in January 2019, according to JCOPE spokesman Walt McClure. Both terms refer to someone who works for a ‘Principal Lobbyist,’ McClure said in an email. In the bi-monthly reports Rose’s campaign published, Malliotakis is listed along with more than 20 names as subordinate to a Con Ed lobbyist, who is no longer with the company. ‘When a Principal Lobbyist files a Statement of Registration or a Lobbyist Bi-Monthly Report, they are required to list the names of those additional/individual lobbyists who are working for them as part of the lobbying effort on behalf of a particular client (or themselves, in the case of an entity that lobbies on its own behalf),’ McClure said.” Staten Island Advance, [7/10/20]

“Additional Lobbyists” Were Considered “Registered Lobbyists” According To The New York Joint Commission On Public Ethics, Which Was Established After Malliotakis Worked For Con Ed. “According to McClure, additional lobbyists were considered registered and required to take a training course every three years. However, JCOPE was only established in 2011, when Malliotakis had already taken office in the Assembly.” Staten Island Advance, [7/10/20]

August 2010: Malliotakis’ Incumbent State Assembly Opponent Said That Malliotakis Lobbied Her To Increase Con Ed Rates, Which Malliotakis Denied

August 2010: Malliotakis’ Incumbent State Assembly Opponent Janele Hyer-Spencer Said That Malliotakis “Came To [Her] In [Her] Office To Lobby For The Grid And Increased Con Ed Rates.” “In her campaign for the East Shore/Brooklyn Assembly seat, Republican Nicole Malliotakis has slammed incumbent Janele Hyer-Spencer, a Democrat, for taking campaign contributions from ‘special interests.’ But Ms. Hyer-Spencer said that

her challenger's status as a registered lobbyist for Consolidated Edison is proof that Ms. Malliotakis has special interests of her own. [...] Ms. Hyer-Spencer also said that Ms. Malliotakis at one time 'came to me in my office to lobby for the grid and increased Con Ed rates.'" Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

- Malliotakis Said She Only Met With Hyer-Spencer Three Years Prior To Give "A Standard Informational Presentation" That "Had Nothing To Do With Lobbying For A Rate Increase." "Ms. Hyer-Spencer also said that Ms. Malliotakis at one time 'came to me in my office to lobby for the grid and increased Con Ed rates.' But Ms. Malliotakis said that the meeting occurred three years ago, and that she was there to give a standard informational presentation on how the Con Edison electrical system functions. 'It had nothing to do with lobbying for a rate increase,' she said, adding that she was not registered with the integrity commission when the meeting took place. Ms. Malliotakis said she was the Staten Island public affairs manager for the utility at the time, and that Con Edison held such meetings with lawmakers each year before the beginning of the summer cooling season. Ms. Malliotakis said that was the 'only time I've ever met with her.'" Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

2010: Malliotakis Denied That She Was A Registered Lobbyist And Said She Only Worked Indirectly On Con Ed's Lobbying. "But Ms. Malliotakis said that she is 'not a registered lobbyist' and does not meet with elected officials as part of her job. She said that anybody at Con Edison who works even indirectly on the utility's lobbying efforts — such as preparing research or other information for use by Con Edison's listed principal lobbyist, John Banks — is required by law to be listed with the commission. 'She is misrepresenting me,' said Ms. Malliotakis." Staten Island Advance, [8/9/10]

July 2020: Con Ed Spokesperson Alfonso Quiroz Confirmed That Malliotakis Worked For The Company's Government Relations Team And "Attended Meetings Where Lobbying Took Place." "Lobbying accusations have followed Nicole Malliotakis throughout her life in politics, and the assemblywoman has tried to distance herself from the label. Most recently, the campaign of her opponent in the upcoming congressional election, Rep. Max Rose (D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn), published four documents from 2010 showing her listed as an 'additional lobbyist' for Con Edison, where Malliotakis (R-East Shore/South Brooklyn) once worked. Con Ed confirmed the veracity of those documents on June 29, and the company issued the following statement on Malliotakis' four years with the organization: 'Nicole worked as a manager in the company's Issues Management group in Government Relations and attended meetings where lobbying took place,' spokesman Alfonso Quiroz wrote in an email." July 2020: Malliotakis' Campaign Denied That She Was Ever A "Registered Lobbyist" For Con Ed And Said She Was Listed As An "Additional Lobbyist" "Out Of An Abundance Of Caution." "Malliotakis' campaign spokesman Rob Ryan issued a statement Monday continuing the attempts to distance the candidate from common perceptions of lobbying work like expensive meals and backroom deals. 'The facts are clear; Nicole Malliotakis was never a 'registered lobbyist,' Con Ed, out of an abundance of caution, listed her as an 'additional lobbyist' along with engineers, planners and designers who provided information from their departments to those who briefed elected officials,' he said." - New York Was One Of Only 10 States That Lacked A Public Advocate For Utilities. “Ferris, who works for AARP, has spearheaded a campaign to give a voice to those who struggle to pay increasingly heavyweight utility bills. To do that he’s supporting a bill in the New York State Legislature that would finally guarantee a place for ratepayers at the regulatory table and while AARP is the signature organization for seniors, it's a fight they've taken on for all ratepayers in the state. It's a modern twist on the old battle cry of the American colonists – 'no taxation without representation-' but in this version the AARP has called for representation via a public advocate's office - independent and insulated from political pressure - that can ensure transparency and accountability whenever the utilities (all seven of them) belly up to the regulatory bar looking for rubber stamp approval for rate hikes. New York State is only one of ten states - and by far, the largest - that lacks this sort of consumer protection." Huffington Post, [6/30/16]

2014: Malliotakis Voted Against A00860, A Bill Protecting Utility Customers Who Made Bill Payments To Authorized Payment Agents. On March 3, 2014, Malliotakis voted "No" on A00860, a bill that "Makes provisions regarding the payment of utility bills to authorized payment agencies providing that such payment shall be deemed to be a payment to the utility on the date of payment to the agent, requiring written contracts between a utility and its payment agent and review of such contracts by the public service commission." The bill's memo noted "This bill would protect consumers that pay their utility bills to an authorized payment agent. Under present law, if certain kinds of payment agents fail to remit utility payments promptly, consumers could be forced to pay the same bills twice or suffer disconnection, late penalties or other charges. This bill would not only prevent these results, but also avoid utility rate increases due to credit losses occurring when payment agents fail to remit payments to the utility." The bill passed the Assembly 98-35, but later died in the Senate. New York State Assembly, A00860, Introduced [1/9/13]

On June 21, 2019, Malliotakis voted "No" on S04118C, a bill that "Requires public utility companies to repair or replace all damaged residential lateral sewer and water pipes where such damage was caused by such public utility company." - Without The Bill, Homeowners Would Have Been Forced To Pay For Defective Water Lines That The Department Of Environmental Protection Found Were The Fault Of A Utility Company. "As well, under current law, the homeowners still bear the responsibility and financial cost of repeatedly replacing their water pipes, despite determinations by the Department of Environmental Protection that a public utility is at fault. Without any ability to cure the stray current causing damage to their water pipes, the homeowners at each site have been forced to continually replace their pipes or experiment with different technology in hopes of preventing the continual leaks. Some homeowners have had to replace their pipes up to 3 times. The cost to some of the homeowners, has been over ten thousand dollars each. Homeowners should not be burdened by damages and costs that are of no fault of their own but are the fault of a public utility company, whose are responsible for maintaining their own infrastructure." Malliotakis Voted Twice Against Requiring Public Utility Companies To Report Natural Gas Leaks To The Department Of Public Services. On March 29, 2017, and April 18, 2018, Malliotakis voted "No" on A00467, a bill that "Relates to reporting requirements for various classifications of gas leaks by utility corporations." Specifically, the bill would require gas companies to report, annually, to the Department of Public Service all reported natural gas leaks, and then require that information to be made available to municipal and state public safety officials. Current regulations only required gas companies to classify leaks according to severity, and not to report them to the Department. The bill passed the Assembly in 2017 by 109-37 and again in 2018 by 93-33, and was vetoed by the Governor on December 7, 2018. New York State Assembly, A00467, Introduced [1/9/17]

- 2014: Con Ed Revealed The Location Of 800 Gas Leaks It Had Previously Refused To Disclose To The Public. “In April, the I-Team, responding to the gas explosion in East Harlem that killed eight people a month earlier, first reported Con Edison's unwillingness to detail the leak locations and exposed a systemic backlog problem. Since fixing every known leak, which requires pipes be ripped up and replaced, is expensive, utilities were being allowed to backlog a certain number of leaks. Last year, Con Edison reported a backlog of more than 800 non-hazardous leaks to the New York Public Service Commission. Until now, those leak locations were known only to the utility.” NBC New York, [12/17/14]

2022 Congressional Campaign

February 2022: Malliotakis Accused New York Democrats Of “Trying To Just Change The Rules To Tilt The Scale” Through Their Redistricting Proposal

February 2022: Malliotakis Accused New York Democrats Of “Trying To Just Change The Rules To Tilt The Scale” Through Their Redistricting Proposal. “A congressional district map approved by the New York state Legislature could sink Republican Rep. Nicole Malliotakis in the November election. Still, she is projecting confidence and hitting back at Democrats for trying to ‘pick their constituents.’ ‘If we’ve learned anything from the Democrats this year, it’s that if they can’t win by the rules, they will change the rules. We saw them try to change the Senate filibuster. We saw them with their proposals to pack the Supreme Court. They tried three times to change election laws,’ Malliotakis, the only Republican member of Congress representing New York City, told the Washington Examiner on Wednesday. ‘They are desperate because they know they can’t beat us on policy, on merit, on debate,’ Malliotakis said. ‘They’re trying to just change the rules to tilt the scale.’” Washington Examiner, [2/3/22]

- Proposed New York Redistricting Would Move NY-11 From R+13 To D+7. “It also all but dooms Republican Rep. Nicole Malliotakis in the Staten Island-based 11th District (which moves from R+13 to D+7) and dismantles Republican Rep. Claudia Tenney’s old, heavily Republican district. (She said on Monday she would seek reelection in the open 23rd District instead.)” FiveThirtyEight, [1/31/22]

June 2021: Nikki Haley Endorsed Malliotakis. “Former South Carolina Governor and United Nations Ambassador Nikki Haley will officially announce her endorsement for Rep. Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn), who is running for reelection in 2022, on Friday. ‘Nicole Malliotakis is exactly what the Republican Party needs. She’s a young, driven, leader who has seen the dangers of socialism firsthand,’ Haley told the Advance. ‘The people of New York elected her to stand up for freedom and against the Squad’s radical agenda. I’m proud to endorse her because she’s a fighter who won’t back down,’ she continued.” Staten Island Advance, [6/17/21]

Malliotakis’ Campaign Accidentally Listed The Number Of A Brooklyn Woman’s Work Phone Number Instead Of Its Campaign Office On Thousands Of Mailers

August 2020: New York Daily News Headline: “Brooklyn Woman Bombarded With Calls After Malliotakis Campaign Accidentally Lists Wrong Number On Mailer.” New York Daily News, [8/25/20]

- Aine Chalmers, A 26-Year-Old Registered Democrat, Received More Than 100 Phone Calls After Malliotakis’ Campaign Accidentally Listed Her Work Phone Number On Thousands Of Mailers. “A Republican congressional hopeful on Staten Island sent out thousands of campaign mailers this month that listed the wrong phone number for a donation hotline, resulting in an unsuspecting Brooklyn woman getting bombarded with calls from potential supporters, the Daily News has learned. [...] Rather, the number’s connected to the work phone for Aine Chalmers, a 26-year-old environmental engineer and registered Democrat who lives in Crown Heights. ‘This has been very strange,’ Chalmers told The News this week. ‘I keep thinking, “What are the chances of this happening?”’ Chalmers, who supported Elizabeth Warren in the Democratic presidential primaries and is active with a progressive advocacy group called Persist Brooklyn, said she has gotten more than 100 calls over the past two weeks, most from Malliotakis supporters looking to donate, but also some from people who were angry about the Republican solicitation notice.” New York Daily News, [8/25/20]

- Malliotakis' Spokesperson Said The Campaign Accidentally Printed The Phone Number For Malliotakis' Mayoral Campaign And Apologized. “Rob Ryan, a spokesman for the Malliotakis campaign, said the first he heard of the faulty mailer was when The News reached out for comment Tuesday afternoon. Chalmers, however, said she tried to alert the campaign over Instagram, but that no one got back to her. ‘Funny enough, it’s impossible to get a hold of them,’ she said. Ryan said the error happened because the mail-house the campaign uses for political material had listed a phone number on the solicitation that it had on file from Malliotakis’ failed 2017 mayoral campaign. ‘A mistake was made by our mail-house,’ Ryan said. ‘The campaign will be reaching out to apologize to the person in question. It was a mistake that happened, it won’t happen again.’” New York Daily News, [8/25/20]

August 2020: Rudy Giuliani Endorsed Malliotakis

Max Rose, D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn. ‘I have a special love for the people of Staten Island. I hate to see them double crossed in Congress by Congressman Rose,’ the former mayor wrote on the social media site. ‘He obstructs everything President #Trump tries to do. A vote for him is a vote for Pelosi. VOTE FOR NO [sic] NICOLE MALLIOTAKIS!’ Giuliani has repeatedly offered his support for Malliotakis’ candidacy and his opposition to Rose, as has the president. May 2020: The NRA Endorsed Malliotakis’ Primary Opponent

May 2020: The NRA Endorsed Malliotakis’ Primary Opponent, Citing Her 2013 Vote For The NY Secure Ammunition And Firearms Enforcement (SAFE) Act And C Minus NRA Rating. “The NRA has endorsed little-known candidate Joe Caldarera over veteran state Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, who is the heavy favorite to win the primary and take on first-term Democratic Rep. Max Rose in the general election. The NRA is backing Caldarera even though President Trump and Republican and Conservative leadership are behind Malliotakis. Malliotakis, first elected to the Assembly in 2010, was the GOP candidate for mayor in 2017. While Democratic incumbent Bill de Blasio defeated her citywide, Malliotakis garnered an impressive 70 percent of the vote in her home borough of Staten Island. The NRA gave Caldarera the nod after giving Malliotakis a C minus for her legislative voting record. She voted for the NY Secure Ammunition and Firearms Enforcement Act in 2013 — gun safety restrictions that are opposed by the gun-rights lobby.” New York Post, [5/31/20]

February 2020: Trump Endorsed Malliotakis’ Congressional Campaign. “Two weeks after Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis broke the news about winning President Donald Trump’s full endorsement in the Island’s congressional race, the president made his endorsement official Wednesday. ‘@NMalliotakis is running for Congress in NY, I know her well, we need her to defeat Max Rose, who voted for Impeachment! “Following a visit to the White House last month to take part in the signing of the United States-Mexico-Canada Trade Agreement, Malliotakis told the Advance she won Trump’s ‘full support’ and endorsement in the congressional race, an endorsement she said the president would publicly announce ‘on his own timeline.’ However, the president’s campaign spokesman Tim Murtaugh had declined to comment on the endorsement at the time. ‘I am honored by President Trump’s endorsement and his words of support, spoken directly to the American people through his social media. April 2017: Malliotakis Filed For NYC Mayor And Said She Intended To Run So Long As Her “Good Friend” John Catsimatidis Did Not. “Republican party leaders in New York City hoped to avoid a primary fight and coalesce around a single candidate to take on Mayor Bill de Blasio, a Democrat, in the general election this fall. But instead of rallying around the putative front-runner, Paul J. Massey Jr., the universe of potential challengers has only grown. The latest to take steps toward entering the race is Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, who represents parts of Staten Island and Brooklyn; she has filed paperwork with the state and the city to run in the mayoral election. ‘My intention is to run, unless my good friend John Catsimatidis jumps into the race,’ Ms. Malliotakis said, referring to the billionaire Republican who spent heavily in a failed bid in the 2013 election and has not declared his intentions this year.” New York Times, [4/26/17]

2017: Malliotakis Lost The Endorsements Of The New York Times, The New York Daily News, And Crain’s Business New York

November 2017: The New York Times Editorial Board Endorsed De Blasio, Citing Malliotakis’ “Resolute Conservatism” That “Puts Her Out Of Sync With Most New Yorkers.” “But, over all, Mr. de Blasio has been an able mayor who can point to an impressively low crime rate, sound municipal finances and progress on revivifying schools and on creating reasonably priced apartments. And so we give him our endorsement in the general election on Tuesday. His principal opponent is Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, a Republican who represents slices of Staten Island and Brooklyn. An unfamiliar figure in wide swaths of the five boroughs, Ms. Malliotakis has run a spirited campaign and deserves credit for it. But her ambition seems to outpace her vision for the city. And her resolute conservatism puts her out of sync with most New Yorkers — and us — on pivotal matters like raising the state minimum wage (she opposed it), legalizing same-sex marriage (she voted no on that, too, though she later expressed regret) and immigration policy (she is tepid on the ‘sanctuary city’ concept).” New York Times, Editorial Board, [11/2/17]

In Its Announcement That It Would Withhold A 2017 Mayoral Endorsement, The New York Daily News Editorial Board Wrote Malliotakis “Spent Seven Unimpressive Years” In The New York Assembly. “[HEADLINE:] Our verdict on Bill de Blasio: Why the News withholds its NYC mayoral endorsement [...] Tenant de Blasio, neither of your opponents has earned the public trust. Nicole Malliotakis has spent seven unimpressive years as a Republican in the state Assembly, hardly a testing ground for leadership. Bo Dietl, a former police officer, is a joke, and not even a funny one.” New York Daily News, Editorial Board, [11/5/17]

In Its Announcement That It Would Withhold A 2017 Mayoral Endorsement, The Crain’s Business New York Editorial Board Wrote Malliotakis “Is Not Ready For The Job.” “[HEADLINE:] None of the above: Why Crain’s cannot endorse a candidate for mayor [...] Malliotakis, for her part, has done the city (and her career) a service by running when no other credible Republican would. Unfortunately she is not ready for the job. Her career in office consists of seven years in the powerless Assembly minority. Given her minimal management experience, she ought to have made her campaign one of big ideas. Yet she has proposed not a single one. Instead she has mostly criticized de Blasio, and even there she has fallen short. She expresses reservations about his business mandates and spending but does not make a strong case against them.” Crain’s Business New York, Editorial Board, [10/31/17]

The Staten Island Republican announced her interest in the 11th Congressional District seat shortly after Grimm's ignominious exit from the House after a guilty plea to federal tax charges. House Ethics Rules Prohibited Members From Using Official Resources On Campaign Activities, Including Photos On Capitol Grounds And Content Originally Published By House Offices Under Certain Conditions

The House Ethics Committee Prohibited Use Of Official Resources In Campaign Activities. “Official resources of the House must, as a general rule, be used for the performance of official business of the House, and hence those resources may not be used for campaign or political purposes. The laws and rules referenced in this section reflect ‘the basic principle that government funds should not be spent to help incumbents gain reelection.’” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The Ethics Committee Directed Incumbents To Remove “Official Indica,” Like Letterheads, And Official Contact Information, From Materials It Distributed That Were Originally Published By Their House Offices. “A separate question that arises at times is whether a Member’s campaign, having received a copy of an item that the congressional office issued publicly – such as a press release or Congressional Record statement – may then reproduce and distribute that item at campaign expense. The Committee addressed this matter in its Advisory Opinion No. 6, which was issued on September 14, 1982, and is reprinted in updated form in the appendices. A Member’s campaign is free to reproduce and distribute, for campaign purposes, materials that were originally prepared by the congressional office, provided that the following requirements are satisfied: The materials were prepared by the congressional office for a bona fide official purpose, and the official use of the materials has been exhausted; All the expenses associated with reproducing and distributing the materials are paid from campaign funds; and The materials themselves or the context in which they are presented clearly establishes their campaign or political purposes and hence their nonofficial use, so that there is no appearance that private funds are supplementing official allowances. In reproducing such materials, the campaign must remove all official indicia, such as the official letterhead from a press release that the congressional office had issued, and any references to the address or telephone number of the congressional office. The name of any congressional staff contact that appeared in the material as issued originally must also be deleted.” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The Ethics Committee Directed Incumbents’ Campaigns To Only Repost Content Published By Their House Offices After Its Original Use Was “Exhausted,” Usually “A Few Days After” The House Office Posted It.

“Member’s campaign is free to reproduce and distribute, for campaign purposes, materials that were originally prepared by the congressional office, provided that the following requirements are satisfied: The materials were prepared by the congressional office for a bona fide official purpose, and the official use of the materials has been exhausted; [...] A question may arise as to when the official use of an item has been ‘exhausted’ as that term is used here. As a general matter, the official use of the normal press release is exhausted once it has been disseminated and the media have had an opportunity to utilize its contents. Thus usually a campaign will be able to reproduce the contents of congressional office press releases a few days after their original issuance, provided that the other requirements set forth above are satisfied.” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

The House Ethics Committee Considered Content Taken On Or Near Capitol Grounds An Official Resource And Prohibited Its Use In Campaigns.

“The House buildings, and House rooms and offices – including district offices – are supported with official funds and hence are considered official resources. Accordingly, as a general rule, they may not be used for the conduct of campaign or political activities. Thus, for example, a Member may not film a campaign commercial or have campaign photos taken in a congressional office. For rules on filming and taking of photos on grounds near the Capitol, the office of the Sergeant at Arms should be contacted. In addition, House rooms and offices are not to be used for events that are campaign or political in nature, such as a meeting on campaign strategy, or a reception for campaign contributors.” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

Intentionally Reporting False Information On Federal And New York State Financial Disclosures Could Subject Filers To Prosecution And Fines Of Up To $50,000

House Ethics Rules Dictated That Filers Who Intentionally Disclosed False Information Could Be Fined Up To $50,000 And/Or Imprisoned For Up To Five Years. “The financial disclosure provisions of the Ethics in Government Act have been incorporated by reference as a rule of the House of Representatives, over which the Standards Committee has jurisdiction. House Staff Could Only Conduct Campaign Work On Their Own Time Without The Use Of Any Official Resources

House Staff Could Only Conduct Campaign Work On Their Own Time Without The Use Of Any Official Resources. “It is permissible for House employees to do campaign work, but only outside of congressional space, without the use of any House resources, and on their own time (as opposed to ‘official’ time for which they are compensated by the House). Accordingly, any House employee who does campaign work must ensure that the work – including any telephone conversations or other communications concerning campaign business – is performed strictly in compliance with these limitations.” House Ethics Committee, accessed [1/25/22]

Note: Further research would be needed to confirm whether these staffers conducted campaign work with official resources, including work on official time, to verify whether they violated House Ethics Committee rules.

Purchasing A Co-Op Grants Buyer An Interest Or Share In The Entire Building, Along With A Lease To Occupy A Unit. “Many people confuse condos with co-ops, thinking they are interchangeable. A condo is a private residence in a multiunit structure that includes ownership of commonly used property. A co-op is also a multiunit building, but that’s where the similarities end. A co-op owner has an interest or share in the entire building and a contract or lease that allows the owner to occupy a unit. While a condo owner owns a unit, a co-op owner does not own the unit. Co-ops are collectively owned and managed by their residents, who own shares in a nonprofit corporation. The corporation holds the title to the property and grants proprietary leases to residents, Isaacs said. The lease grants permanent rights to residents to live in their units and to use the common elements of the cooperative according to the co-op’s bylaws and regulations.” Washington Post, [1/31/18]

Ownership Stakes In Privately Held Entities Must Be Disclosed In House Financial Disclosures. “Ownership Interests in Privately-Held Partnerships, Corporations, and Other Business Entities. The manner in which you disclose ownership interests in a privately-held company depends on whether the company is actively engaged in a trade or business or was formed to hold investments (typically real estate). To disclose your ownership interest (or that of your spouse or dependent child) in a privately-held company that is actively engaged in a trade or business (such as a restaurant or car dealership), you must provide (1) the name of the business; (2) a brief description of the nature of its activities; and (3) its geographic location (city and state) in Block A of Schedule A. For example, “Peterson Construction Company, residential home builder, Phoenix, AZ.” It is not necessary to provide an itemized list of the assets of the business. You need only list the total value of your interest in the business and not such items as office equipment.” House Ethics Instructions, [2018]

September 2020: Malliotakis Was Subject To An FEC Complaint Over Allegedly Omitting Disclaimers From Two Ads; Complaint Was Dismissed In June 2021

September 2020: End Citizens United Submitted A Complaint To The FEC Commission That Alleged Malliotakis’ Campaign Failed To Include Required Disclaimers On Two Ads. “This complaint is filed under 52 U.S.C. § 30109(a)(1) against Nicole Malliotakis, Nicole for New York and Laura Schwartz, in her official capacity as Treasurer (collectively ‘Respondents’) for violating the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended (the ‘Act’) and Federal Election Commission (the ‘FEC’ or ‘Commission’) regulations, as described below. Respondents have failed to comply with the Commission’s disclaimer requirements for two television advertisements that they have approved and sponsored. As a result, the FEC should immediately investigate and levy appropriate sanctions against Respondents for their failure to comply with very basic requirements the Act and Commission regulations.” FEC Commission, End Citizens United v. Nicole for New York, Case # MUR 780, Complaint, received [9/21/20]

In Its Response, Malliotakis’ Campaign Stated It Added Disclaimers After The Complaint Was Filed. “The Complaint alleges that two television advertisements paid for by the Committee in support of Nicole Malliotakis’s campaign for New York’s 11th Congressional district contained insufficient disclaimers. Specifically, the Complaint alleges that the advertisements failed to include a written statement at the end of the advertisement, stating that the candidate approved the communication. The Response asserts that the advertisements originally included a verbal disclaimer by the candidate and a written disclaimer disclosing the source of funding, but acknowledges that the original advertisements did not include a written disclaimer showing approval by the candidate. The Response further states that upon receipt of the Complaint, the Committee adjusted the advertisements to include a written disclaimer of approval from the candidate.” FEC Commission, End Citizens United v. Nicole for New York, Case # MUR 780, General Counsel’s Report, filed [6/7/21]

2011: Malliotakis Accompanied Then-Rep. Michael Grimm On A Trip To Greece He Failed To Properly Disclose

2011: Malliotakis Accompanied Then-Rep. Michael Grimm On A Privately-Funded Trip To Greece He Failed To Disclose With The House Clerk. “When Representative Michael G. Grimm, a first-term Staten Island Republican, went on a fact-finding trip abroad last year, he widely publicized his first stop, Israel, sending off a stream of messages about his activities there via Twitter. But he was largely silent about his second stop, Cyprus. In fact, Mr. Grimm did not file required paperwork about the trip, which was paid for by a private organization, with the House clerk, according to Congressional records. Nor did he initially report the Cyprus trip on his Congressional financial disclosure filing in May, even though he did list the Israel trip, according to the records. [...] Mr. Papanicolaou accompanied him on the trip, as did Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, a Staten Island Republican who issued a news release about it.” New York Times, [8/8/12]

June 2012: Grimm Disclosed The Trip A Day After Peter Papanicolaou, The President Of The Organization That Paid For His Trip, Was Arrested For Allegedly Using Free Trips To Greece To Win City Contracts. “But in June, Mr. Grimm amended his financial disclosure filing to report the Cyprus trip, the records show. The amended filing came one day after his host on the trip, Peter Papanicolaou, the president of the Cyprus Federation of America, which paid for the $6,890 visit, was arrested in Brooklyn on federal corruption charges. Prosecutors accused Mr. Papanicolaou of treating an official of the city’s Department of Housing Preservation and Development to a free trip to Greece as part of a scheme to gain city contracts. Mr. Papanicolaou’s construction company in Brooklyn was awarded $95 million in department contracts between 2002 and 2008, according to city records.” New York Times, [8/8/12]

June 2013: Charges Against Papanicolaou Were Dropped. “A 2011 trip to Cyprus, which the congressman initially failed to include in his congressional financial disclosure forms, invited scrutiny after his host for the trip, Peter Papanicolaou, the then-president of the Cyprus Federation of American, was arrested in 2012 on federal corruption charges. (In June 2013, charges against Papanicolaou were dropped by U.S. Attorney Loretta Lynch.)” Politico, [12/30/14]

2020 – 2022: Ryan Spoke To Press As A Spokesperson For Malliotakis

January 2022: Ryan Spoke To The City As Malliotakis' Campaign Spokesperson. “‘Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis works hard, fights for her constituents and her office provides exceptional constituent service,’ said Rob Ryan, Malliotakis’ campaign spokesperson.’ Regardless of which map becomes final, she’ll win again in 2022.” The City, [1/3/22]

September 2021: Ryan Spoke To The New York Post As Malliotakis' Campaign Spokesperson. “Malliotakis campaign spokesman Rob Ryan said, ‘I’m shocked by the ghoulish and inappropriate fundraising appeal from Brittany Ramos DeBarros and her campaign. Nearly 50 people have died from Hurricane Ida in the northeast, over a dozen right here in New York City and she has no qualms about shamefully raising money off Ida’s death and destruction.’” New York Post, [9/3/21]

November 2020: Ryan Spoke To New York Daily News As Malliotakis' Spokesperson. “Malliotakis, a Republican and current assemblywoman, ousted Rep. Max Rose, a Democrat, in one of the most closely watched local elections this year. Her campaign waived the right to contest the fines to NYCCFB. ‘While we disagree with the findings of the board, the campaign agrees that a settlement is long overdue and it is time to move on,’ Malliotakis spokesman Rob Ryan said in a statement.” New York Daily News, [11/19/20]

October 2020: Rob Ryan Spoke To Gothamist As Malliotakis' Spokesperson. “Mayor Bill de Blasio said on Friday, the day before early voting kicks off in New York City, that he planned to recruit hundreds of city workers in a matter of days to join an ‘Election Observer Corps,’ a group assigned to stand outside poll sites across the city on Election Day, November 3rd, and help ensure voters don’t face intimidation at the polls. [...] Rob Ryan, the campaign spokesman for Malliotakis, who unsuccessfully ran for mayor in 2017, said de Blasio’s proposal was unnecessary and wrong. ‘The mayor has crossed the line; inserting hundreds of partisan city workers under his control into the electoral process,’ Ryan said.” Gothamist, [10/23/20]

September 2020: Ryan Spoke To Staten Island Advance As Malliotakis' Spokesperson. “They also asked for Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, R-East Shore/South Brooklyn, Rose’s opponent in the November Congressional election, to call for the ads removal. [...] Her campaign spokesman, Rob Ryan, was explicit in saying that they had no participation in production of the ad, which doesn’t mention the candidate, but also did not address the YLSI members’ calls for her to come out against the ad.” Staten Island Advance, [9/1/20]

January 2020: Ryan Spoke To The New York Daily News As Malliotakis' Campaign Spokesperson. “Malliotakis didn’t back down from her embrace of Langworthy’s vitriolic remarks Wednesday. ‘Through his support for impeachment, ending cash bail and Mayor de Blasio’s sanctuary policies, Max Rose has shown a blatant disregard for the will of his constituents, the Constitution and the rule of law,’ campaign spokesman Rob Ryan said.” New York Daily News, [1/15/20]

February 2003: Ryan Was Fired As The President Of The Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation After Questions Were Raised About Misappropriation Of Funds And Overpaying Himself For Work At Ground Zero After The 9/11 Attacks

February 2003: Ryan Was Fired As The President Of The Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation After Questions Were Raised About His Conversion Of Vacation Time Into Cash For Himself And 14 Others. “In February 2003, Mr. Ryan, then in his fourth year as president of the Roosevelt Island Operating Corporation, was suddenly escorted out of his office by a state public-safety worker. ‘I’m shocked; I’m appalled,’ Mr. Ryan told Newsday at the time. ‘I’m amazed. I feel like I’m in Russia during the time of Joe Stalin.’ The state board running Roosevelt Island later voted to suspend Mr. Ryan. Questions had been raised about vacation benefits, later converted to cash, that were given to him and 14 other employees. No charges were ever brought against Mr. Ryan, and he was later appointed an assistant secretary of state under Randy Daniels, a possible Republican candidate for governor. On the 10th of this month, Mr. Ryan, 49, left state government to become a private political consultant.” New York Times, [8/27/05]

- Ryan, George Pataki’s First Campaign Manager, Was Hired For The Position At Pataki’s Request During A Hiring Freeze. “Two years after he was abruptly ousted, with little public attention, as the top state official overseeing Roosevelt Island, Robert H. Ryan, Governor Pataki’s first campaign manager, has come under scrutiny again, now from a state legislator. [...] The assemblyman also seemed to raise the issues of cronyism and patronage. ‘We want to know why Mr. Ryan was immediately hired during a hiring freeze by the secretary of state at the request of Governor Pataki,’ Mr. Brodsky said.” New York Times, [8/27/05]

Ryan Allegedly Gave Himself And Other RIOC Employees Raises Without The Board’s Knowledge; He Said He “Indirectly” Notified The Board. “Then Mr. Ryan took the stand and an oath. Heavyset, with longish straight blond hair, Mr. Ryan’s hand visibly trembled as he held his prepared statement. He paused before launching his loud booming baritone in his defense. Mr. Ryan denied improperly awarding himself and select employees raises without the board’s knowledge; he said he never meant to conceal the ‘cost of living’ increases, and that he ‘indirectly’ notified the board. He claimed that RIOC’s chief financial officer at the time, Patrick Siconolfi, signed off on the raises, even originally suggesting them.” New York Observer, [10/17/05]

Ryan Allegedly Enriched Himself And Other RIOC Employees By Crediting Them For Work Done At Ground Zero After 9/11 Attacks, Sometimes Crediting Himself With 26 Hours Per Day, Which Ryan Denied. “Another allegation was that Mr. Ryan enriched himself and fellow employees of the RIOC by crediting work done at Ground Zero immediately following the terrorist attacks in 2001. Mr. Ryan said, ‘It was a horrific, horrific scene,’ and he told the assembled crowd how he walked in on an employee who was crying from the stress of working downtown and thought, ‘What can we do for these individuals?’ The solution: give them one hour’s credit for each hour worked at Ground Zero, with each credit convertible to cash. Mr. Ryan himself raked in 234 hours downtown, comparable to 29 full-time days’ worth of work. According to the hearing’s report, he even claimed 26 hours’ worth of work for some days spent at Ground Zero—a metaphysical impossibility. Mr. Ryan denied that, but said, ‘I offer no apologies.’” New York Observer, [10/17/05]

Benjamin Bifalco

October 2019: Benjamin Bifalco Was Fired From Malliotakis’ Office The Day He Was Indicted For Attempting To Fix An NCAA Basketball Game In A Mob-Related Scheme

12/12/18: In A Recorded Conversation With A Colombo Mob Family Associate, Bifalco Said He Paid Wagner College Basketball Starters To Throw A Game Against St. John's University That He Bet $50,000 They Would Lose. "Sources say the contest in question was a Dec. 16, 2018, game that the Wagner Seahawks and the heavily favored St. John's University Red Storm played at the Johnnies' home court at Carnesecca Arena in Queens. In a tape-recorded talk four days before the game, Bifalco told his childhood friend, Colombo mob family associate Joseph Amato Jr., that he had been dreaming about fixing a basketball game since freshman year. He also told Amato that he'd already paid $7,500 to three Seahawks starters he'd known since they were freshmen and that he was going to bet $50,000 on the game. During the discussion, Bifalco told Amato that his cash outlay was half of what he had promised the players if they agreed to lose the game by more than 20 points." New York Post, [8/7/20]

- Bifalco Was Ultimately Unable To Pay Off Any Of The Wagner College Players, Who Went On To Lose The Game Against St. John's University By 15 Points. "But as it turned out, Bifalco was all talk. Bifalco wasn't able to pay off any of the Wagner Seahawks and didn't wager any money on the game, either. That was perhaps the luckiest thing about his harebrained scheme. That's because St. John's, after leading by only a single point at halftime, went on to win easily, 73-58, but not by enough to cover the 17-point spread. He did have the right idea about betting the under, though."

Benjamin Bifalco, 27, who had faced up to six months in jail, was sentenced to one year of probation. He had pleaded guilty last year to attempted sports bribery involving a game between two Division I schools. 2012: As An Assemblymember, Malliotakis Was Good Friends With Democratic State Sen. Diane Savino

As An Assemblymember, Malliotakis Was Good Friends With Democratic State Senator Diane Savino; Malliotakis' Ring Tone For Her Was The Theme Song For "The Odd Couple." "They dine together at Da Noi in Fort Wadsworth because the restaurant is in both of their districts. They shop together in Macy's at the Staten Island Mall. They even drive up to Albany together. They also frequently arrive together on the social/political circuit of nightly events that is a mainstay for Staten Island's movers and shakers. But the friendship between Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis and state Sen. Diane Savino is like no other: Ms. Malliotakis is a conservative Republican newbie completing her first year in office; Ms. Savino, a seasoned progressive Democrat in her fourth term. The Florida Republican has not been charged with a crime, but there's plenty of reason to believe Gaetz is in serious trouble. His self-described wingman, Joel Greenberg, has already pleaded guilty to six felonies, including sex trafficking a minor—a minor who Greenberg says Gaetz also paid to have sex with—and prosecutors dropped 27 charges in exchange for Greenberg's cooperation. [...] When The Daily Beast asked Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-NY) about keeping Gaetz on committees, she repeatedly refused to answer and instead asked her own question. 'Where's Ilhan Omar? Where's the vote to take Ilhan Omar off the Foreign Affairs Committee?' she said." Daily Beast, [6/25/21]

2021 Trump Impeachment

Malliotakis Voted Against Impeaching President Trump For Incitement Of Insurrection, Which She Called A “Political Charade”

Malliotakis Voted Against Impeaching President Trump For Incitement Of Insurrection. In January 2021, Malliotakis voted against “Adoption of the article of impeachment that would impeach President Donald Trump for incitement of insurrection by ‘inciting violence against the government of the United States.’ Specifically, it would state that Trump ‘repeatedly issued false statements’ asserting that the results of the 2020 presidential election were the product of widespread fraud and should not be accepted or certified. It would state that Trump made statements at a rally on Jan. 6, 2020, that ‘encouraged -- and foreseeably resulted in -- lawless action’ at the Capitol building during the certification of electoral college votes, during which protesters entered the Capitol, attacked law enforcement personnel, ‘menaced’ members of Congress and the vice president, and engaged in other ‘violent, deadly, destructive, and seditious acts.’ It would state that Trump’s conduct on Jan. 6 followed prior efforts ‘to subvert and obstruct’ the certification of 2020 presidential election results, including during a Jan. 2 phone call during which he urged Georgia Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger to ‘find’ enough votes to overturn the state’s presidential election results and ‘threatened Secretary Raffensperger if he failed to do so.’ It would state President Trump’s ‘endangered the security of the United States and its institutions of government’ and that he ‘threatened the integrity of the democratic system, interfered with the peaceful transition of power, and imperiled a coordinate branch of government.’ Pursuant to the rule (H Res 41), upon adoption of the article of impeachment, the House agreed to the resolution (H Res 40) that would appoint and authorize the following impeachment trial managers to conduct the impeachment trial against President Donald Trump in the Senate: Reps. Raskin, D-Md., DeGette, D-Colo., Cicilline, D-R.I., Castro, D-Texas, Swalwell, D-Calif., Lieu, D-Calif., Plaskett, D-V.I., Neguse, D-Colo., and Dean, D-Pa.” The article of impeachment was adopted, 232-197. - February 2021: Malliotakis Called Trump’s Second Impeachment A “Political Charade” And A “Second Attempt To Destroy Donald Trump.” “Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (NY-11) today released the following statement after the Senate voted to acquit former President Trump on all charges relating to his role in the January 6 attack on the U.S. Capitol building: ‘Everyone agrees that the individuals who attacked the Capitol complex on January 6 should be held accountable and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.’

However, this unconstitutional impeachment trial, a second attempt to destroy President Trump, is nothing more than a political charade. It's time for Congress to stop wasting its time and taxpayer money. Let us move forward to address truly pressing issues like expanding access to the vaccine, restoring our economy and American jobs, reopening schools and bringing our supply chain home. There's too much work to be done to spend another day on this partisan sham.” Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, Press Release, [2/13/21]

- January 2021: Malliotakis Said Of Trump’s Second Impeachment, “It Is Time To Heal This Nation And Move Forward Together To Address Pressing Issues.” “Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn, does not support efforts to remove President Donald Trump from his final days in office, a spokeswoman said Monday. Politicians on both sides of the aisle have expressed support for the president's removal either through the 25th Amendment or a second impeachment. The first-term congresswoman is opposed to those efforts, but said that following last week's congressional certification of the election, in which she voted to object to electors from two states, it was clear that former Vice President Joe Biden would be the nation's 46th president. ‘Following last week's certification, Joe Biden is the president-elect of the United States and President Trump has indicated that he will work with him to transition over the coming weeks,’ she said in an emailed statement. ‘It is time to heal this nation and move forward together to address pressing issues like overcoming this pandemic, reopening our economy and getting Americans back to work.’” Staten Island Advance, [1/11/21]

Malliotakis Voted Against Blocking A Resolution Establishing A Bipartisan Commission To Investigate The January 6th Attack As An Alternative To Impeaching President Trump

Malliotakis Voted Against Blocking A Resolution Establishing A Bipartisan 9/11-Style Commission To Investigate The January 6th Attack On The U.S. Capitol. In January 2021, Malliotakis voted against a “McGovern, D-Mass., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment) on the rule (H Res 41).” According to the Congressional Record, Rep. Cole stated: “Mr. Speaker, if we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to immediately bring up a resolution establishing a bipartisan national commission on the domestic terrorist attack on the United States Capitol. This proposed bipartisan commission will be tasked with examining and reporting upon the terror attack upon our Capitol that occurred last Wednesday. The commission will be bipartisan in nature, modeled after the 9/11 Commission, and will fully be empowered to undertake a full investigation and make recommendations to the President and to Congress. I can think of no more appropriate path for Congress to follow than by ensuring a bipartisan commission reviews all evidence and reports back to us on this horrific event.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the resolution. The motion was agreed to, 221-205. 2020 Trump Impeachment

September 2019: Malliotakis Called The Russia Investigation A “Partisan Witch Hunt”

September 2019: Malliotakis Called The Russia Investigation A “Partisan Witch Hunt” And Claimed That Democrats Were “Trying To Undo The 2016 Election.” “On Thursday, a secret whistleblower complaint at the center of Congress’ impeachment inquiry was released. It alleges Trump abused the power of his office to ‘solicit interference from a foreign country’ in next year’s U.S. election. The White House then tried to ‘lock down’ the information to cover it up, the complaint says. Malliotakis said she stood behind the president and appeared to not be concerned about the call or efforts to impeach him. ‘The Democrats have been conducting a partisan witch hunt against President Trump since the day he was elected, making unfounded accusations, trying to block his nominees, using the media to distort the truth, and wasting time and tax dollars in the process,' Malliotakis said. 'Working with an ally to end corruption in their country and investigate any foreign interference in the 2016 elections should be an issue of bipartisan consensus, but instead the liberals in Congress are still trying to undo the 2016 election. "'During his campaign and in office, Max Rose claimed that he's a moderate. But in reality, he votes with Nancy Pelosi over 95% of the time, and he has caved to Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Ilhan Omar and the socialist squad. What's even more disturbing is the way Max flipped-flopped and joined the ranks of Reps. Jerry Nadler and Adam Schiff in voting for their dubious Articles of Impeachment,' Malliotakis continued.'" 'The House Democrats' efforts to remove President Trump with no evidence and no facts is a farce of the impeachment process and underscores the left's desperation to take back the White House by any means,' Malliotakis said. Presidential Powers

Malliotakis Voted Against The Protecting Our Democracy Act, Which Included Provisions To Strengthen Checks On Presidential Powers And Executive Branch Oversight. In December 2021 Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill, as amended, that would include a number of provisions to strengthen checks on presidential powers and the executive branch and prohibit foreign influence. Among provisions related to presidential and executive branch accountability and oversight, the bill would void any pardon the president issues to himself or herself. If the president grants a pardon for offenses arising from investigations involving the president or their family members, administration members or campaign employees, it would require the Justice Department to share all materials related to the investigation with Congress. It would exempt the duration of a president or vice president's tenure from the statute of limitations for any federal offense committed by that person prior to or during their tenure. It would include various provisions to limit national emergency powers, including to automatically terminate emergency declarations after 20 congressional session days unless Congress passes a joint resolution of approval and to specify that the president's national emergency powers may not be used to authorize or fund any activity not authorized or funded by Congress. It would require the Justice Department to maintain a log of communications between DOJ and White House officials relating to civil or criminal investigations and require the department's inspector general to review the log for any improper communications. It would specify a list of causes for which the president or an agency head may remove an inspector general. It would strengthen enforcement and penalties under the Hatch Act, which prohibits federal employees from engaging in partisan political activities, including to authorize the Office of Special Counsel to investigate potential violations without first receiving an allegation and clarify that White House senior officials are subject to the Hatch Act. It would expand federal whistleblower protections, including to prohibit retaliation against federal employees who disclose waste, fraud and abuse. Among provisions relating to spending and other Congressional powers, the bill would require appropriated funding to be made available for obligation no later than 90 days before its availability would expire, and prohibit the rescission or deferral of funds in such 90-day period. It would require executive agencies to make public documents used in apportioning appropriations and add congressional notification and reporting requirements related to spending activity. It would statutorily require witnesses subpoenaed by Congress to testify and provide the requested information unless prohibited by federal law or the Constitution. It would affirm Congress' ability to enforce subpoenas through civil lawsuits and require courts to expedite such lawsuits. Among provisions related to elections and foreign influence, it would require major-party candidates for president and vice president to submit their tax returns from the past 10 years to the Federal Election Commission, require the FEC to make such returns public and require the same disclosures annually for the sitting president and vice president. It would require political committees to notify the FBI within one week of any foreign contact by a candidate, or a candidate's family members or employees. November 2020: Malliotakis Suggested She Would Favor Hosting Trump's Presidential Library On Staten Island

November 2020: Malliotakis Suggested She Would Support Locating Trump's Presidential Library On Staten Island. "[CITY & STATE NY:] It looks like Donald Trump's presidency may be coming to an end soon. Will you be pushing for the Trump Presidential Library on Staten Island? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think that's (City Council Member) Joe Borelli's endeavor (laughs). The first time I met Donald Trump he was speaking at the commencement ceremony at Wagner College, around 2004. He has a long history on Staten Island. His dad owned some apartments here and he grew up collecting the rent. Tysens Apartments and some on Howard Avenue as well. He's beloved here in his community. He's the president and deserves a library just like the others, and if the other boroughs don't want him, I'm sure we'll find a place here on Staten Island." City & State NY, [11/9/20]

September 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The Women's Health Protection Act, Which She Called "Barbaric" and "Inhumane"

September 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The Women's Health Protection Act, Which Would Federally Codify Roe V. Wade Protections

Malliotakis Voted Against The Women's Health Protection Act. In September 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill that would statutorily establish that health care providers have a right to provide and patients have a right to receive abortion services, and it would prohibit certain restrictions related to abortion services. The bill would specify that rights established by the bill may not be restricted by certain requirements or limitations related to abortion services, including prohibitions on abortion prior to fetal viability, or after fetal viability if a provider determines that continuation of a pregnancy would pose a risk to a patient's life or health; requirements that patients disclose reasons for seeking an abortion or make medically unnecessary in-person appointments; requirements that providers provide medically inaccurate information or perform specific medical tests or procedures in connection with the provision of abortion services; limitations on providers' ability to prescribe drugs based on good-faith medical judgment, provide services via telemedicine or provide immediate services when a delay would pose a risk to a patient's health; and requirements for facilities and personnel that would not apply to facilities providing medically comparable procedures. It would also prohibit requirements or limitations that are similar to those established by the bill or that impede access to abortion services and expressly or implicitly single out abortion services, providers or facilities. It would specify factors that courts may consider to determine whether a requirement or limitation impedes access to abortion services, including whether it interferes with providers' ability to provide services; poses a risk to patients' health; is likely to delay or deter patients in accessing services or necessitate in-person visits that would not otherwise be required; is likely to result in a decreased availability of services in a state or region; is likely to result in increased costs of providing or obtaining services; or imposes penalties that are not imposed on other health care providers for comparable conduct. It would require a party defending a requirement or limitation to establish that it significantly advances the safety of abortion services or patient health and that such goals cannot be advanced by a less restrictive alternative measure. It would authorize the Justice Department, health care providers and private individuals and entities to bring a civil action in U.S. district court for injunctive relief against any state or government official charged with implementing or enforcing a requirement or limitation challenged as a violation of rights established by the bill. It would authorize district courts to award appropriate equitable relief, including temporary, preliminary or permanent injunctive relief, and to award costs of litigation to a prevailing plaintiff. It would require courts to "liberally construe" provisions of the bill to effectuate its purposes." The bill passed by a vote of 218-211. HR 3655, [Vote #295, 9/24/21; CQ, 9/24/21]

American Independent Fact Check On WHPA: “No, Democrats Did Not Vote For Abortion ‘On Demand Until Birth.’” “[HEADLINE:] Fact check: No, Democrats did not vote for abortion 'on demand until birth' [...] Democrats in the House of Representatives on Friday passed the Women's Health Protection Act, a bill that would set in law the abortion rights protections enshrined in the Constitution and affirmed in the Supreme Court's 1973 ruling in Roe v. Wade. House Republicans, who unanimously opposed the legislation, falsely accused the Democrats of voting for ‘on-demand’ abortion through nine months of pregnancy. [...] But, like the precedents set by the Supreme Court's decisions in Roe and in Planned Parenthood of Southern Pennsylvania v. 2018: Malliotakis Wrote In Op-Ed That Cuomo Executive Order Protecting Abortion Rights Was Unnecessary As “No One Had Even Discussed Taking These Rights Away.” In a The New York Post op-ed Nicole Malliotakis wrote, “At a news conference last week, Cuomo breathlessly announced that his signing of the executive order ‘protects a woman’s right to choose, protects a woman’s right to contraceptive care.’ The problem with this scenario is that no one had even discussed taking these rights away. For close to a half-century, the Democratic Party has used Roe v. Wade as a political bogeyman to scare women and score political points by threatening that electing Republicans would result in this landmark decision on abortion rights being overturned. History puts the lie to this scare tactic. Since the decision on Roe v. Wade was handed down in 1973, there have been six Republican presidents. For 20 of those years, there's been a Republican majority in either the House or the Senate and for a four-year period under George W. Bush, the GOP controlled both houses of Congress and the presidency. Somehow, through all of this, laws regarding a woman's access to contraception and abortion in New York state have remained basically unchanged." In this instance, the sky is supposedly falling because President Trump had the audacity to pick a well respected and longtime member of the federal bench as his nominee for the US Supreme Court. Really what this is about is the integrity of the system and ensuring that every vote that is counted is a legal one, and we need to ensure that those votes that are counted are illegal are prosecuted, and that’s what this really is about more than anything. January 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certification Of Election Results Because “There Had Been Court Cases In Those States That Had Not Been Heard” And The States Violated Their Constitutions

1/21/21: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certification Of Election Results Because “There Had Been Court Cases In Those States That Had Not Been Heard.” “[BURNETT:] So -- so how do you bring the desire to make sure everything is done and every vote that counts -- that should count, counts with actually objecting the results of an election in states that aren't even yours? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, again, these states were objected to by members within the House. And I listened and I -- I decided to vote along -- against the certification because I did believe, in those two particular states -- by the way, states that violated their state constitutions and the U.S. Constitution -- they changed rules without the proper approval of the state legislature. There had been court cases in those states that had not been heard. In fact, a case in Arizona was never heard due to a time issue because there was a deadline for certification. I think the American people deserve the -- deserve to hear what -- what -- what could be presented.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) :21

December 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Certifying Electors From Arizona And Pennsylvania Because They Violated Their State Constitutions. “[ANCHOR:] On January 6, right after the attack on the Capitol, in an attempt to overturn the results of the election, you voted to throw out the electoral votes of two states, and then later voted against creating a panel to investigate the attack. Do you think the riot represented a fundamental attack on democracy? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly I was in the Capitol that day, and I was obviously very concerned about what occurred, but the reality is that vote on January 6, was simply an interpretation of the Constitution. Those two states violated the Constitution, and therefore I voted because to not uphold the electors for those two particular states. [ANCHOR:] What states violated the Constitution, how did that happen? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, Arizona and Pennsylvania, according to the Constitution, the electors need to be decided by the state legislature in those two states. They didn't do that, they circumvented the legislature. And that is why it was a violation. It's a simple reading of the constitution of those two states.” NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 9:25

1/21/21: Malliotakis Claimed It Was “Never [Her] Intention” To Change The Outcome Of The 2020 Election By Voting Against Certification Of Election Results. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, look, it doesn't matter to me if it was one vote, 10 votes, or 10,000 votes, the American people deserve to know. One vote that's fraudulent is one too many. And by the way, those two states, without those electoral votes, President Biden would still be president today. And so, it wouldn't have changed any outcome of the election. And that was never my intention. And by the way, Democrats since 1989 have challenged the electoral vote of every single Republican president. So, I see that there's a double standard here when it comes to that process that we have on the House floor and our ability to certify and our requirement to either certify or not certify.” CNN, [1/21/21] (VIDEO) 2:24

December 2021: Malliotakis Defended Her Vote Against Certifying Presidential Electors By Saying The Number Of Electors She Opposed Would Not Have Been Enough To Change The Final Result. “[ANCHOR:] You said that those should be thrown out. So you think the election was wrongly decided? Is that true? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Those electors were not determined in accordance to the Constitution and the law. That is what I said. Multiple states engaged in litigation and thousands of witnesses have submitted sworn affidavits of reported fraud related to the 2020 presidential election. One thing is clear — our elections process has devolved into chaos. “[BASH:] Does it concern you that the president is undermining the results of an election that both of you won? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don’t believe that the president is undermining anything. I believe that he is within his legal rights to be questioning any irregularities that have -- may have surfaced. Look, this is a legal process. This is the Constitution. This should be all settled in December. And the president said, should Joe Biden be elected by the electors, that he will conform with a peaceful transition. I think that’s very important. But in order for us to work together and to have bipartisanship, we need the public to have trust in our system. And this really is the -- about the integrity of our election system. 1/7/21: Malliotakis Said Insurrectionists Had “So Much Frustration” Because Voter Fraud Claims Did Not “Have Their Day In Court.” “[HOST:] What precipitated the violence in the Capitol was the ‘Stop the Steal’ rally early in the day. Do you feel that it was stolen from Donald Trump? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I believe that it doesn’t matter whether it was ten votes, 10,000 votes, or enough to overturn the election. I think what occurred in these particular states needs to be investigated. [HOST:] And it will be. [MALLIOTAKIS:] And they did not have their day in court. As a matter of fact, they were – they did not have their day in the court, and that’s part of the problem, the evidence was never heard due to deadlines, and I think that’s why you’re seeing so much frustration and why you have tens of thousands of Americans come to the Capitol yesterday. But we do need to move forward now as a nation and work together as much as possible to get our nation back on track, overcome this virus, reopen our economy, and get Americans back to work.” Fox News, [1/7/21] (VIDEO) 3:33

As Of January 6, 2021, 61 Of 62 Lawsuits Challenging Presidential Election Results Failed, Dismissed On Merits Or For Lack Of Standing. “The president and his allies filed 62 lawsuits in state and federal courts seeking to overturn election results in states the president lost, according to Marc Elias, a Democratic election lawyer who is tracking the outcomes. Out of the 62 lawsuits filed challenging the presidential election, 61 have failed, according to Elias. Some cases were dismissed for lack of standing and others based on the merits of the voter fraud allegations. The decisions have come from both Democratic-appointed and Republican-appointed judges – including federal judges appointed by Trump. USA Today, [1/6/21]

Malliotakis Dodged Questions About Whether The Capitol Insurrection Represented An Attack On Democracy Or “Legitimate Political Discourse”

December 2021: When Asked If The Insurrection Represented An “Attack On Democracy,” Malliotakis Did Not Directly Answer, Pivoting To Claim Her “Vote On January 6th Was Simply An Interpretation Of The Constitution.” “[ANCHOR:] On January 6, right after the attack on the Capitol, in an attempt to overturn the results of the election, you voted to throw out the electoral votes of two states, and then later voted against creating a panel to investigate the attack. Do you think the riot represented a fundamental attack on democracy? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly I was in the Capitol that day, and I was obviously very concerned about what occurred, but the reality is that vote on January 6, was simply an interpretation of the Constitution. Those two states violated the Constitution, and therefore I voted because to not uphold the electors for those two particular states. [ANCHOR:] What states violated the Constitution, how did that happen? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, Arizona and Pennsylvania, according to the Constitution, the electors need to be decided by the state legislature in those two states. They didn’t do that, they circumvented the legislature. And that is why it was a violation. It’s a simple reading of the constitution of those two states.” NY1, Inside City Hall, [12/16/21] (VIDEO) 9:25

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Bipartisan, 9/11-Style Commission To Investigate January 6th Attack, Which She Claimed Was Redundant And Politicized

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Bipartisan, 9/11-Style Commission To Investigate January 6th Attack

Malliotakis Voted Against A Bill Establishing A Bipartisan Commission To Investigate The January 6, 2021 Attack On The U.S. Capitol. In May 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill that would establish a national commission to investigate facts and causes related to the Jan. 6, 2021, “domestic terrorist attack” on the U.S. Capitol; examine and evaluate evidence developed by relevant federal, state and local governmental agencies; and build upon the investigations of other entities. It would require the commission to investigate facts and circumstances of the attack related to intelligence and law enforcement agency activities and factors contributing to the attack, including online platforms and foreign influence operations; identify and analyze the causes of and lessons learned from the attack with regard to law enforcement operations and security protocol at the Capitol; and submit to the president and Congress reports containing findings and recommendations for corrective measures that are agreed to by a majority of the commission. The commission would be composed of ten members, evenly chosen by the majority and minority parties, who have national recognition and significant experience in at least two subject areas related to the attack, such as law enforcement, intelligence, law, civil rights and counterterrorism. Among other provisions, the bill would authorize the commission to issue subpoenas and hold hearings and specify that the commission would submit its final report by the end of 2021 and terminate 60 days after submitting the report.” The bill passed 252-175. Malliotakis Called The Bipartisan Commission To Investigate The January 6th Insurrection “Redundant” And Politicized, Complained It Did Not Investigate Unrelated Riots Earlier In 2020

May 2021: Malliotakis: “I Believe Creating An Additional Commission Is Redundant And Would Interfere With Criminal Prosecutions.” “Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn) and most of her Republican colleagues don't think what the Democratic majority has proposed is the right move. Here's why, according to Staten Island's only congressional representative. ‘At this time, there are several ongoing investigations underway by the Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Department of Homeland Security in which over 400 people have been arrested and charged in connection to the violence and destruction that occurred at the Capitol on January 6,’ she said in an emailed statement. [...] Malliotakis said that in addition to the ongoing criminal investigations that have charged more than 440 people, two ‘bipartisan commissions are underway in the Senate, in which the findings are imminent and expected to be made public within weeks.’ ‘After reading the legislation and consulting with counsel, I believe creating an additional commission is redundant and would interfere with criminal prosecutions,’ she continue. - December 2021: Malliotakis Said She Voted Against Investigating January 6th Because The Committee Was “Completely Political” And “We Have A Lot Of The Answers” As To Who Committed Violence. “[ANCHOR:] I know this will come up in the election next year, but why did you vote against investigating the riot at the Capitol? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Because everything Nancy Pelosi does is political. Everything she does is politicized. [ANCHOR:] Okay. Okay. Okay. Okay. Okay. It’s personal, it’s about Nancy Pelosi, you don’t care about why five people were killed and dozens were wounded, and a scaffold was set up outside and the Speaker’s office was, was ransacked and so forth. You don’t want to look into that at all? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I think we have a lot of the answers to that already. And that is why people are being prosecuted according to the law. Look, I mean, I think you’re being very political right now in saying this, because Nancy Pelosi set up a committee that is completely political. And at the end of the day, I believe that my constituents care about that they’re paying so much more for gas prices, that they can’t afford to put food on the table, that they’re losing their jobs. Malliotakis Criticized The Bill For “Exclud[ing] Other Political Violence Including The Riots That Destroyed Cities Across America Over The Summer.” “Malliotakis’ office pointed to 10 amendments Republicans submitted in the House that Democrats rejected as to what they’d like to see added to the legislation. Some of the amendments set deadlines for the commission to issue a report and its funding, while others increase the authority of Republicans on the commission. ‘This bill omits language that would prohibit interference with current criminal investigations and limits the scope to exclude other political violence including the riots that destroyed cities across America over the summer, the vehicular attack against Capitol Police in April, in which an officer was killed, and the attempted murder of Republican Members of Congress in June of 2017,’ she continued.” Staten Island Advance, [5/20/21]

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing A Select Committee To Investigate January 6th Attack Following The Failure To Establish A Bipartisan Commission

Malliotakis Voted Against The Establishment Of The Select Committee To Investigate The January 6 Attack On The US Capitol. It would require the committee to investigate facts and circumstances of the attack related to intelligence and law enforcement agency activities and factors contributing to the attack, including online platforms and foreign influence operations; identify and analyze the causes of and lessons learned from the attack with regard to law enforcement operations and security protocol at the Capitol; and submit to Congress reports including findings and conclusions of its investigations, legislative recommendations, and recommendations for corrective measures. The resolution would authorize the speaker of the House to appoint 13 members to the committee, including five members after consultation with the minority leader. Among other provisions, it would authorize the committee chair to issue subpoenas, authorize such sums as may be necessary for committee expenses, and specify that the committee would terminate 30 days after filing its final report to Congress.” The bill passed 222 to 190. Budget Issues

Significant Findings

- ✓ In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against the Build Back Better Act and said “absolutely” when asked if she opposed “all elements” of the bill.
- ✓ BBB would make historic investments in child care and energy efficiency, lower drug costs for seniors, and reduce taxes for nine out of ten families.
- ✓ Malliotakis criticized BBB’s expanded child tax credit, which would benefit 134,000 children in her district, because it did not include a work requirement.
- ✓ Malliotakis claimed she supported repealing the SALT deduction cap, but said she would not support it in BBB if it was “tied with a bunch of other nonsense.”
- ✓ Malliotakis falsely claimed that BBB would raise taxes on Americans of all income levels, double the size of the IRS, increase inflation, raise prescription drug prices, and move jobs overseas.
 - ✓ In reality, BBB would lower drug costs, cut taxes for 9 of 10 households, ease inflation, and close tax loopholes for companies that offshore jobs.
- ✓ Between September and December 2021, Malliotakis voted against raising the debt limit three times; experts warned failure to raise the debt limit could have led to a “cataclysmic” economic crisis.
- ✓ Malliotakis claimed raising the debt limit “will only exacerbate” economic challenges by empowering Democrats.

Build Back Better Act

November 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better And Said She Was “Against All Elements” Of It; The Bill Would Lower Energy Costs, Taxes For Most Families, And Drug Prices For Seniors While Investing In Child Care

November 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better

Malliotakis Voted Against The Build Back Better Act. In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the fiscal 2022 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, that would provide approximately $2 trillion in investments and tax cuts to address climate change and child care, health care, education, housing and other social policies intended to support families. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a “maximum fair price” for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program's debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. It would provide $78.9 billion to improve IRS operations and tax enforcement.” The bill passed by a vote of 220-213. HR 5376, [Vote #385, 11/19/21; CQ, 11/19/21]

Build Back Better Would Invest In Child Care, Reduce Household Energy Costs, Lower Drug Prices For Seniors, And Cut Taxes For Most Families

even more so by school and daycare closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, which has disproportionately impacted women's labor force participation. Increasing the capacity of industries in order to curb inflation of specific prices requires increasing the supply of labor. The Build Back Better Act invests in existing and new childcare facilities in underserved areas and provides subsidies to make childcare more affordable for qualifying households. Together, these investments would increase the supply of childcare, create new jobs, and allow parents to get back to work. Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

Center For American Progress: Build Back Better Act Would Invest In Clean Electricity And Energy Efficiency, Reducing Energy Costs By $500 Per Year For The Average Household. “Build Back Better helps break the United States’ dependence on fossil fuels—an industry that’s particularly vulnerable to extreme weather, which has and will continue to be exacerbated by climate change—consumer energy costs will be reduced. Specifically, proposed investments in clean electricity and energy efficiency will make energy costs more affordable, saving the average household approximately $500 a year in reduced energy costs. This much-needed investment in clean energy would come at a time when energy prices have pushed up inflation for consecutive months.” Center for American Progress, [11/16/21]

The socialist spending package that I’m against is the one that will perpetuate labor shortages. It provides welfare without work expansion. Some of the problems we’re seeing with disincentivizing work and production, that’s in that particular bill that has not come up yet and hopefully it will not come up.” Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/6/21] (VIDEO) 5:44

December 2021: Malliotakis Said Build Back Better Would Mean “Starting New Entitlement Programs We Can’t Afford,” Including The Child Tax Credit. “[VARNEY:] They’ll try to bring parts of it back. Parts of it could come back. Is there anything you like? [MALLIOTAKIS:] There’s not much in there to like, to be honest. Look, it’s really riddled with a lot of unnecessary spending, and at the end of the day with the inflation that we’re facing, there is no reason to be taking on new entitlement programs. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we’ve been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. And again, these are hard assets, very different from starting new entitlement programs that we can’t afford. And I think Joe Manchin was right, even with the child credit, you know, that is entitled to people who are in the country – they wanted to give that to people illegally, and they also wanted to give it to people who were not working, which defeats the purpose of a child care credit. So I think that we’re on the right track right here, we successfully pushed back against the Build Back Better is dead.” Fox News via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [12/20/21] (VIDEO) :56

As Of August 2021, NY-11 Had Received $33.7 Million In Expanded Child Tax Credit Payments For 134,000 Children. According to estimates from the Joint Economic Committee, New York’s 11th Congressional District had received $33.7 million in Child Tax Credit payments as of August 2021: “Using state-level data from the Treasury Department on advance Child Tax Credit (CTC) payments, the Joint Economic Committee estimated the number of qualifying children, total number of payments, and total payment amount by congressional district in August 2021, when the second round of CTC payments was distributed.” Joint Economic Committee, [9/9/21; Joint Economic Committee, Estimates of Advance Child Tax Credit Distribution by Congressional District, 9/9/21]

- Build Back Better Would Ensure That Families Received An Expanded Child Tax Credit Through 2022 And Make The Credit Permanent For Families With Low Or No Annual Income. “The House Build Back Better legislation would ensure that families continue to get a significantly expanded Child Tax Credit via monthly payments through 2022; and it would permanently make the full credit available to children in families with low or no earnings in a year, locking in substantial expected reductions in child poverty. The expanded credit benefits roughly 9 in 10 children across the country, and already data show signs of success. The vast majority of parents with low incomes are spending their Child Tax Credit payments on basic needs such as food, housing, utility bills, and education, which can help give their children a stronger start in life.” Center for Budget Policy Priorities, [11/11/21]

August 2021: Staten Island Head Start At Richmond University Medical Center Wrote Biden In Support Of Making The Expanded Child Tax Credit, Including For Immigrant Families, Permanent. In a letter to President Biden, Staten Island Head Start - A division of Richmond University Medical Center and other community organizations wrote, “Our request to you is straightforward: Now that you have lifted families up, do not let them down. Help us secure our children’s futures. Make the Child Tax Credit expansions permanent and fully inclusive. A permanently expanded and fully inclusive CTC that reaches all children who need it, including immigrant children, will help families meet their children’s basic needs, weather unexpected expenses, and plan for the future. It will also help prevent involvement in intervening systems like child protective services, promote children’s healthy development and well-being, increase educational attainment, boost future earnings, and ensure all children across the income spectrum have the opportunity to pursue their goals.” Letter to President Biden via Children’s Defense Fund, [8/4/21]

Head Start is a federal program that promotes school-readiness of children from low-income families, from birth to age 5. The funds from DHHS will go towards educational resources and healthcare services at RUMC, including its Head Start program. ‘RUMC is such an important institution in our community, focusing on bringing health, wellness and prevention services to Staten Islanders,’ Malliotakis said in the announcement. ‘I’m happy to have secured this funding for the doctors, nurses and healthcare professionals at RUMC so that they can better service children and their families in the areas of health, nutrition and education,’ the congresswoman added.” Staten Island Advance, [11/11/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Said She Opposed A SALT Deduction, Which She Previously Said Would “Provide Relief For Middle Class Families That We Represent,” If It Was In Build Back Better

Malliotakis On Build Back Better: “I Very Much Support Restoring SALT But If It’s Going To Be Tied With A Bunch Of Other Nonsense, I Just Simply Won’t Be Able To Support That Package.” “[SCOTTO:] In that Build Back Better is the SALT deduction which would obviously help people in New York. So are you going to vote against Build Back Better even with the SALT being part of that. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well as you know Roseanna I am one of the founding members of the SALT caucus. I very much support restoring SALT but if it’s going to be tied with a bunch of other nonsense, I just simply won’t be able to support that package. What good is it to give taxpayers back some money with one hand if we’re going to cost them tons of other money with the other hand? So I think we have to see how this debate continues and what ends up in that spending bill and what’s taken out. We’ve seen significant changes already.” Fox 5, via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [11/8/21] (VIDEO) 5:00

- Malliotakis Said Democrats Insisting On Including SALT In Reconciliation “Could Essentially Kill The Entire Package.” “MALLIOTAKIS: So that is my number one concern. But I will say also, there are a handful of Democrats from New York, New Jersey, and California who have said they will not vote for any bill unless it contains the SALT deduction. So let’s see if they keep their word on that because that could essentially kill the entire package.” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 3:12
- Malliotakis On The SALT Deduction: “What Good Is It If We Give Money Back To The Taxpayer On The Federal Level And Then The City And The State Just Increase Taxes.” “[BARTIROMO:] What’s the story on the SALT deduction? Do you want that in there? I know that some of your colleagues are pushing for it and in order to pay for it they want this 80,000 new auditors at the IRS, the $80 billion Biden is allocating to the IRS so they can surveil our bank accounts and tell the IRS every transaction $600 or more, that’s how they’re going to pay for a SALT deduction. Is it in or is it out? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don’t know what’s going to happen just yet. I’m always in favor of giving more tax dollars back to hardworking New Yorkers, but we also have to make sure that burden is not increased by our mayor and governor. What good is it if we give money back to the taxpayer on the federal level and then the city and the state just increase taxes and take it on their end?” Fox Business, [10/8/21] (VIDEO) 2:23

Malliotakis Made Several False Claims About BBB's Impact

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would “Increase Prescription [Costs];” It Would Really Lower Drug Prices By Allowing Medicare To Negotiate Them And Reducing Co-Pays For Seniors

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Raise Costs, Including By “Increas[ing] Prescription Drugs.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Now, let me move forward to the bill that I am opposed. And I have been very vociferous against. That’s the bill that many of you seem to be very upset with, and it’s very important that we make that distinction. [...] Some of the things that would increase prescription drugs, some of the things that would drive up utility costs, all in that other bill that AOC is pushing.” Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [11/6/21] (VIDEO) 5:44

Build Back Better Would Allow Medicare To Negotiate Drug Prices, Lowering Costs, And Penalize Companies That Increased Drug Prices Faster Than Inflation. “Drug price reduction efforts: Build Back Better contained multiple efforts to lower the price of prescription medication -- most notably allowing Medicare to negotiate prices for the first time. The bill would have empowered Medicare to negotiate prices of certain costly medications administered in doctors' offices or purchased at the pharmacy. The Health and Human Services secretary would negotiate up to 10 drugs in 2025 and up to 20 medications starting in 2028. The legislation also would have imposed penalties if drug companies increased their prices faster than inflation.” CNN, [12/20/21]

The Build Back Better Deal Lowered Drug Prices For Seniors By Reducing Co-Pays And Establishing A $2,000 Out-Of-Pocket Limit in Medicare Part D. “Pelosi celebrated the drug-pricing agreement: ‘For a generation, House Democrats have been fighting to deliver real drug price negotiations that will lower costs. With today’s agreement on strong lower drug price provisions for the Build Back Better Act, Democrats have a path forward to make good on this transformational agenda for our seniors.’ She said the deal will lower drug prices for seniors, reduce their out-of-pocket co-pays and establish a $2,000 out-of-pocket limit for seniors’ expenses in Medicare Part D. The bill would also halt price hikes above inflation, which would affect all Americans, she said.” NBC News, [11/2/21]

Build Back Better Would Cap The Price Of Insulin At $35, Potentially Saving Diabetics More Than $11,500 Annually. “Under the Build Back Better Act, prescription drug prices will become more affordable, with out-of-pocket expenses for seniors and people with disabilities capped at $2,000 annually. Currently, millions of seniors pay $6,000 out-of-pocket expenses for prescription drugs, meaning they will save $4,000 each year. Further, insulin costs will be capped at $35 per month. Currently, diabetics pay up to $1,000 per month for insulin. This means some diabetics will save more than $11,500 a year.” The Hill, Rose Khattar Op-Ed, [12/15/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Increase Taxes On The Middle Class And Small Businesses; It Would Really Lower Taxes For Most Households And Level The Playing Field For Small Businesses

Malliotakis Said Build Back Better Would Cause Inflation, Higher Cost Of Living, And Tax Increases And “Crush The Middle Class And Hard-Working Americans.” “Malliotakis also derided the massive spending plan — which narrowly passed the House on Friday morning over unified GOP opposition — as the ‘Build Back Broke bill’ and a ‘Democratic socialist spending spree.’ ‘The short-term impacts will be inflation and a higher cost of living — and the longer-term impact will be tax increases on the middle class,’ she said. ‘It is a destructive bill that will crush the middle class and hard-working Americans.’” New York Post, [11/19/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Increase Taxes On Small Businesses And “Americans At Every Income Level.” “Below are the worst provisions included in Biden's Socialist Spending Package that Malliotakis opposes: [...] Imposes crushing taxes on small businesses: This bill will hammer small businesses that file as individual tax earners with Obamacare’s 3.8% tax on net investment income. [...] Increases taxes on Americans at every income level: The bill's trillions of dollars in tax hikes will be felt by those making under $400,000 per year, contrary to what the White House says." Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, Press Release, [11/5/21]

BBB Would Close Tax Loopholes Exploited By Offshoring Companies, Leveling The Playing Field For Small Businesses. "Three quarters of small business owners have said the tax code favors large corporations over small businesses and that small businesses are harmed when large businesses or corporations use loopholes to avoid paying taxes. Not only is the framework paid for, it is done so by helping level the playing field in the tax code. The package includes an agreement with 136 countries on a 15% global minimum tax that will prevent companies from receiving massive tax benefits from shifting profits and jobs abroad (The passage of the BBB framework will formally ratify this agreement). The legislation also ensures the highest income Americans are paying their fair share in taxes by including a new surtax on the income of multi-millionaires and billionaires with a 5% rate above income of $10 million, and an additional 3% surtax on income above $25 million. This doesn't touch the vast majority of small businesses owners who make below $250,000 a year. This honors President Biden's promise to not raise taxes on Any American making more than $400,000 and that's the vast majority of small businesses." Forbes, Rhett Buttle Op-Ed, [11/8/21]

Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Drive Inflation; It Would Ease Inflation By Investing In Supply Chain Improvements, Growing The Workforce, Decreasing Energy Costs, And Boosting Families' Incomes

Malliotakis On Reconciliation: "It's Continuing To Increase Inflation And Put Pressure On The Costs Of Goods On Every American Family." "MALLIOTAKIS: But I'm equally concerned about this $3.5 trillion, and whether it ends up being $2 trillion or $3.5 trillion doesn't matter. The reality is that it's continuing to en-debt future generations, it's continuing to increase inflation and put pressure on the costs of goods on every American family. And we know as New Yorkers, when Democrats tell you that they're going to create programs that are supposed to ease the burden on the working and middle class, what does it do? It increases our taxes, it increases our cost of living and it's driving New Yorkers out. It's certainly not a framework now that we should be implementing on the federal level." Roosevelt Institute: "The Build Back Better Act Invests Public Funding In Long-Standing, Specific Supply Chain Bottlenecks And Market Failures And Would, Therefore, Relieve Inflationary Pressures." "The Build Back Better Act invests public funding in long-standing, specific supply chain bottlenecks and market failures and would, therefore, relieve inflationary pressures. Each component of the Build Back Better Act makes a targeted investment of public resources into infrastructure, or the supply side of the market, where the root causes of inflation lie. Some examples in the Build Back Better Act include: Supply Chain Improvements: The bill includes $10 billion for the Department of Commerce to invest in addressing manufacturing supply chain bottlenecks, such as the global shortage of semiconductors that drove up the cost of new cars in recent months." Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

Roosevelt Institute: Build Back Better Would Curb Inflation By Investing In Child Care, Allowing Parents To Return To Work And Growing The Workforce. "Convenient, affordable childcare is a major obstacle for working parents, illuminated even more so by school and daycare closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, which has disproportionately impacted women's labor force participation. Increasing the capacity of industries in order to curb inflation of specific prices requires increasing the supply of labor. The Build Back Better Act invests in existing and new childcare facilities in underserved areas and provides subsidies to make childcare more affordable for qualifying households. Together, these investments would increase the supply of childcare, create new jobs, and allow parents to get back to work. Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

dependence on fossil fuels—an industry that’s particularly vulnerable to extreme weather, which has and will continue to be exacerbated by climate change—consumer energy costs will be reduced. Specifically, proposed investments in clean electricity and energy efficiency will make energy costs more affordable, saving the average household approximately $500 a year in reduced energy costs. This much-needed investment in clean energy would come at a time when energy prices have pushed up inflation for consecutive months.” Center for American Progress, [11/16/21]

Open Letter From Nobel Laureates: Build Back Better Agenda Invested In Long-Term Economic Capacity And Will Ease Inflationary Pressures. “While we all have different views on the particulars of various economic policies, we believe that key components of this broader agenda are critical—including tax reforms that make our tax system more equitable and that enable our system to raise the additional funds required to facilitate necessary public investments and achieve our collective goals. Because this agenda invests in long-term economic capacity and will enhance the ability of more Americans to participate productively in the economy, it will ease longer-term inflationary pressures.” Economic Policy Institute, Open Letter From Nobel Laureates, [9/20/21]

- Khattar Op-Ed: BBB Would Directly Increase Incomes Through The Child Tax Credit And The Earned Income Tax Credit, Allowing Each Paycheck To Go Further In The Face Of Rising Prices. “In addition to saving families money on some of their biggest ticket items, the Build Back Better Act will also provide direct income boosts to give families the flexibility to spend on whatever their biggest need is. The act will continue the expanded Child Tax Credit (CTC), which provides $250 every month per child over the age of 6 and $300 every month per child under the age of 6. This direct boost to incomes benefits nearly 90 percent of children, reducing child poverty by nearly half. Workers without children will also get a direct boost to incomes. Through the expanded Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), over 17 million low-income working adults without children at home will get a tax credit of up to $1,500 annually. These much-needed income boosts will help ensure families are able to make their paychecks go further.” The Hill, Rose Khattar Op-Ed, [12/15/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Move Jobs Overseas, But BBB Would Close Tax Loopholes For Companies That Offshore

November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Lower Wages And Move Jobs Overseas. “Below are the worst provisions included in Biden’s Socialist Spending Package that Malliotakis opposes: [...] Lowers wages for working families and moves jobs overseas: The 15% minimum tax on book income is a double tax on investment. This would raise taxes on American companies by hundreds of billions of dollars, kill 25,000 jobs, and reduce wages by 0.1%, all in the name of complying with Biden’s desire to appease global elites through a global minimum tax.” Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, Press Release, [11/5/21]

PolitiFact: BBB Would Close Tax Loopholes That Currently Benefit Companies That Offshore Jobs. “One change would affect the global intangible low-taxed income, or GILTI. This refers to the income earned by foreign affiliates of U.S. companies that exceeds a 10% return on their tangible assets. Currently, a U.S. corporation must include half of the GILTI income earned by its foreign affiliates in the gross income that is subject to the U.S. corporate income tax. However, it can claim a tax credit for 80% of the foreign tax paid on GILTI. Notably, under the current rules, a multinational corporation might be able to avoid GILTI taxation by ‘blending’ income earned in low tax-rate countries with income earned in high-tax rate countries, effectively sidestepping much of the tax bite. Biden’s Build Back Better legislation, which has passed the House and is now being considered by the Senate, would change how GILTI operates. It would effectively bar that cross-country ‘blending’ strategy and would increase the effective tax rate on GILTI from 10.5% to 15%.” PolitiFact, [1/7/22]

August – October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Build Back Better Would “Double The Size Of The IRS” To “Look Into Every American’s Bank Account;” PolitiFact Rated Similar Claims “False”

It’s hard to say what exactly will be in this package. As you know, they keep changing the price tag. It was $3.5 trillion which although with inflation it will be much more. Now they’re saying it will be $2 trillion. But yet they had enough money in there to double the size of the IRS so they can take more of your money to pay for this debacle.” Fox Business, [8/25/21] (VIDEO) 2:38

PolitiFact Rated McCarthy’s Claim That BBB Would Allow Americans’ Bank Accounts To Be Under “Constant Audit” “False.” “McCarthy said, ‘If you or your family spends $28 a day — prepare to be under constant audit by the IRS.’ What McCarthy is suggesting isn’t in Build Back Better. McCarthy is criticizing a different proposal, but he leaves out many key details. Such a plan would require new legislation to move forward. McCarthy’s claim ignores that the proposal aims to filter out people who get paid through an employer, or through a government program like Social Security. He treats audits as if they were the same as monitoring by the IRS, and they are different. The claim is not accurate. We rate it False.” PolitiFact, [11/19/21]

- McCarthy Referenced A Treasury Department Proposal For IRS Audits Intended To Crack Down On Tax Evasion By Corporations And Higher Earners Without Increases On Income Below $400,000. “The bill includes about $79 billion over a decade for the IRS to strengthen tax enforcement and expand audits. The legislation states that ‘no use of these funds is intended to increase taxes on any taxpayer with taxable income below $400,000.’ Michael Kaercher, a senior attorney advisor at the Tax Law Center at NYU Law, pointed to that language in the bill as well as other administration documents showing that the goal of the administration is to target the rich. The Treasury Department wrote in May that Biden’s ‘compliance proposals are designed to ameliorate existing inequities by focusing on high-end evasion. Audit rates will not rise relative to recent years for those with less than $400,000 in actual income.’ ‘This funding will likely increase audit rates, but those increases will be directed to large corporations and high-income filers,’ Kaercher said.” PolitiFact, [11/19/21]

[...] The Retention and Completion Grants will allocate $500 million to eligible states and state systems over five years to support the development of practices that have been shown to improve student outcomes, such as providing comprehensive academic, career and student support services; assistance in applying for financial aid or mean-tested benefits; accelerated learning opportunities; and improved developmental education and transfer pathways. [...] Finally, HBCUs, TCUs and MSIs, which have been severely underfunded by the federal government in the past, will receive $3 billion for infrastructure and research capacity building. November 2021: Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Spread “Obamacare Propaganda” By Funding Outreach To Minorities In States That Had Not Expanded Medicaid. “Below are the worst provisions included in Biden’s Socialist Spending Package that Malliotakis opposes: [...] Obamacare Propaganda: The bill would require HHS to advertise the expanded Obamacare tax credits in states that haven’t expanded Medicaid directly to ‘racial and sexual minorities,’ among others, and claims that they are ‘hard-to-reach.’” Rep. Center For American Progress: BBB Would Allow 4 Million Americans To Gain Health Insurance By Funding Efforts To Close The Medicaid Gap. “The Build Back Better Act would close a major hole in health coverage, ensuring that people in all states can access affordable, comprehensive health insurance. In 2019, an estimated 2.2 million low-income, uninsured Americans had incomes too low to qualify for marketplace plan subsidies yet were not eligible for Medicaid because their state refused to implement the ACA expansion. The legislation would make individuals with family incomes up to 138 percent of the federal poverty level (FPL)—including roughly 4 million who are uninsured—in the 12 nonexpansion states eligible to obtain marketplace plans with no premium and a 99 percent actuarial value so that they would face only minimal out-of-pocket costs. This fix for the Medicaid coverage gap would be available through 2025.” [Center for American Progress, [12/6/21]

I'm disappointed that Senate Republicans agreed to a rules change that allowed the Democrats to move forward with raising the debt limit by trillions of dollars with just a simple majority instead of a 60 vote requirement. Being in the minority, Republicans have little leverage. By agreeing to this deal, they threw away the little negotiating leverage Republicans had to get Democrats to commit to less taxes and spending, less bureaucracy, fewer mandates or new entitlement programs.

While I believe it is vitally important that our nation doesn't default on our debt, Senate Republicans should have held out to minimize the damage of the Democrats' radical agenda. Democrats are the ones responsible for our record-high inflation, labor shortages, rising energy costs and supply chain issues. Raising the debt limit will only exacerbate the problem.

December 2021: Malliotakis Introduced A Bill To Establish Special Inspectors General To Oversee Federal Funds Allocated To NYC And Other Cities With Populations Of More Than One Million

December 2021: Malliotakis Introduced A Bill To Establish Special Inspectors General To Oversee Federal Funds Allocated To Cities With Populations Of More Than One Million. “My goal is to ensure tax dollars are spent appropriately on their intended purpose and not squandered,” said Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn). The congresswoman introduced the Special Inspector General for Major Metropolitan Areas (SIGMMA) Act and Special Inspector General for State Spending and Waste (SIGSSAW) Act on Wednesday as part of a plan to increase accountability for local governments’ spending of allocated federal funds. The bills would establish special inspector generals to oversee the usage of federal dollars granted to state governments and governments of cities with populations greater than one million people.” Staten Island Advance, [12/1/21]

Malliotakis Cited New York’s “Decision To Give Unemployment, Stimulus And Disaster Relief Aid To Those In The Country Illegally” To Justify Her Bill. “New Yorkers need to look no further than programs like de Blasio’s wasteful Thrive NYC, failed renewal schools program, or the state’s decision to give unemployment, stimulus and disaster relief aid to those in the country illegally. My goal is to ensure tax dollars are spent appropriately on their intended purpose and not squandered,” she said.” Staten Island Advance, [12/1/21]

Malliotakis Said Her Bill Was Necessary Because De Blasio “Has Mismanaged And Squandered Our Tax Dollars.” “Well, coming from New York City, where I know Mayor De Blasio, who is thankfully leaving office at the end of the year, has mismanaged and squandered our tax dollars, I think it’s incredibly important that we receive reports, that the public receive reports, an accounting of how their money is being spent. So my legislation would create an Inspector General that would be tasked with doing audits and ensuring that the money that we send to the cities, to the states are spent properly.” Fox News, [11/30/21] (VIDEO) :26

You have a state legislature who is like completely disconnected from reality and has decided that they’re going to increase spending by 22 percent. Without any ability to cure the stray current causing damage to their water pipes, the homeowners at each site have been forced to continually replace their pipes or experiment with different technology in hopes of preventing the continual leaks. Some homeowners have had to replace their pipes up to 3 times. The cost to some of the homeowners, has been over ten thousand dollars each. Homeowners should not be burdened by damages and costs that are of no fault of their own but are the fault of a public utility company, whose are responsible for maintaining their own infrastructure.” New York State Assembly, A5254C, Introduced [2/8/19]

2017 – 2018: Malliotakis Voted Twice Against Requiring Public Utility Companies To Report Natural Gas Leaks To The Department Of Public Services; Con Ed Lobbied For The Bill

Malliotakis Voted Twice Against Requiring Public Utility Companies To Report Natural Gas Leaks To The Department Of Public Services. On March 29, 2017, and April 18, 2018, Malliotakis voted “No” on A00467, a bill that “Relates to reporting requirements for various classifications of gas leaks by utility corporations.” Specifically, the bill would require gas companies to report, annually, to the Department of Public Service all reported natural gas leaks, and then require that information to be made available to municipal and state public safety officials. Current regulations only required gas companies to classify leaks according to severity, and not to report them to the Department. The bill passed the Assembly in 2017 by 109-37 and again in 2018 by 93-33, and was vetoed by the Governor on December 7, 2018. New York State Assembly, A00467, Introduced [1/9/17]

Since fixing every known leak, which requires pipes be ripped up and replaced, is expensive, utilities were being allowed to backlog a certain number of leaks. Last year, Con Edison reported a backlog of more than 800 non-hazardous leaks to the New York Public Service Commission. Until now, those leak locations were known only to the utility.” NBC New York, [12/17/14]

To do that he’s supporting a bill in the New York State Legislature that would finally guarantee a place for ratepayers at the regulatory table and while AARP is the signature organization for seniors, it’s a fight they’ve taken on for all ratepayers in the state. It’s a modern twist on the old battle cry of the American colonists – ‘no taxation without representation-’ but in this version the AARP has called for representation via a public advocate’s office - independent and insulated from political pressure - that can ensure transparency and accountability whenever the utilities (all seven of them) belly up to the regulatory bar looking for rubber stamp approval for rate hikes. New York State is only one of ten states - and by far, the largest - that lacks this sort of consumer protection.” Huffington Post, [6/30/16]

2014: Malliotakis Voted Against A00860, A Bill Protecting Utility Customers Who Made Bill Payments To Authorized Payment Agents. On March 3, 2014, Malliotakis voted “No” on A00860, a bill that “Makes provisions regarding the payment of utility bills to authorized payment agencies providing that such payment shall be deemed to be a payment to the utility on the date of payment to the agent, requiring written contracts between a utility and its payment agent and review of such contracts by the public service commission.” The bill’s memo noted “This bill would protect consumers that pay their utility bills to an authorized payment agent. Under present law, if certain kinds of payment agents fail to remit utility payments promptly, consumers could be forced to pay the same bills twice or suffer disconnection, late penalties or other charges. This bill would not only prevent these results, but also avoid utility rate increases due to credit losses occurring when payment agents fail to remit payments to the utility.” The bill passed the Assembly 98-35, but later died in the Senate. Malliotakis Voted Against Disapproving The Trump Administration’s Third-Party Lending Rule, Which Left Consumers Vulnerable To Predatory “Rent-A-Bank” Schemes

Malliotakis Voted Against Congressional Disapproval Of The Trump Administration’s Third-Party Lending Rule. In June 2021, Malliotakis Voted Against: “Passage of the joint resolution that would provide for congressional disapproval of an October 2020 Office of the Comptroller of the Currency rule stating that national banks are considered the ‘true lender’ of a loan if, at the date of the loan's origination, the bank funds the loan or is named as lender in the loan agreement, including in the case of loans issued in partnerships between banks and third parties, such as online financial firms. The rule went into effect on Dec. 29, 2020, and effectively allows nonbank lenders to offer loans not subject to higher state interest rate caps by originating loans in partnership with a national bank in another state. Under the provisions of the joint resolution, the October 2020 rule would have no force or effect.” The resolution passed, 218-208. SJ Res 15, [Vote #181, 6/24/21; CQ, 6/24/21]

Malliotakis Voted Against The Comprehensive Debt Collection Improvement Act

Malliotakis Voted Against Passage Of The Comprehensive Debt Collection Improvement Act. In May 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would make numerous modifications to existing law related to consumer protections against debt collection practices, including to extend protections related to electronic communications by debt collectors, student loan and medical debt, debt collection from servicemembers and debt collection by government contractors. The bill would prohibit debt collectors from contacting consumers by email, text message or social media without the consumer's consent. It would authorize the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to issue rules requiring debt collectors to allow consumers to opt out of any method of communication and prohibit the agency from issuing rules allowing debt collectors to send unlimited electronic communications to consumers. It would require lenders to discharge private education loans when a student borrower dies or is permanently disabled, including for any cosigners of the loan. It would prohibit attempts to collect debt arising from medical services until two years after the date the first payment is due and prohibit the inclusion of debt arising from a medically necessary procedure on a credit report. It would prohibit debt collectors from using certain aggressive debt collection tactics against active-duty or recently discharged servicemembers, including threatening a servicemember with a reduction in rank, having their security clearance revoked or prosecuting them under the military justice system. It would extend existing prohibitions on unfair or excessive debt collection tactics to apply to debt collectors hired as contractors by federal, state or local governments; require federal agencies to wait at least 90 days after a debt becomes delinquent and notify consumers at least three times before transferring or selling such debt to a debt collector; and prohibit the Treasury Department from contracting debt collectors to recoup Federal Emergency Management Agency aid overpayments, unless they occurred because of fraud or deceit of the recipient. It would increase civil penalties and authorize courts to award injunctive relief for violations of debt collection practices law; specify that such law applies to entities engaging in non-judicial foreclosures; and restrict the use of written agreements in connection with commercial loans or other credits that include a confession of judgment or other waiver of rights in relation to a legal suit. The expanded CTC will generate nearly $19.3 billion in spending in local economies across the U.S. each month. Family finances improved significantly following the first monthly expanded CTC payments in July. Data from the Census Bureau show that following the July payments, there were significant declines in the share of households with children reporting financial hardship and food insufficiency. Families are using the expanded CTC payments to meet the needs of their household. Among those who responded to the Census Bureau's survey: 47% spent their CTC payment on food, 28% spent it on internet and other utilities, 26% spent it on school expenses, and 17% of those with at least one child under age 5 spent it on child care." The American Rescue Plan Provided $350 Billion In State And Local Funding To Hire Law Enforcement Officials, Pay Overtime For Community Policing, And Restore Law Enforcement To Pre-Pandemic Levels.

“Today, the Treasury Department is highlighting that communities experiencing a surge in gun violence as a result of the pandemic may use the American Rescue Plan’s $350 billion in state and local funding for purposes such as: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic. [...] In addition, the Treasury Department is clarifying that any community may use ARP state and local aid for the above strategies and any other public safety programs, up to the level of revenue loss the jurisdiction experienced during the pandemic. And any community may use ARP funds to rehire police officers and other public servants to restore law enforcement and courts to their pre-pandemic levels.” White House, Press Release, [6/23/21]

[...] In communities where an increase in violence or increased difficulty in accessing or providing services to respond to or mitigate the effects of violence, is a result of the pandemic they may use funds to address that harm. This spending may include: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic o Community Violence Intervention (CVI) programs, including capacity building efforts at CVI programs like funding and training additional intervention workers.” Department of the Treasury, [7/19/21]

Much of this relief has already arrived. The rest is on its way. And we’re now providing more guidance on how they can use the $350 billion nationally that the American Rescue Plan has available to help reduce crime and address the root causes. For example, cities experiencing an increase in gun violence were able to use the American Rescue Plan dollars to hire police officers needed for community policing and to pay their overtime. Mayors will also be able to buy crime-fighting technologies, like gunshot detection systems, to better see and stop gun violence in their communities. Malliotakis Repeatedly Criticized ARP For Allocating Money, Including Public Safety Funds, To New York

July 2021: Malliotakis Criticized ARP For Giving Money To “Big City Mayors Like Mine To Combat Crime After They Defunded The Police.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] I mean, look, any way you look at it -- when you look at the $1.9 trillion package that was put forth for COVID relief, we said that we didn't need that money, we just needed a fraction of the money to do what needed to be done in an emergency situation. Now you see them spending all sorts of money in all sorts of different areas and giving it to big city mayors like mine to combat crime after they defunded the police. They're putting a billion dollars towards illegal immigrant housing when we have homeless veterans, we have homeless people in our streets in our city. So, we have to be able to take the time to review legislation, see what is exactly in it. That page - that bill, 600 pages, $1.9 trillion, they gave us just an hour to actually debate it, just a few hours to read it.” Fox News, [7/20/21] (VIDEO) :00

February 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Funding For New York In ARP, Which She Said “Rewarded” Business Closures And Higher Unemployment Rates. “[BARTIROMO:] President Biden's $1.9 trillion COVID relief package, only 9 percent of it is about COVID. And much of it is about other things, including bailouts to the states like New York. What is it going to take to get New York back on track, Congresswoman? I mean, look at the House valuations plummeting, population numbers plummeting, homelessness up, murder, and crime numbers up as well. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, certainly we need a new mayor, we need to restore some sanity to our legislature and our city council because they keep adopting whether it's bad policies on crime, whether it's driving up taxes. Look, I think the issue here is the Governor was actually rewarded for shutting down the economy and driving people out of work. The Democrats actually changed the formula before they were getting money based on population. Now they're getting money based on unemployment rate, which is why governors Cuomo and Newsom are doing the best in this COVID package.” Fox News, [2/26/21] (VIDEO) :56

January 2021: While Speaking About ARP, Malliotakis Said The “Best Relief Package” Would Be “Reopening Our Economy.” “[BARTIROMO:] Meanwhile, we are talking this morning about a nearly $2 trillion pandemic relief plan from Joe Biden. Do you think this has any shot of getting passed? [...] [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, now that the Democrats control all levels of government, I'm sure it does have a chance of getting passed. And of course, people like Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez won't be satisfied. They won't be satisfied until we have complete socialism, which means government control over our lives and a guaranteed minimum income to pay for that. We have to make sure that any relief package going forward is tailored. The best relief package, quite frankly, is reopening our economy.” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [1/15/21] (VIDEO) :00

The American Rescue Plan spends much more on the financial damage caused by the virus than on its health aspects alone, and McConnell picked a way to minimize the health-related spending. The statistic omits a much greater amount of spending on overall efforts to contain the pandemic. That ranges from about $100 billion to $160 billion, or between 5% and 8% of the bill’s total cost. What are your thoughts? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, that is why a lot of us did not vote for this last package, because first of all the money was being raided. You saw a lot of this money that was given falsely to people who filed unemployment claims or PPP, in fact, there’s been a lot of fraud that we’ve asked the Covid subcommittee to investigate and hold hearings. We need to have accountability for that, that’s number one.” Newsmax via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, uploaded [12/28/21] (VIDEO) 3:13

October 2021: Malliotakis Blamed ARP For “Making The Economy Worse,” Causing Inflation And Labor Shortages

October 2021: Malliotakis Claimed The American Rescue Plan “Disincentivizes Work” And Caused A Labor Shortage. “MALLIOTAKIS: They passed a $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan that was supposed to put people back to work, but it actually did the opposite. It actually disincentivizes work and production, I think that’s part of the problem you’re seeing here. There are a number of causes but a big part of it is labor shortage and that was a result of the president and the democrats wanting people to stay home than to come to work and produce. And so you have lack of warehouse workers, you have lack of truck drivers and so you’re seeing a major issue here.” Fox Business, [10/14/21] (VIDEO) :17

- Malliotakis Claimed Unemployment Insurance Created Labor Shortages By “Penalizing Production And Work In This Country.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] And the supply chain shortage is not – you know, the ships are there. The issue is actually we don’t have the workers who are at the warehouses, who are truck drivers because the President thought it was a good idea to pay people more to stay home. They’re penalizing production and work in this country, and that is why we’re seeing the problems we’re seeing with the bare shelves all around America.” The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 28:56

Malliotakis: The American Rescue Plan Was A “Bust” That “Only Created Inflation And Rising Costs Not Jobs And Economic Stimulus.” “Wow, really disappointing but sadly shows how Biden’s $1.9 Trillion COVID ‘recovery’ was one big BUST. It only created inflation and rising costs not jobs and economic stimulus.”

- PolitiFact Rated The Claim That Biden’s Spending Caused Inflation “Mostly False,” Since Most Recent Government Spending, With ARP Factored In, Occurred Before Biden Took Office. “There’s no question that high levels of government spending can fuel inflation. But the spending that has occurred since Biden took office, primarily through the American Rescue Plan, accounts for just a part of new government spending over the past 18 months. [...] Scott said, ‘Thanks to the insane tax-and-spending spree of President Joe Biden and Democrats in Washington, we are seeing six straight months of raging inflation.’ Inflation is up, and there’s broad agreement that government spending has been a factor. However, most of the big spending coursing through the economy took place before Biden and the Democrats were in charge in Washington. In the past, there’s been a lag of one to two years between higher government spending and higher inflation. The massive relief package in March has had little time to spur inflation. As for taxes, they haven’t gone up. And if they had, that would tend to put the brakes on inflation. We rate this claim Mostly False.” PolitiFact, [7/29/21]

Malliotakis: The American Rescue Plan “Ended Up Making The Economy Worse” And “Didn’t Need To Be Spent.” “MALLIOTAKIS: And by the way, the $1.9 trillion that was passed earlier this year that was supposed to be an economic recovery, or COVID recovery fund, ended up making the economy worse. When you look at the labor shortages, when you look at the ports, how they’re so backed up and they cannot take these containers down, the lack of truck driving due to people being paid to stay home rather than report back to work, the impact it’s had on inflation. All of that is showing how this $1.9 trillion that was spent didn’t need to be spent. If they simply reopened the economy and returned everyone back to work we would be I think in a better situation today. You didn’t need that excessive spending.” Bloomberg, [10/6/21] (AUDIO) 8:34

February 2021: Malliotakis Called For Cancelling Scheduled Toll Increases And Not Raising Taxes Because New York Accepted ARP Funds

February 2021: Malliotakis Advocated For Cancelling Scheduled Toll Increases After New York Accepted Federal Pandemic Relief. “Last week I wrote to Mayor de Blasio and Governor Cuomo asking them for a commitment to not raise income taxes and the property tax levy if they receive federal aid and use a portion of the funds to stop the toll increases and provide relief to the small businesses they shut down. So far, my calls have gone unanswered, but I'll keep pushing. The worst thing the governor and mayor could do is accept the federal aid and still move forward with their anticipated toll and tax increases. It would not only be double-dipping on the part of the city and state governments, but it would be a slap in the face to our middle-class families who are struggling to get by during this pandemic and can't afford increases to their daily cost of living." January 2022: Malliotakis Joined An Amicus Brief Urging The Supreme Court To Stay The Federal Vaccine Mandate For Large Private Employers. “Last week, Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (NY-11) joined over 130 House Republicans and over 40 Senators in filing an amicus brief to the Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS) in the upcoming case considering the Biden Administration’s top-down Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Emergency Temporary Standard (ETS) requiring private employers with over 100 employees to mandate the COVID-19 vaccine or weekly testing. The brief argues that Congress did not give OSHA the authority to impose a vaccine mandate and urges SCOTUS to stay the mandate.” Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, Press Release, [1/5/22]

There are those that argue that the mandate is unconstitutional. Where do you stand on the mandate, and what do you want to see happen going forward? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I agree that I believe it is unconstitutional. September 2021: Malliotakis Said Biden’s Vaccine Mandate On Certain Businesses “Infringes On The Rights And Freedoms Of Americans.” “The city’s sole Republican in Congress blasted as an illegal ‘overreach’ President Biden’s mandate that forces private businesses as well as the federal government to require their workers to get COVID-shots or be tested weekly. ‘Just like Mayor [Bill] de Blasio has, President Biden is inappropriately mandating businesses to serve as his vaccine police force, requiring that they mandate their employees be vaccinated, tested weekly or face hefty fines,’ Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-NY), who represents Staten Island and portions of southern Brooklyn, said Friday. ‘This mandate as a condition of employment in both the public and private sectors is wrong, infringes on the rights and freedoms of Americans and strays from the government’s role of informing, educating, and encouraging.’” New York Post, [9/10/21]

New York City Vaccine Mandates & Legal Challenge

August 2021: Malliotakis Led A Lawsuit Seeking To Block New York City's Vaccine Mandate, Which Was Dismissed In September 2021

Malliotakis “Led” A Lawsuit By Elected Officials And Business Owners Seeking To Block New York City’s Vaccine Mandate For Restaurants, Bars, Gyms, And Indoor Entertainment Venues. “A week from Monday, people in New York will be required to show proof of vaccination in order to enter restaurants, bars, gyms and other fitness facilities, movie theaters, and live theaters [...] On Friday, Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, a Republican whose district is Staten Island and southwest Brooklyn, led a lawsuit by elected officials and business owners from Staten Island that attempts to block the vaccination pass from being implemented. ‘The government shouldn’t be imposing such a mandate on its people and on the small business owners,’ Malliotakis said at a rally in Staten Island with leaders of some of the groups that filed the lawsuit.” PIX 11, [8/6/21]

The coalition of establishments, including an Italian restaurant on Staten Island and a Brooklyn gym, sued Mayor de Blasio and the city in Staten Island Supreme Court, saying they’re unfairly targeted by the mandate that is based on questionable science and devastating to their bottom line. [...] Fonte credited Malliotakis with encouraging local businesses to sue the city over the COVID mandate. ‘It is beyond ridiculous that the government is mandating these already struggling small business owners to be the city’s ‘vaccine police,’ the congresswoman said in a statement.” New York Daily News, [8/18/21]

September 2021: Malliotakis’ Lawsuit Over NYC’s Vaccine Mandate Was Dismissed Without Prejudice In Richmond County Supreme Court; The Judge Wrote The Plaintiffs’ Actions “Define[d] Grandstanding.” “The court hears the grievances of the people and fully understands that legal arguments exist to challenge the actions taken against individuals by the government. They were not made here. The fact that there aren't tests, enough tests, in New York City is part of the issue, but I think, you know, making sure these medications are being brought home, the PPE, the things that we need, need to be made here in the United States, and that would address a lot of the supply chain issues that you're seeing from testing to the medication, et cetera." Malliotakis retweeted an April 7 post from the Kings County Conservative Party that featured the ad. The photo in question appears to show Malliotakis seated in a car trunk filled with sanitizer and personal protective equipment for first responders. hasn't the city ordered more over the last few weeks? These public employees understand the important role they play and want to do their job but, if City Hall is going to put them to work, it needs to provide them the protective equipment to keep them healthy and safe. April 2020: Malliotakis Blamed The Obama Administration For A Low National PPE Stockpile And Defended Trump's Handling Of The Onset Of The COVID-19 Pandemic. "Assemblywoman Malliotakis said it was not fair to say Trump did not acknowledge the severity of the coronavirus pandemic until mid-March when 'nobody did.' She noted that when the country reported its first coronavirus patient, Trump was still in the middle of his impeachment trial and pointed out that the CDC had started issuing public warnings in January about the outbreak in China. Instead, Malliotakis blamed the Obama administration for leaving the country ill-prepared for the next global pandemic by not replenishing the country's Strategic National Stockpile of medical supplies the country relies on for its healthcare system during times of crisis. She also said that virtually anything New York asked for from the federal government, it received. 'The previous administration is just at fault, and in hindsight, it's 2020, but the reality is that this president took specific bold measures beginning with the screenings which were just a few days after that first patient came in, while the Democrats were celebrating the articles of impeachment being signed,' Malliotakis said." April 2021: Malliotakis Criticized "Inconsistencies With COVID Guidelines That Permit Migrant Facilities To Be Open At 900% Capacity But Only Allow New York Restaurants To Be Open At 50% Capacity." "Representative Nicole Malliotakis (R-N.Y.) calls on Drs. Fauci and Walensky to address inconsistencies with COVID guidelines that permit migrant facilities to be open at 900% capacity but only allow New York restaurants to be open at 50% capacity. ‘These [migrant] facilities could be at 900% capacity and my local restaurants are at 50% capacity and are struggling to keep their doors open. You go to Long Island, you go to up state, they're open at 50 percent indoor capacity. New York City only being able to open at 25 percent is I think something that many people are very upset about, so I'm hoping that this is a good first step but I'm hoping that the governor reevaluates quickly and allows us to have parity with the rest of the state.” Fox News, [2/10/21] (VIDEO) :32

Republican state Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis (right), City Council Minority Leader Steven Matteo and the beleaguered eateries plan to file the lawsuit Tuesday in Richmond County Supreme Court, the parties told The Post. ‘New York City meets the [reopening] metrics like every other municipality in the state, yet restaurants are being prohibited from having any indoor dining and there's no justification for this,’ said Malliotakis - who, along with others in the suit, is demanding that all city restaurants be allowed to resume indoor dining at half-capacity or more.” New York Post, [9/7/20]

Their affidavits are speculative and conclusory and absent the appropriate proof, plaintiffs cannot demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits since economic loss alone does not constitute irreparable harm. Although the loss of plaintiff s business is likely an irreparable harm, enjoining the actions of state elected officials in matters that affect public safety also constitutes an irreparable harm. With the vaccination coming out, we really need to move forward here. I don't believe that, you know, what, what, the, the real issue is that these governors have very arbitrary regulations. That, that is really what the issue - is here. A restaurant on this side of the block can't open, but across the street it can. Houses of worship, regardless of their size of capacity, can only have 10 or 25 individuals, and that was shot down by the Supreme Court. And then you have these small business owners, restaurants in my community that are devastated. November 2020: Malliotakis Praised A Supreme Court Decision Against Coronavirus Restrictions On New York City Houses Of Worship. "Since the ruling only blocked enforcement of his tough restrictions on houses of worship in orange and red zones, and the parties who sued are no longer in such zones, the gov argues that it doesn't count. In fact, it sets a serious precedent against his insistence on treating religious institutions more harshly than secular ones. July 2021: A Representative Of Malliotakis' Office Attended A Press Conference Against Mask Mandates At New York City Schools. “Fossella, Councilman Joseph Borelli (R-South Shore), and concerned families gathered outside of P.S. 32 in Great Kills on Monday morning to call on the city and state to end the mask mandate in schools. Although the state no longer requires that students wear masks, they have not ended all mask mandates, instead leaving the decision up to the cities and municipalities -- and, so far, New York City officials have held firm on the requirement. [...] Assemblymembers Michael Reilly and Michael Tannousis as well as a representative from Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis' office were also in attendance at the press conference.” Staten Island Advance, [7/26/21]

May 2021: Malliotakis And Other House Republicans Led An Investigation Into The American Federation Of Teachers' Influence Into The CDC's School Reopening Guidance

May 2021: Malliotakis And Other House Republicans Led An Investigation Into the American Federation Of Teachers' Influence Into The CDC's School Reopening Guidance. “A group of over 20 House Republicans sent a Tuesday letter to the director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) saying they will be launching a probe into improper outside influence on the CDC school reopening guidance by the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).” Malliotakis signed the associated letter. Daily Caller, [5/11/21; Letter to CDC Director Dr. Rachel Walensky via Daily Caller, 5/11/21]

The Letter Alleged That “The AFT Was Able To Successfully Bully The Public Health Experts At The CDC Into Politicizing The Guidance” For Schools To Remain Closed. “According to emails obtained by Americans for Public Trust, the AFT was provided a pre-release copy of the Operational Strategy. The pre-release version, written prior to the influence of the AFT, stated that schools could provide in-person education regardless of community transmission. But the AFT was able to successfully bully the public health experts at the CDC into politicizing the guidance—in fact, the AFT's exact suggested language appeared in CDC's final guidance. Dr. Monica Gandhi, a professor of medicine at the University of California–San Francisco said this peddling of influence by the AFT, and the willingness to accept it by the CDC, is ‘very, very troubling.’ We agree.” Letter to CDC Director Dr. Rachel Walensky via Daily Caller, [5/11/21]

April 2021: Malliotakis Called For New York City Public Schools To Return To Full-Time In-Person Instruction With “Parental Choice.” “But Malliotakis said she feels that more can be done. ‘I think at this point that it should be parental choice and the city should accommodate full in-person instruction. Catholic schools have been doing it since September without issue; there's no reason that public schools, especially now that vaccinations have been made available to all teachers and the CDC has made this recommendation, that the city can't do it,’ she told the Advance/SILive.com.” Staten Island Advance, [4/16/21]

It's great that the mayor announced that middle schools will be reopening. 50 percent of those schools will be reopening for in-person learning but we also have to work on getting our high schools reopened. And right now they are being used as vaccination sites so I'm proposing

[MALLIOTAKIS:] I think it’s very important. If we’re shutting down Broadway, we’re telling people in crowds of 500 or more events have to be cancelled, we’re ending stadiums and gatherings. I think it’s very important that we close down the schools temporarily for one week. Let us get an assessment of what exactly is going on. March 2020: Malliotakis Called Releases Of Inmates At The Onset Of The COVID-19 Pandemic “Absolutely Disgraceful” And Called For The Distribution Of PPE Within Prisons Instead

March 2020: Malliotakis Called Releases Of Inmates At The Onset Of The COVID-19 Pandemic “Absolutely Disgraceful.” “[CARLSON:] CARLSON: Notice there's no compassion for the normal people huddled in their homes, sitting there as thousands of criminals are released onto the streets. Nobody cares about them. She doesn't. That's obvious. [...] Are you worried about this combination of factors -- all of them created by our leaders, that it's going to make our streets more dangerous? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Absolutely. It's absolutely disgraceful that we have elected officials that are actually entertaining this during a crisis emergency situation. We should be instead calming people down. We should try to relieve their anxiety and work with them to make their lives easier, not put them in a situation where they are more scared of what may potentially be happening.” Fox News, [3/18/20]

But if you see a concerted effort to make the country more dangerous and more chaotic, what are you looking at? Why are they doing that? What's the idea behind this, do you know? The union’s president, Elias Husamudeen, has been outspoken in his opposition to City Hall’s ill-advised plan to release hundreds of inmates from Rikers Island instead of providing the PPE requested and isolation plan to stop the virus from spreading within city jails. To add insult to injury, it was reported on Friday that the freed Rikers inmates are being given cellphones, cab fares and hotel rooms. On April 3, 2020, Malliotakis voted “Yes” on Bill No. S07506B, a bill that “Enacts into law major components of legislation necessary to implement the state education, labor, housing and family assistance budget for the 2020-2021 state fiscal year.” The bill passed the Assembly by a vote of 76 – 66 and was signed into law on April 3, 2020. The provision, inserted into an annual budget bill by Cuomo’s aides, created one of the nation’s most explicit immunity protections for healthcare industry officials, according to legal experts. The COVID-19 Liability Shield Provided “Incentives For For-Profit Nursing Home Operators To Put Residents At Risk Of Harm;” 15,000 New Yorkers Died In Nursing Homes During The Pandemic

January 2021: Attorney General Letitia James Recommended Repealing The Shield Because It “Can Provide Financial Incentives To For-Profit Nursing Home Operators To Put Residents At Risk Of Harm.”

“Eliminate the recently enacted immunity provisions that can provide financial incentives to for-profit nursing home operators to put residents at risk of harm by refraining from investing public funds to obtain sufficient staffing to meet residents’ care needs, to purchase sufficient PPE for staff, and to provide effective training to staff to comply with infection control protocols during pandemics and other public health emergencies. The state’s immunity laws were designed to provide necessary protection to frontline health care workers who placed their lives on the line during the pandemic, managers who are faced with impossible choices in caring for patients with COVID-19 in circumstances that are not of their own making, and facilities whose processes led to those decisions in good faith. These circumstances can include shortages of ventilators, respirators, medicine, other equipment, or available beds or services. As written, the immunity laws could be wrongly used to provide any individual or entity from liability, even if those decision were not made in good faith or motivated by financial incentives.” New York State Office of the Attorney General Letitia James, Nursing Home Response to COVID-19 Pandemic, [1/30/21]

The COVID-19 Liability Shield Made Legal Recourse For Families Who Lost Loved Ones To COVID-19 In Negligent Nursing Homes “An Uphill Battle.” “Brett Leitner, a New York lawyer who over the years has brought hundreds of cases against nursing homes for abuse and neglect, said he had received more than 100 calls from families who have lost loved ones to Covid-19 in nursing homes. While he is still taking on clients for future cases, he said the immunity law would make it harder to hold negligent homes accountable. ‘It will be an uphill battle,’ he said.” New York Times, [5/13/20]

April 2021: New York’s COVID-19 Liability Shield For Nursing Homes Was Repealed. “New York Gov. May 2020: Malliotakis Called For An Independent Federal Investigation Into Cuomo’s Nursing Home Executive Order

May 2020: Malliotakis Called For An Independent Federal Investigation Into Cuomo’s Nursing Home Executive Order. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, thank you, Tucker for exposing this because it is truly an outrage. On March 24th, Governor Cuomo said, my mother is not expendable. Your mother is not expendable. And yet, the very next day, he signs an executive order mandating nursing homes where our most vulnerable, our most vulnerable mothers and fathers reside to accept COVID positive patients. And now as you mentioned, there are 5,000 residents of nursing homes or patients that have been put into nursing homes that have died, which account for 25 percent of the deaths in the State of New York, and 30 percent of the deaths in the community that I represent. And I believe that we need to have an independent investigation, and we cannot trust the State of New York to do an independent investigation. I know the Governor has called on the Attorney General to do so. But this is the Attorney General that he handpicked in a special election to be the candidate. So I mean, we have to have a Federal investigation that will only -- that would be the only way we get an actual true, independent investigation to take a look at what exactly occurred here.” Fox News, [5/12/20] (VIDEO) 1:02

May 2020: Malliotakis Requested An Investigation By Attorney General Barr Into Cuomo’s Handling Of Nursing Homes During The Onset Of The COVID-19 Pandemic. “Last week, Malliotakis urged U.S. Attorney General William Barr to launch an investigation into Cuomo’s handling of longterm care facilities, stating that if left in the hands of Cuomo and James, it would be a ‘disservice to the lives lost.’ Malliotakis said Cuomo’s administration ‘met the challenge’ in other areas of the coronavirus pandemic but ‘they simply did more than drop the ball, they kicked it to the curb’ in regards to nursing homes. She said she has yet to hear from Cuomo and state Health Commissioner Howard Zucker after she expressed her concerns about the way the facilities were being handled. ‘I implore you to take charge of the investigation into the deaths of our most vulnerable populations in our LTCFs so that we can ensure that what happened here will be exposed, justice served and families given adequate assurances that the investigation into the deaths of their loved ones will hold the right person or persons accountable,’ Malliotakis said.” Staten Island Advance, [5/14/20]

February 2021: Malliotakis Called Cuomo's Handling Of Nursing Homes "Criminal." "[MALLIOTAKIS:] Yes, I may have been alone at that time, but certainly since then, we have seen many people come out and say that Andrew Cuomo has to go. That this mishandling of nursing homes is criminal, that the misguided Executive Orders that he put in place and kept in place even after there were alternative sites like the Javits Center and the US Navy Comfort Ship is completely unacceptable. Thousands, close to 15,000 people now are estimated to have died in those nursing homes. And then on top of it, he underreported the figures. The Attorney General exposed this. Among foreign policy provisions, it would require the president and State Department to develop diplomatic engagement strategies to address global economic and security development, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence and economic coercion. It would authorize more than $2 billion in bilateral and regional foreign assistance and $1.25 billion for diplomatic engagement in the Indo-Pacific region for fiscal 2022, as well as over $1 billion through fiscal 2026 for foreign military financing and security programs in the region. It would include various provisions related to global action on climate change, including to establish an interagency task force to monitor climate change in relation to national security risks and authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2023 for contributions to the U.N. Green Climate Fund. It would extend a wide range of duty reductions and suspensions; update certain trade policies to include standards related to environmental, labor, human rights and intellectual property protections; and establish a U.S. Trade Representative committee to review and potentially block overseas investments in foreign adversary nations that could impact U.S. critical capabilities. Among workforce and economic development provisions, the bill would reauthorize and expand the Labor Department national apprenticeship system; authorize several new or expanded NSF programs related to expanding science, technology, engineering and mathematics education, workforce development and participation of underrepresented groups in STEM; create a new class of nonimmigrant ‘W’ visas for entrepreneurs associated with U.S. start-up companies; and reauthorize and expand the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to support individuals and communities that have been adversely impacted by international trade.” The bill passed by a vote of 222-210. America COMPETES Invested In Domestic Manufacturing To Bolster The Supply Chain, Reduce Reliance On Chinese Exports And Held China Accountable For Human Rights Violations

America COMPETES Authorized $45 Billion To Bolster The Supply Chain And Increase U.S.

Manufacturing Of “Critical” Goods. “The House bill would provide $45 billion over six years in grants and loans to improve the nation's supply chains and to boost American manufacturing of goods deemed critical for national security and the US economy -- like products for public health, communications technology and food -- according to a summary of the bill provided by House Democrats. Similar to the Senate bill, it would create a new initiative within the Department of Commerce to help promote the resiliency of the nation's supply chains. The House bill would establish an office that would monitor supply chains, identify vulnerabilities and designate which products are critical. The agency would also be tasked with building up stockpiles to prevent shortages of goods in the event of a future supply chain shock.” CNN, [2/4/22]

November 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better And Falsely Claimed It Would Drive Inflation; The Bill Would Invest In Supply Chain Improvements And Decrease Energy Costs

November 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better

Malliotakis Voted Against The Build Back Better Act. In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the fiscal 2022 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, that would provide approximately $2 trillion in investments and tax cuts to address climate change and child care, health care, education, housing and other social policies intended to support families. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a "maximum fair price" for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program's debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. It would provide $78.9 billion to improve IRS operations and tax enforcement.” The bill passed by a vote of 220-213. HR 5376, [Vote #385, 11/19/21; CQ, 11/19/21]

Look, it’s really riddled with a lot of unnecessary spending, and at the end of the day with the inflation that we’re facing, there is no reason to be taking on new entitlement programs. You know, the infrastructure was something that was needed. Decades, we’ve been waiting for real infrastructure investment that will actually have a positive impact on our GDP. And again, these are hard assets, very different from starting new entitlement programs that we can’t afford. And I think Joe Manchin was right, even with the child credit, you know, that is entitled to people who are in the country – they wanted to give that to people illegally, and they also wanted to give it to people who were not working, which defeats the purpose of a child care credit. Malliotakis Claimed BBB Would Drive Inflation; It Would Ease Inflation By Investing In Supply Chain Improvements, Growing The Workforce, Decreasing Energy Costs, And Boosting Families’ Incomes

Malliotakis On Reconciliation: “It’s Continuing To Increase Inflation And Put Pressure On The Costs Of Goods On Every American Family.” “MALLIOTAKIS: But I’m equally concerned about this $3.5 trillion, and whether it ends up being $2 trillion or $3.5 trillion doesn’t matter. The reality is that it’s continuing to en-debt future generations, it’s continuing to increase inflation and put pressure on the costs of goods on every American family. And we know as New Yorkers, when Democrats tell you that they’re going to create programs that are supposed to ease the burden on the working and middle class, what does it do? Roosevelt Institute: “The Build Back Better Act Invests Public Funding In Long-Standing, Specific Supply Chain Bottlenecks And Market Failures And Would, Therefore, Relieve Inflationary Pressures.” “The Build Back Better Act invests public funding in long-standing, specific supply chain bottlenecks and market failures and would, therefore, relieve inflationary pressures. Each component of the Build Back Better Act makes a targeted investment of public resources into infrastructure, or the supply side of the market, where the root causes of inflation lie. Some examples in the Build Back Better Act include: Supply Chain Improvements: The bill includes $10 billion for the Department of Commerce to invest in addressing manufacturing supply chain bottlenecks, such as the global shortage of semiconductors that drove up the cost of new cars in recent months.” Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

Roosevelt Institute: Build Back Better Would Curb Inflation By Investing In Child Care, Allowing Parents To Return To Work And Growing The Workforce. “Convenient, affordable childcare is a major obstacle for working parents, illuminated even more so by school and daycare closures during the COVID-19 pandemic, which has disproportionately impacted women’s labor force participation. Increasing the capacity of industries in order to curb inflation of specific prices requires increasing the supply of labor. The Build Back Better Act invests in existing and new childcare facilities in underserved areas and provides subsidies to make childcare more affordable for qualifying households. Together, these investments would increase the supply of childcare, create new jobs, and allow parents to get back to work. Roosevelt Institute, Fact Sheet, [9/28/21]

Center For American Progress: Build Back Better Expected To Reduce Energy Costs, A Root Cause Of Inflation, By $500 Per Year For The Average Household. “Build Back Better helps break the United States’ dependence on fossil fuels—an industry that’s particularly vulnerable to extreme weather, which has and will continue to be exacerbated by climate change—consumer energy costs will be reduced. Specifically, proposed investments in clean electricity and energy efficiency will make energy costs more affordable, saving the average household approximately $500 a year in reduced energy costs. This much-needed investment in clean energy would come at a time when energy prices have pushed up inflation for consecutive months.” Center for American Progress, [11/16/21]

Open Letter From Nobel Laureates: Build Back Better Agenda Invested In Long-Term Economic Capacity And Will Ease Inflationary Pressures. “While we all have different views on the particulars of various economic policies, we believe that key components of this broader agenda are critical—including tax reforms that make our tax system more equitable and that enable our system to raise the additional funds required to facilitate necessary public investments and achieve our collective goals. The act will continue the expanded Child Tax Credit (CTC), which provides $250 every month per child over the age of 6 and $300 every month per child under the age of 6. This direct boost to incomes benefits nearly 90 percent of children, reducing child poverty by nearly half. Workers without children will also get a direct boost to incomes. Through the expanded Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), over 17 million low-income working adults without children at home will get a tax credit of up to $1,500 annually. These much-needed income boosts will help ensure families are able to make their paychecks go further.” The Hill, Rose Khattar Op-Ed, [12/15/21]

2017: Malliotakis Supported Deploying Armed "Patrolmen" To Schools To Deter Violence. "MAYORAL candidate Nicole Malliotakis wants a force of armed 'special patrolmen' to watch over city schools. The Staten Island Republican called for the new squad, made up of retired law enforcement officers with concealed carry permits, as part of an education plan she released Wednesday. The armed patrol force would rotate among city schools to deter incidents including school shootings and bomb threats, the assemblywoman said. They would mostly stay outside school buildings, but have the option to go in. She said it would 'serve as a deterrent for anyone who may be looking to enter a school to do something wrong.' Mayor de Blasio last year called for eliminating suspensions for students in grades kindergarten to 2 in order to focus on more appropriate ways to discipline kids that young. But, in the face of strong opposition by the teachers union and others, the city has instead tried to reduce those types of suspensions to all but the most extreme cases. February 2022: Malliotakis Voted Against The America COMPETES Act And Claimed It "Sends Billions More To China To Continue Its Slave Labor"

Malliotakis Voted Against The America COMPETES Act To Increase The U.S.'s Global Competitiveness. In February 2022 Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill, as amended, comprising a package of provisions related to scientific research and development and international competitiveness, including provisions to authorize more than $135 billion over five years for federal investment in scientific research and development programs; provide more than $52 billion in supplemental appropriations for the U.S. semiconductor industry; and require various actions related to U.S. technological competitiveness and foreign policy, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence. Among provisions related to science and technology research and development, it would authorize $78 billion through fiscal 2026 for National Science Foundation activities, including $13.3 billion for a new NSF Directorate for Science and Engineering Solutions to support use-inspired research and development that addresses societal challenges such as climate change, global competitiveness in critical technologies, cybersecurity, national security, social and economic inequality, and education and workforce development in science and technology. It would authorize $50.2 billion through fiscal 2026 for Energy Department science activities, including research and development related to climate issues, alternative energy sources and quantum technologies. It would authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2026 for the National Institute of Standards and Technology and expand NIST functions to include information security and cybersecurity research and development activities. Among supply chain provisions, it would provide $52.7 billion through fiscal 2026 in supplemental appropriations to fund a program to incentivize research, development and workforce development related to the production of semiconductors, established by the fiscal 2021 defense authorization law. It would establish a Commerce Department office to lead federal efforts to strengthen supply chains and domestic manufacturing in critical industries, and it would authorize $45 billion through fiscal 2027 for grants and loans under the office. It would appropriate $1.5 billion through fiscal 2031 to support 5G wireless network development. Among foreign policy provisions, it would require the president and State Department to develop diplomatic engagement strategies to address global economic and security development, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence and economic coercion. It would authorize more than $2 billion in bilateral and regional foreign assistance and $1.25 billion for diplomatic engagement in the Indo-Pacific region for fiscal 2022, as well as over $1 billion through fiscal 2026 for foreign military financing and security programs in the region. It would include various provisions related to global action on climate change, including to establish an interagency task force to monitor climate change in relation to national security risks and authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2023 for contributions to the U.N. Green Climate Fund. It would extend a wide range of duty reductions and suspensions; update certain trade policies to include standards related to environmental, labor, human rights and intellectual property protections; and establish a U.S. Trade Representative committee to review and potentially block overseas investments in foreign adversary nations that could impact U.S. critical capabilities. Among workforce and economic development provisions, the bill would reauthorize and expand the Labor Department national apprenticeship system; authorize several new or expanded NSF programs related to expanding science, technology, engineering and mathematics education, workforce development and participation of underrepresented groups in STEM; create a new class of nonimmigrant ‘W’ visas for entrepreneurs associated with U.S. start-up companies; and reauthorize and expand the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to support individuals and communities that have been adversely impacted by international trade.” The bill passed by a vote of 222-210. March 2021: Malliotakis Called Public Campaign Financing A “Form Of Embezzlement” That Would Abuse Taxpayers And Increase Corruption. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] This bill shamefully allows candidates for Congress to use tax dollars to fund campaigns with a $6 match for every $1 raised. Any normal person would call this a form of embezzlement. Tax dollars are supposed to be used to maintain our transportation infrastructure, fund our schools, and keep the public safe, not to fund campaigns. As a representative from New York City, which has public financing of campaigns, and as a former candidate for mayor, I can tell you that it does nothing to take big money out of politics, and it does nothing to level the playing field. Bill de Blasio still received big donations bundled by lobbyists and special interests, and I would have still been outspent four to one with or without matching funds. Using taxpayer money to fund political campaigns is not only wrong; it is an abuse of taxpayers and has led to more corruption. The bill would effectively restore preclearance requirements under the Voting Rights Act for any changes to voting practices in states and localities with a history of voting rights violations within the previous 25 years. It would establish formulas to identify such jurisdictions, which would be required to submit proposed changes to the Justice Department for review and approval before they may be implemented. It would establish an "administrative bailout" provision allowing jurisdictions to apply for exemptions to preclearance requirements if they meet eligibility standards related to not implementing discriminatory practices in the previous 10 years. It would also require states and localities to review any newly enacted or adopted election practices to identify whether they include certain practices that could impact the ability to vote based on race, color or language minority group, such as changes to impose stricter voter identification requirements; changes to jurisdictional boundaries or voting locations in jurisdictions with large minority populations; and changes that prohibit the provision of food or drinks to individuals waiting to vote. It would require jurisdictions that adopt such practices to submit them for federal preclearance. It would codify or expand various requirements for court evaluation of "vote denial" and "vote dilution" discrimination claims and other voting rights violations, including to provide for violations in the case of voting practices that have the purpose or will have the effect of denying or abridging the right to vote on account of race or color, including rules that have not yet been implemented. It would expand certain voting rights enforcement authorities, including to allow courts to grant injunctions or require judicial preclearance for changes to voting practices in response to any federal voting rights law prohibiting racial or language discrimination. Among other provisions, it would expand Justice Department authority to assign federal election observers to ensure compliance with federal voting rights protections, including bilingual election requirements. It would require states and localities to provide public notice of any changes to voting procedures made within 180 days of a federal election and to provide public notice of updated demographic data within ten days of any change to electoral district boundaries. It would require the department to make grants to small jurisdictions with a population of 10,000 or less to help them comply with public notice requirements related to voting practices." Congress is responding to the Supreme Court's 2013 *Shelby County v. Early Voting

Malliotakis Voted Against Establishing Early Voting In 2014 Before Voting For It In 2019

February 2014: Malliotakis Voted Against Allowing Early Voting In New York. On February 11, 2014, Malliotakis voted "No" on A00689, a bill "to establish early voting in primary, general and special elections in the State of New York." The bill passed the Assembly 93-43, but later died in the Senate. New York State Assembly, A00689, Introduced [1/9/13]

2017: Malliotakis Opposed Early Voting, Which She Said Was Too Expensive. "Republican Assembly members Nicole Malliotakis (R-East Shore/Brooklyn) and Ron Castorina Jr. (R-South Shore) support some components -- both favor Cusick's push to consolidate federal and state primaries because it would save money. Both are open to considering allowing parolees to vote and providing more training, with caveats for each. They both oppose early voting: Malliotakis because it's too expensive, Castorina because it's not paired with requiring IDs of voters." Staten Island Advance, [2/8/17]

[...] The bills passed both chambers easily and with bipartisan support on January 14. Some opponents — mostly Republicans — questioned the added cost of manning polling places for 10 days and said early voting could create opportunities for double voting or other fraud. ‘Is this bill the first step to allowing non-citizens to vote in New York?’ asked Republican Sen. The Save Democracy Act would enhance federal election integrity by addressing three key areas of concern during the 2020 election to eliminate all doubt in the future. These three areas include securing voter registration by requiring citizenship verification and prohibiting automatic registration by states. It protects ballot casting by prohibiting states from issuing unrequested absentee ballots and halts questionable harvesting tactics. It safeguards ballot tabulation by requiring that at least two representatives of each Presidential campaign observe polls and vote counting operations and prohibits delays or pauses in ballot tabulation once counting has begun. Paris Climate Accords

October 2020 – November 2021: Malliotakis Opposed Reentering The Paris Climate Accords

November 2021: Malliotakis Criticized The Paris Climate Agreement For “Costing Americans Trillions Of Dollars” While Allowing China To “[Destroy] Our Environment.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] This administration has done nothing to drive real reform at the council. These reforms should have been a prerequisite for the US reengaging with the council, something that I had suggested time and again, let alone seeking election to it, not a lofty goal left to be achieved sometime in the future. The same can be said for the president's decision to unilaterally rejoin the Paris Agreement on climate change without congressional consultation. While costing Americans trillions of dollars, the agreements permit the world's largest carbon emitter, China, to make meager contributions. Under the agreement, the CCP may continue raising carbon emissions until 2030, destroying our environment and contributing to climate change every step of the way.” House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on International Development, International Organizations and Global Corporate Social Impact Holds Hearing on US Leadership in International Organizations via CQ Transcripts, [11/18/21]

PFAS

2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Revising Environmental Laws And Requiring The EPA To Regulate PFAS

July 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The PFAS Action Act, Authorizing The EPA To Address The Impacts Of Per- And Polyfluoroalkyl Substances (PFAS) On Drinking Water. In February 2015, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill that would require the Environmental Protection Agency to take a number of regulatory actions and establish grant programs to address the impacts of per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances, or PFAS. Specifically, it would require the EPA to designate certain PFAS -- perfluorooctanoic acid and its salts, as well as perfluorooctane sulfonic acid and its salts -- as hazardous chemicals under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act and determine whether all PFAS should be designated as such within five years of enactment. It would require the EPA to issue a national primary drinking water regulation for maximum contaminant levels of certain PFAS, within two years of enactment, and issue health advisories for PFAS not subject to the regulation. It would authorize $500 million annually through fiscal 2026 for an EPA infrastructure assistance grant program for community water systems affected by PFAS to implement water treatment technologies that can remove all detectable amounts of PFAS from drinking water. It would require the EPA to establish effluent limits and pretreatment standards for PFAS in wastewater and authorize $200 million annually through fiscal 2026 for an EPA grant program to help publicly owned treatment works implement such standards. It would authorize $100 million annually through 2026 for an EPA grant program to test for and install and maintain water filtration systems to address PFAS in school drinking water. Among other provisions, it would require the EPA to add certain PFAS to lists of hazardous air pollutants under the Clean Air Act; issue rules to require toxicity testing on all PFAS by manufacturers; create a public risk-communication strategy regarding PFAS hazards; update voluntary labeling requirements for certain consumer products, including cooking implements, carpets and clothing, to certify that they do not contain any PFAS; and issue guidance on reducing the use of firefighting foam and related products that contain PFAS by first responders.” The bill passed 241 to 183. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention’s Web site says that the agency has found PFASs in the blood of nearly everyone it has tested for them, ‘indicating widespread exposure to these PFAS in the U.S. population.’ Scientists have found links between a number of the chemicals and many health concerns—including kidney and testicular cancer, thyroid disease, liver damage, developmental toxicity, ulcerative colitis, high cholesterol, pregnancy-induced preeclampsia and hypertension, and immune dysfunction.” Scientific American, [1/22/21]

Methane Rule

Malliotakis Voted Against Restoring Obama Administration Methane Emissions Standards

June 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Congressional Disapproval Of The Trump Administration’s Methane Rule And Reinstating The Obama Administration’s Methane Emission Standards. In June 2021, Malliotakis Voted Against: “Passage of the joint resolution that would provide for congressional disapproval of a September 2020 Environmental Protection Agency rule that reversed 2012 and 2016 rules establishing emission standards -- or new source performance standards -- to limit the amount of methane and volatile organic compounds that can be released in the production, processing, transportation and storage of oil and natural gas. Specifically, the 2020 rule

rescinded the methane-specific standards and rescinded the applicability of all standards to transportation and storage activities. The rule also required the EPA, before promulgating new air pollutant standards, to determine that the pollutant causes or contributes significantly to dangerous air pollution. The rule took effect on September 14, 2020. Under the provisions of the joint resolution, the 2020 rule would have no force or effect, and the Obama-era emission standards would be effectively reinstated.” The resolution passed, 229-191. It would establish a Commerce Department office to lead federal efforts to strengthen supply chains and domestic manufacturing in critical industries, and it would authorize $45 billion through fiscal 2027 for grants and loans under the office. It would appropriate $1.5 billion through fiscal 2031 to support 5G wireless network development. Among foreign policy provisions, it would require the president and State Department to develop diplomatic engagement strategies to address global economic and security development, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence and economic coercion. It would authorize more than $2 billion in bilateral and regional foreign assistance and $1.25 billion for diplomatic engagement in the Indo-Pacific region for fiscal 2022, as well as over $1 billion through fiscal 2026 for foreign military financing and security programs in the region. It would include various provisions related to global action on climate change, including to establish an interagency task force to monitor climate change in relation to national security risks and authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2023 for contributions to the U.N. Green Climate Fund. It would extend a wide range of duty reductions and suspensions; update certain trade policies to include standards related to environmental, labor, human rights and intellectual property protections; and establish a U.S. Trade Representative committee to review and potentially block overseas investments in foreign adversary nations that could impact U.S. critical capabilities. Among workforce and economic development provisions, the bill would reauthorize and expand the Labor Department national apprenticeship system; authorize several new or expanded NSF programs related to expanding science, technology, engineering and mathematics education, workforce development and participation of underrepresented groups in STEM; create a new class of nonimmigrant ‘W’ visas for entrepreneurs associated with U.S. start-up companies; and reauthorize and expand the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to support individuals and communities that have been adversely impacted by international trade.” The bill passed by a vote of 222-210. October 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Biden's Cancellation Of The Keystone Pipeline, Which She Said Damaged Energy Independence And American Business

October 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Biden For Cancelling The Keystone Pipeline: “He Has Dismantled Our Ability To Be Energy Independent.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It's unfortunate that we have a lack of leadership. He [Biden] cancelled the Keystone Pipeline, he's making Europe more dependent on Russia, he wants us to be more dependent on OPEC, and it's completely outrageous the way that he has dismantled our ability to be energy independent in this country." Fox News, [10/23/21] (VIDEO) 6:11

October 2021: Malliotakis Called Biden's Blocking Of The Keystone Pipeline An Example Of The Administration "Tying The Hands Of American Businesses." "What's worse is that he rejoined the Paris Agreement without securing any real commitments from the Chinese Communist Party to ensure their actions would change. Now, in an attempt to clean up China's literal mess, the administration has taken to tying the hands of American businesses, ignoring the fact that even our best efforts will not offset the climate damage caused by countries like China and Russia. A prime example is President Biden's decision to shut down the Keystone XL Pipeline, an efficient gas pipeline system which would have allowed us to benefit from access to high quality Canadian oil. Americans are now paying for Biden's decision at the gas pump, with prices pushing $5 a gallon in blue states like California." 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The Paycheck Fairness Act. In April 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill that would narrow the legal defense an employer may use in a lawsuit alleging pay discrimination on the basis of sex. Specifically, it would require employers to demonstrate that a difference in pay between employees is based on a business-related 'bona fide factor other than sex, such as education, training, or experience' as opposed to being based on 'any factor other than sex.' It would prohibit employers from retaliating against employees involved in lawsuits under fair labor standards law; prohibit employers from relying on a prospective employee's wage history for hiring or wage determinations; increase employers' liability for compensatory or punitive damages related to pay discrimination violations; and provide for automatic inclusion of all affected individuals in class action lawsuits related to pay discrimination. Among other provisions, the bill would authorize a new Labor Department grant program for public and private entities to carry out negotiation skills training programs to address pay disparities. It would establish an annual national award for an employer that made a 'substantial effort to eliminate pay disparities between men and women.' It would require the Labor Department to conduct a number of studies on sex-based pay disparities and require the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to collect compensation data disaggregated by employees' sex, race and national origin. It would require the Labor Department and EEOC to provide technical assistance for small businesses to comply with the bill's provisions. It would add a definition of 'sex' with respect to federal fair labor standards law, which would include sexual orientation or gender identity." According to CNBC, the Paycheck Fairness Act "aims to eliminate the gender pay gap and strengthen workplace protections for women." The bill passed 217 to 210. Additionally, he said the Paycheck Fairness Act would make it illegal for employers to ask employees about their salary history in the hiring process and promote pay transparency by requiring more employers to report pay data to the government. June 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Protecting Older Workers Against Discrimination Act Of 2021. In June 2021, Malliotakis Voted Against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would specify a that adverse actions by an employer in which age was a motivating factor shall be considered unlawful under federal employment law regarding age discrimination. It would specify that a complaining party under such law would not be required to demonstrate that age was the sole motivating factor of an adverse action, thus effectively reversing the 2009 Supreme Court decision in Gross v. FBL Financial Services, Inc. It would establish the same standard of proof in the case of employment discrimination based on disability or retaliation against an employee who opposes unlawful employment practices or participates in investigations or litigations related to such practices. In age-based employment discrimination cases where a court determines that an adverse action would have been taken in the absence of age-based motivation, the bill would allow courts to grant declaratory or injunctive relief and attorneys fees, but prohibit courts from awarding damages or ordering reparative actions by the respondent. As amended, it would require the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to submit reports to Congress on the number of age discrimination in employment claims brought under the bill's provisions; disparities faced by individuals with characteristics protected under existing anti-discrimination law in pursuing employment discrimination relief under the mixed-motive evidentiary standard; and the number of pending or filed claims by women impacted by age-based employment discrimination.” The bill passed, 247-178. 2018 – 2019: Following Hurricane Sandy, Malliotakis Criticized De Blasio’s “Build It Back” Program

2019: Malliotakis Criticized De Blasio’s “Build It Back” Program For Its “Red Tape” And Low-Quality Reconstruction Of Homes. “Just days before the seventh anniversary of Superstorm Sandy, disgruntled homeowners gathered in South Beach to cry foul on the city’s housing recovery efforts that have dragged on amid various issues. Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis (R-East Shore/Brooklyn) was joined by nine families still dealing with major issues in their rebuilt homes, including, lack of heating and air conditioning, frozen pipes, broken appliances, rusted metals and mold. ‘Seven years later we are still helping families navigate the red tape of the city’s Build It Back program. We’re still dealing with contractors who are not communicating with families. They’re doing poor work that needs to be repaired, that keeps breaking down. There are major, major issues still occurring,’ said Malliotakis, whose office is currently assisting in 21 active Build It Back cases. ‘In 2015, Mayor Bill de Blasio came to my district, he gave us his word that the construction was going to be completed by the end of 2016. Yet here we are, three years after that, and we still have families who are dealing with Build It Back issues. A few who aren’t even back in their homes yet,’ Malliotakis added.” Staten Island Advance, [10/25/19]

2018: Malliotakis Claimed “Build It Back” Resulted In Inadequate Work And Improper Billing, Which She Said Was “Perhaps Criminal.” “Malliotakis was adamant that the work done by Build it Back was inadequately executed, but added that the inconsistency in billing was ‘perhaps criminal.’ ‘If that isn’t robbery of the taxpayers, I don’t know what is,’ she said. The Staten Island Office for Build it Back is set to close at the end of the month, Malliotakis said, but she urged that ‘before that occurs, they need to get the contractors here to finish the work and repair the shoddy work that was done.’” Staten Island Advance, [12/16/18]

September – October 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Gov. Hochul For Distributing FEMA Aid To Undocumented People

October 2021: Malliotakis Accused Gov. Hochul Of Giving FEMA Aid To Undocumented People That “Certain American Citizens Aren’t Eligible For.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It’s quite possible, and I think that’s why you’re seeing Governor Hochul, who was quite the moderate when she was in the House of Representatives, now that she’s trying to secure the Democratic nomination, she’s gone very far to the left. She’s chosen someone who was very vociferous supporting the defund the police movement as her lieutenant governor. She has come out with, you know, some real radical policies that, again, have made us less safe, but in addition to that, giving illegal immigrants funds that certain American citizens aren’t eligible for, like FEMA aid, for example. And we’re seeing that she’s going too far to the left because she’s trying to secure the nomination, and that’s a problem.” The Joe Piscopo Show, [10/20/21] (AUDIO) 23:02

September 2021: Malliotakis Called Hochul And De Blasio's Decision To Provide Disaster Relief Aid To Undocumented Immigrants A "Slap In The Face To Working-Class Citizens Across Our City."

"Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (NY-11) and New York City Councilman Joe Borelli slammed Governor Kathy Hochul and Mayor Bill de Blasio's announcement that New York State will provide $27 million in storm aid to undocumented immigrants who may have been impacted by flooding caused by the remnants of Hurricane Ida. [...] 'Governor Hochul and Mayor de Blasio's decision to award undocumented immigrants with disaster aid is a slap in the face to the working-class citizens across our city and state who have suffered tens of thousands of dollars in damages and losses from Ida,' said Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis. 'The average amount of FEMA aid granted per claim is only a few thousand dollars which is far from making any individual whole. Instead of creating a fund to supplement FEMA assistance for taxpaying citizens like the state did after Superstorm Sandy, the mayor and the governor are creating one for those in our country illegally, while excluding American citizens.'" November 2021: Malliotakis Called For Higher FEMA Payouts For New Yorkers Who Sustained Damage From Hurricane Ida

November 2021: Malliotakis And Rep. Grace Meng Called For Higher FEMA Payouts For New Yorkers Who Sustained Damage From Hurricane Ida. "U.S. Reps. Grace Meng (D-Queens) and Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/Brooklyn) today urged the head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to address the low amounts of disaster aid that the agency has provided to New Yorkers who sustained extensive damage from the recent flooding caused by the remnants of Hurricane Ida. In a letter to FEMA Administrator Deanne Criswell, the Congresswomen said they have been contacted by constituents who have received extremely low payouts for major devastation that the storm caused to their homes. These FEMA payments do not even come close to meeting their repair needs. In just two of the many cases, a local resident received just $5,000 for $30,000 in damages, and another got only $5,500 for $50,000 in damages." Rep. Grace Meng, Press Release, [11/22/21]

Nicole Malliotakis, Assemblyman Michael Tannousis, City Councilman Joe Borelli, Deputy Borough President Ed Burke and representatives from the office of State Sen. February 2022: Malliotakis Criticized And Voted Against The America COMPETES Act, Which Reduced Dependency On International Supply Chains And Held China Accountable For Human Rights Violations

February 2022: Malliotakis Voted Against The America COMPETES Act And Claimed It “Sends Billions More To China To Continue Its Slave Labor”

Malliotakis Voted Against The America COMPETES Act To Increase The U.S.’s Global Competitiveness. In February 2022 Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, comprising a package of provisions related to scientific research and development and international competitiveness, including provisions to authorize more than $135 billion over five years for federal investment in scientific research and development programs; provide more than $52 billion in supplemental appropriations for the U.S. semiconductor industry; and require various actions related to U.S. technological competitiveness and foreign policy, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence. Among provisions related to science and technology research and development, it would authorize $78 billion through fiscal 2026 for National Science Foundation activities, including $13.3 billion for a new NSF Directorate for Science and Engineering Solutions to support use-inspired research and development that addresses societal challenges such as climate change, global competitiveness in critical technologies, cybersecurity, national security, social and economic inequality, and education and workforce development in science and technology. It would authorize $50.2 billion through fiscal 2026 for Energy Department science activities, including research and development related to climate issues, alternative energy sources and quantum technologies. It would authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2026 for the National Institute of Standards and Technology and expand NIST functions to include information security and cybersecurity research and development activities. Among supply chain provisions, it would provide $52.7 billion through fiscal 2026 in supplemental appropriations to fund a program to incentivize research, development and workforce development related to the production of semiconductors, established by the fiscal 2021 defense authorization law. It would establish a Commerce Department office to lead federal efforts to strengthen supply chains and domestic manufacturing in critical industries, and it would authorize $45 billion through fiscal 2027 for grants and loans under the office. It would appropriate $1.5 billion through fiscal 2031 to support 5G wireless network development. Among foreign policy provisions, it would require the president and State Department to develop diplomatic engagement strategies to address global economic and security development, particularly with regard to countering Chinese influence and economic coercion. It would authorize more than $2 billion in bilateral and regional foreign assistance and $1.25 billion for diplomatic engagement in the Indo-Pacific region for fiscal 2022, as well as over $1 billion through fiscal 2026 for foreign military financing and security programs in the region. It would include various provisions related to global action on climate change, including to establish an interagency task force to monitor climate change in relation to national security risks and authorize $8 billion through fiscal 2023 for contributions to the U.N. Green Climate Fund. It would extend a wide range of duty reductions and suspensions; update certain trade policies to include standards related to environmental, labor, human rights and intellectual property protections; and establish a U.S. Trade Representative committee to review and potentially block overseas investments in foreign adversary nations that could impact U.S. critical capabilities. Among workforce and economic development provisions, the bill would reauthorize and expand the Labor Department national apprenticeship system; authorize several new or expanded NSF programs related to expanding science, technology, engineering and mathematics education, workforce development and participation of underrepresented groups in STEM; create a new class of nonimmigrant ‘W’ visas for entrepreneurs associated with U.S. start-up companies; and reauthorize and expand the Trade Adjustment Assistance program to support individuals and communities that have been adversely impacted by international trade.” The bill passed by a vote of 222-210. Malliotakis Tweeted That The America COMPETES Act “Sends Billions More To China To Continue Its Slave Labor.” “While Republicans continue to stand up for human rights, call for hearings into origins of COVID & end US funding of Wuhan lab, Democrats want a $300B spending bill that gives the United Nations a climate slush fund & sends billions more to China to continue its slave labor.(1/4) [...] The package is called COMPETES Act, but does little to actually make American companies more competitive or protect their intellectual property, and refers to coral reefs more times than China and climate change twice as much as national security. America COMPETES Invested In Domestic Manufacturing To Reduce Reliance On Chinese Exports And Held China Accountable For Human Rights Violations

America COMPETES Authorized $45 Billion To Bolster The Supply Chain And Increase U.S. Manufacturing Of “Critical” Goods. “The House bill would provide $45 billion over six years in grants and loans to improve the nation's supply chains and to boost American manufacturing of goods deemed critical for national security and the US economy -- like products for public health, communications technology and food -- according to a summary of the bill provided by House Democrats. Similar to the Senate bill, it would create a new initiative within the Department of Commerce to help promote the resiliency of the nation's supply chains. The House bill would establish an office that would monitor supply chains, identify vulnerabilities and designate which products are critical. The agency would also be tasked with building up stockpiles to prevent shortages of goods in the event of a future supply chain shock.” CNN, [2/4/22]

America COMPETES Invested $3 Billion In Solar Manufacturing To Reduce The U.S.’s Reliance On China. “The House legislation would set aside billions of dollars to bolster research and manufacturing. [...] It would set aside another $3 billion for the nation's solar manufacturing supply chain, aiming to reduce the country's reliance on China for parts.” CNN, [2/4/22]

America COMPETES Invested $52 Billion In Domestic Manufacturing And Research Of Semiconductors To Decrease The U.S.’s Technological Dependence On Asia. “The House voted Friday to pass the America COMPETES Act, a bill that aims to increase U.S. competitiveness with China and to address the country’s shortage of semiconductors by strengthening the country’s supply chain. [...] The bill includes $52 billion to support domestic manufacturing and research of semiconductors, the chips that are used in electronic devices and have faced shortages throughout the pandemic, contributing to delays and increased costs. The incentives for semiconductor production come as the U.S. has increasingly relied on imports for computer chips. Twelve percent of the world's chips are made in the U.S., down from 37% in the 1990s, according to industry officials. About 80% are made in Asia.” USA Today, [2/4/22]

America COMPETES Funded An Aid Program For Workers Impacted By Increased Imports And Invested In STEM Education Programs. “The measure, known as the America COMPETES Act, passed 222-210 in a near-party-line vote. [...] The legislation would also fund a government program to aid workers who lost jobs or saw their pay cut as a result of increased imports, as well as boost funds for the National Science Foundation and STEM education programs.” New York Post, [2/4/22]

American COMPETES Provided “More Than $1 Billion Toward Increasing Diversity” In Science And Technology To Increase STEM Employment. “Congress is aiming to reshape America’s workforce through new legislation that would direct more than $1 billion toward increasing diversity of the scientists, researchers and technologists who drive the innovation economy. The measure includes $900 million for grants and partnerships with historically Black colleges and universities, $164 million to study barriers for people of color in the field and $17.5 million to combat sexual harassment. They’re part of a expansive package of bills known as the America Competes Act, which lawmakers hope will ensure the United States continues to lead the global economy. [...] A report from the National Academies of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine estimated the United States will need 1 million more people employed in those sectors over the next decade than it is currently on track to produce. The group said the country will not reach that goal without substantially increasing diversity in the labor force.” CNBC, [2/4/22]

America COMPETES Included Provisions To Hold China Accountable For Human Rights Violations. “The legislation includes provisions to strengthen US relations with Taiwan, new sanctions for officials in Xinjiang accused of ‘systematic rape, coercive abortion, forced sterilisation, or involuntary contraceptive implantation policies and practices’ and an authorisation for millions of dollars in funding to counter Chinese government censorship and disinformation. [...] Advocacy groups supporting human rights in Xinjiang and Hong Kong applauded the bill. The Washington-based Hong Kong Democracy Council said it was ‘elated’, and the non-profit Uyghur Human Rights Project said it was ‘encouraged that Congress continues to put rhetoric into action’. ‘We are particularly encouraged by provisions meant to provide safe haven for Uyghurs fleeing atrocities, and to tighten scrutiny on Chinese companies complicit in these abuses,’ said Uyghur Human Rights Project executive director Omer Kanat.” South China Morning Post, [2/4/22]

America COMPETES Included Provisions To “Offset China’s Market-Distorting Trade Practices.” “The U.S. House of Representatives on Friday narrowly passed a multibillion-dollar bill aimed at increasing American competitiveness with China and boosting U.S. semiconductor manufacturing, despite Republican opposition. [...] It includes changes to U.S. trade rules intended to offset China’s market-distorting trade practices, including by strengthening anti-dumping rules.” Reuters, [2/4/22]

American COMPETES Authorized $10 Billion To Help Developing Countries Address Climate Change. “The bill also authorizes $8.8 billion this year for Energy Department research and development programs, with that amount increasing each year through fiscal 2026. And it authorizes as much as $8 billion to help developing countries address climate change over the next two years and another $2 billion annually to help developing countries deploy clean energy technologies, expand zero-emission vehicles, promote sustainable land use, and adapt to the effects of climate change.” Bloomberg, [2/4/22]

October 2021: Malliotakis Said China Exerting Itself Was A “Test Of The Biden Administration” Following The Afghanistan Withdrawal

October 2021: Malliotakis Said China Exerting Itself Was A “Test Of The Biden Administration” Following The Afghanistan Withdrawal. “MALLIOTAKIS: It’s certainly an escalating situation, and actually this weekend is the 110th anniversary of Taiwan National Day. Taiwan is a very important strategic ally to the United States of America. We should continue to support sovereignty. We should continue to support its desire for freedom and

I think a lot of this that you see happening with China in the Taiwan airspace is a test of the Biden administration. May 2020: Malliotakis Faced Criticism After She Said She Knew What It Was Like To Fight In Israel's Six-Day War Since She Was A "Republican In New York City"

May 2020: Malliotakis Told An Audience At The Staten Island Jewish Community Center She Knew What It Was Like To Fight In Israel's Six-Day War Since She Was A "Republican In New York City." "Staten Island Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis raised some eyebrows when she told a Jewish congregation this week that she knows what it was like for Israeli soldiers to fight in the Six-Day War because she's 'a Republican in New York City,' the Daily News has learned. Malliotakis, who's mounting a Republican challenge against Rep. We would remind the Assemblywoman that she is a Republican from not only the most pro-Trump borough of the city, but also the most pro-Trump area of the entire state. How does this possibly compare to the nascent Jewish state being surrounded on all sides by a numerically and qualitatively superior enemy set on their utter destruction? The Israel Defense Forces emerged victorious and significantly expanded the borders of the Jewish State due to excellent strategy and resolve. And it's extraordinarily unfortunate. I think that the majority of Americans, the majority of the members of Congress, do want our troops to come home. There's no doubt about that. It was the strategy or the lack thereof. And the lack of contingency planning that winning to do to close out airbase in the middle of the night without even letting know -- letting the commander, I think commander know allowing our weapons to then be used by the Taliban for full takeover, evacuating our military before our citizens.” CNN via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [8/29/21; CNN, 8/28/21] (VIDEO) 1:08

[...] ‘Congress' role is to protect the American taxpayer, and sending money to a country that has wasted U.S. aid for decades, and is now controlled by a terrorist regime, is extremely wasteful, irresponsible, and dangerous,’ said Congresswoman Malliotakis, Ranking Member of the Subcommittee on International Development, International Organizations and Global Corporate Social Impact. ‘There is absolutely no guarantee this money won't end up in the hands of corrupt

Background Checks And Loopholes

March 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against Closing The Charleston Loophole

Malliotakis Voted Against Extending The Timeframe For FBI Notification On Background Checks To 20 Days, From Three Days Under Current Law. In March 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would require a licensed gun dealer to wait up to 20 business days, as opposed to three under current law, for notification from the FBI regarding an individual’s background check before completing the sale or transfer of a firearm. Specifically, it would allow a prospective gun purchaser to petition the Justice Department to complete the sale after 10 days if no determination on their eligibility has been made through the National Instant Criminal Background Check System and allow the dealer to complete the transaction an additional 10 days after the petition is submitted. It would also require the Government Accountability Office, FBI and Justice Department to submit a number of reports regarding the bill’s effectiveness and implementation, including on the number of petitions not adjudicated within the second 10-day period and the bill’s effect on the safety of victims of domestic violence and sexual assault.” The bill passed by a vote of 219-210. Due to Roof's prior admission during an arrest that he was in possession of drugs, he should not have been permitted to buy the gun he used in the massacre. However, an agent working for the FBI's background check system who was performing the review on Roof failed to contact Columbia, South Carolina, police, who arrested Roof, in part because of a clerical error in records listing the wrong agency. The bill would make a number of exceptions to the requirement, including for loans or gifts between family members; temporary transfers for hunting, use on a shooting range, or pest control by farmers; temporary transfers to prevent imminent death or bodily harm, including self-harm; and transfers to law enforcement personnel, private security professionals, or members of the armed forces, if associated with official duties." "Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (NY-11) introduced H.R.1642, the Prosecuting Gun Crimes Saves Lives Act, legislation that increases investigations and prosecutions of convicted felons, fugitives of justice and individuals who lie or forge information in an attempt to illegally purchase firearms. 'Over the past year, the number of shootings and murders in New York City have skyrocketed, drastically decreasing the quality of life and further putting residents at risk,' said Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis. 'Our city and state have abdicated their responsibilities to keep the public safe and get illegal guns off our streets. My bill aims to give the feds more teeth to enforce laws that ensure those who attempt to skirt the system by lying and providing false information to purchase a firearm are held accountable.'" [Rep. Assault Weapons Ban

2013: Malliotakis Voted To Expand New York’s Assault Weapons Ban

Malliotakis Voted In Favor Of The SAFE Act, A Gun Law Expanding Assault Weapons Ban, Restricting Gun Possession By Mentally Ill People, Increasing Background Checks, And Mandating Schools Develop Comprehensive Safety Plans. “New York state inked the toughest gun law in the nation Tuesday, with the Assembly following the state Senate’s lead in passing a measure that expands the assault weapons ban and establishes provisions aimed at restricting gun possession by mentally ill individuals. It also increases background checks and penalties for shooting first responders and mandates schools to develop comprehensive safety plans. Assemblyman Joe Borelli (R-South Shore) was the only member of Staten Island’s six-member state delegation to vote against the legislation that others termed ‘historic.’ The Assembly passed the measure 104 to 43. Late Monday, on the one-month anniversary of the Newtown, Conn., school massacre, the state Senate passed the bill 43 to 18. Gov. Andrew Cuomo, who made expanded gun control measures a centerpiece of his State of the State address last week, signed the bill swiftly.” Staten Island Advance, [1/16/13]

In New York, we have tough laws, but these weapons can be acquired out of state. I am a supporter of the Second Amendment. But I don’t see the purpose in allowing citizens to acquire assault weapons. I would be inclined to support it.’” Staten Island Advance, [12/20/12]

May 2020: The NRA Endorsed Malliotakis' Primary Opponent

May 2020: The NRA Endorsed Malliotakis' Primary Opponent, Citing Her 2013 Vote For The NY Secure Ammunition And Firearms Enforcement (SAFE) Act And C Minus NRA Rating. “The NRA has endorsed little-known candidate Joe Caldarera over veteran state Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, who is the heavy favorite to win the primary and take on first-term Democratic Rep. Max Rose in the general election. The NRA is backing Caldarera even though President Trump and Republican and Conservative leadership are behind Malliotakis. Malliotakis, first elected to the Assembly in 2010, was the GOP candidate for mayor in 2017. While Democratic incumbent Bill de Blasio defeated her citywide, Malliotakis garnered an impressive 70 percent of the vote in her home borough of Staten Island. The NRA gave Caldarera the nod after giving Malliotakis a C minus for her legislative voting record. She voted for the NY Secure Ammunition and Firearms Enforcement Act in 2013 — gun safety restrictions that are opposed by the gun-rights lobby.” New York Post, [5/31/20]

Hospital Funding

April 2020: At The Onset Of The COVID-19 Pandemic, Malliotakis Voted To Cut Hospital Funding By $400 Million

In April 2020, Malliotakis Voted For The State Education, Labor, Housing, And Family Assistance Budget For 2020-2021. On April 3, 2020, Malliotakis voted “Yes” on Bill No. S07506B, a bill that “Enacts into law major components of legislation necessary to implement the state education, labor, housing and family assistance budget for the 2020-2021 state fiscal year.” The bill passed the Assembly by a vote of 76 – 66 and was signed into law on April 3, 2020. - The Budget Included Around $400 Million In Cuts To Hospital Funding. “The funding cut was proposed by a panel that Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo convened earlier this year, before the virus had reached the United States, to rein in the state’s growing Medicaid program by identifying $2.5 billion in savings. But the timing of the proposals, which were released in mid-March and include about $400 million in cuts to hospitals, was a blow to the morale of many hospitals and medical workers on the front lines of the fight against a ruthless virus that has infected tens of thousands in New York [...] Six lawmakers from Brooklyn wrote a letter to Mr. Cuomo calling the millions of dollars in cuts to four hospitals in their districts ‘cruel, inhumane and unacceptable’ and ‘catastrophic during a pandemic.’” New York Times, [3/30/20]

- $400 Million In Cuts Included $138 Million To NYC Hospitals. According to City And State, "Among the most contentious of the Medicaid Redesign Team’s proposals that made it into the budget was $400 million in reduced payments to hospitals, including $138 million in cuts for New York City’s public hospital system Health + Hospitals. Many Democrats opposed to the cuts said that it doesn’t make sense to reduce any hospital spending during a pandemic. Cuomo defended the cuts by pointing to the money hospitals will receive under federal coronavirus relief packages." City and State, [4/3/20]

2019 – 2021: Johnson And Johnson Was Found Responsible For Fueling The Opioid Crisis And Paid Multi-Million And -Billion Settlements

August 2019: An Oklahoma Judge Found Johnson & Johnson Responsible For The State’s Opioid Crisis And Ordered The Company To Pay $572 Million. “A judge Monday found Johnson & Johnson responsible for fueling Oklahoma’s opioid crisis, ordering the health-care company to pay $572 million to remedy the devastation wrought by the epidemic on the state and its residents.” Washington Post, [8/26/19]

Johnson & Johnson Was “Found Liable For Overly Aggressive And Deceptive Marketing Practices That Helped Lead To Thousands Of Overdose Deaths.” “In a judgment filed Friday, state District Judge Thad Balkman revised an earlier ruling against Johnson & Johnson and told the drugmaker to make a onetime payment of $465 million — not the $572 million he had originally ordered [...] His judgment is one answer to two central questions in this case and thousands of other litigation efforts connected to the country's opioid addiction crisis: Are drugmakers liable for the effects of the highly addictive opioid medications they produce? And if so, how much money should they owe to help combat those effects? In the Oklahoma case, the first state lawsuit to make it to trial, the answer to the first question was yes — Johnson & Johnson and its subsidiary Janssen Pharmaceuticals were found liable for overly aggressive and deceptive marketing practices that helped lead to thousands of overdose deaths.” NPR, [11/15/19]

2021: Johnson And Johnson Was One Of Three Drug Distributors Ordered To Pay A $26 Billion Settlement Over Allegations That It Downplayed The Addictiveness Of Opioids It Manufactured. “After nearly two years of wrangling, the country’s three major drug distributors and a pharmaceutical giant have reached a $26 billion deal with states that would release some of the biggest companies in the industry from all civil liability in the opioid epidemic, a decades-long public health crisis that has killed hundreds of thousands of Americans. [...] The distributors, which by law are supposed to monitor quantities of prescription drug shipments, have been accused of turning a blind eye for two decades while pharmacies across the country ordered millions of pills for their communities. Johnson & Johnson, which supplied opioid materials to other companies and made its own fentanyl patches for pain patients, is accused of downplaying the products’ addictive properties to doctors as well as patients.” New York Times, [7/21/21]

Officials from Orange and Santa Clara counties — both hit hard by overdose deaths, emergency room visits and escalating medical costs associated with prescription narcotics — contend the drug makers violated California laws against false advertising, unfair business practices and creating a public nuisance. [...] Named in the suit are: Actavis, Endo Health Solutions Inc., Johnson & Johnson’s Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Purdue Pharma, and Teva Pharmaceutical Industries’ Cephalon Inc.” Los Angeles Times, [5/21/14]

- November 2021: A California Judge Dismissed The Lawsuit; The Counties Planned To Appeal. “Four manufacturers of prescription opioids won the pharmaceutical industry’s first major legal victory in the opioid crisis, turning aside claims by local California governments that they contributed substantially to the epidemic. In a bench trial decision late Monday, a state judge flatly rejected a legal argument being employed in thousands of cases against the industry over its role in an epidemic of abuse that, according to federal data, has contributed to the deaths of some 500,000 people in the United States since the late 1990s and grown worse during the pandemic. [...] Judge Wilson’s decision is labeled ‘tentative,’ a procedural term, although in practice it is final. The plaintiffs have already announced they will appeal and noted that this is just one state case among thousands that have been filed.” New York Times, [11/2/21]

2018 – 2021: Pfizer Was Sued For Allegedly Marketing Opioids Deceptively And Illegally Inflating Drug Prices

August 2018: Allergan Sued Pfizer Over Allegations That It Had Deceptively Marketed An Opioid Allergan Had Acquired From A Company Pfizer Bought. “Allergan Plc on Thursday sued Pfizer Inc to require its rival to

cover any damages it is forced to pay as a result of hundreds of lawsuits claiming Allergan deceptively marketed an opioid it acquired from a company Pfizer bought. In a lawsuit filed in federal court in Cleveland, Ohio, Allergan said the ‘primary basis’ for the claims against it was the alleged improper marketing and sale of Kadian, a form of morphine, in the years before it gained rights to the painkiller in late 2008. ‘But now that more than a thousand lawsuits seek to impose liability for that very marketing and sale, Pfizer has rejected any responsibility to indemnify Allergan,’ alleged Allergan Finance LLC, the subsidiary that filed the lawsuit.” Reuters, [8/2/18]

July 2021: Pfizer Settled For $345 Million In A Lawsuit That Alleged It Fixed EpiPen Prices; EpiPens Rose In Price From $100 To $600 Between 2008 And 2016. “Pfizer Inc (PFE.N) has agreed to pay $345 million to resolve claims by consumers who say they overpaid for EpiPens due to anticompetitive practices by the drugmaker and the company that markets the emergency allergy treatment, Mylan. The proposed class action settlement was disclosed in a filing in federal court in Kansas City, Kansas. The deal, which requires a judge's approval, would not resolve claims against Mylan, which is scheduled to face trial in January. Paul Geller, a lawyer for the plaintiffs, said they were ‘pleased that Pfizer resolved its part of this class action lawsuit over the pricing of EpiPens.’ Pfizer did not admit wrongdoing. In a statement, the company said that it ‘denies any wrongdoing and continues to believe that its actions were appropriate.’ The EpiPen is a handheld device that treats life-threatening allergic reactions by automatically injecting a dose of epinephrine. The litigation followed a public outcry in 2016 after Mylan, which owns the rights to market and distribute the devices, raised the price of a pair of EpiPens to $600, from $100 in 2008, putting it in the center of an ongoing U.S. debate over the high cost of medicines.” Reuters, [7/16/21]

The lawsuit accused Novartis’ Sandoz unit, Teva Pharmaceuticals’ Actavis unit, Mylan, Pfizer Inc and other drugmakers of conspiring to rig the market between 2009 and 2016 for more than 80 drugs. Attorneys general from 46 states, the District of Columbia and four U.S. territories said the defendants prioritized profit over the public interest, depriving millions of consumers of lower prices for needed medication.” Reuters, [6/10/20]

December 2021: Malliotakis Said New York City’s Supervised Heroin Injection Sites Were “Completely Outrageous” And Would Increase Drug Addiction And Crime

December 2021: Malliotakis Called New York City’s Supervised Heroin Injection Sites “Completely Outrageous.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] It’s completely outrageous. What kind of sick person puts a community center for heroin addicts to go and shoot up, giving them, you know, free needles to do so, right next to a children’s organization and on a block where there are five schools surrounding it. January 2019: Malliotakis Criticized A Plan To Expand MetroPlus To Cover 600,000 Uninsured New Yorkers As “Abusing The Middle Class.” “The program is intended to reach an estimated 600,000 city residents currently without health insurance. Half of that group can't get health insurance because of their immigration status, de Blasio said, while the remainder includes young people who don't think they need coverage and people who find the Affordable Care Act exchanges unaffordable or difficult to navigate. The plan will build on the city's existing public-option health insurance program called MetroPlus, which currently insures more than 500,000 low-income New Yorkers. [...] ‘Our citizens have a hard enough time covering their own healthcare costs and now Mayor de Blasio also wants them to pay for the healthcare of 300,000 citizens of other countries,’ Malliotakis said in a statement. ‘The mayor must stop abusing the middle class and treating us like his personal ATM.’” Associated Press, [1/8/19]

PolitiFact Found That The AHCA “Would Weaken Protections” For Those With Pre-Existing Conditions. “An ad by the American Action Network says that under the American Health Care Act ‘people with pre-existing conditions are protected.’ The only kernel of truth here is that the amendment has language that states insurers can’t limit access to coverage for individuals with pre-existing conditions. However, the ad omits that the House GOP health plan would weaken protections for these patients. The legislation would allow states to give insurers the power to charge people significantly more if they had a pre-existing condition. While Republicans point to the fact that those patients could get help through high-risk pools, experts question their effectiveness. Current law does not allow states to charge people with pre-existing conditions significantly more. We rate this claim Mostly False.” PolitiFact, [5/24/17]

January 2019: Malliotakis Equated De Blasio’s Proposal To Allow The City To Seize Properties Where Landlords Forced Tenants Out With “Communist Cuba.” “Liberal New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio is rolling out a new plan that would potentially allow the city government to seize buildings of landlords who force tenants out -- a plan his opponents say amounts to ‘straight communism.’ [...] ‘My first reaction was: Is this communist Cuba?’ state Assemblymember Nicole Malliotakis, who ran against De Blasio in the 2017 mayoral race, told Fox News. ‘I can say that as a daughter of Cuban refugees who fled Castro’s Cuba in 1959, this is what happened to her family, she had her home taken, my grandfather had his gas station taken.’ ‘This is extreme even for Mayor de Blasio, because we know that he has socialist leanings, but this is straight communism and I think it’s very scary to America-loving, democracy-loving people.’” Fox News, [1/15/19]

August 2021: Malliotakis Criticized The “Turning The Tide” Initiative To Open 90 More Shelters In New York City For “Costing The Taxpayers A Fortune.” “Malliotakis emphasized that Mayor de Blasio’s ‘Turning the Tide’ initiative, which includes a goal of 90 new homeless shelters across the five boroughs, doesn’t address homelessness long term. ‘The homeless shelter is supposed to be a temporary solution and had we been working on rehabilitating individuals and transitioning them out of the system, they would be better off,’ said Malliotakis. ‘The communities would be better off and we wouldn’t have this issue now where the mayor is looking for additional sites and converting hotels all across the city of New York into shelters, which by the way are costing the taxpayers a fortune.’” Staten Island Advance, [8/5/21]

NYC nonsense. Actual real support,’ said Malliotakis ‘Until you have a meeting with the community and address these concerns and take public input and meet with the elected officials and hear their point of view of what would be more appropriate solutions to address homelessness, then we urge every single candidate running for mayor to scrap this plan and start new,’ she added.” Staten Island Advance, [8/5/21]

The way this Mayor is conducting business, wanting to build shelters in residential communities, is very disturbing. The Mayor shouldn’t be looking to warehouse individuals, but actually, help rehabilitate them, get them the services they need so they can transition out of the shelter system. March 2021: Malliotakis Opposed The Opening Of Two Homeless Shelters Through The “Turning The Tide” Initiative In Staten Island, Which She Said “Blindsided” Residents. “A new shelter planned for Stapleton will house 100 men, and another in Grasmere will shelter 50 women 50 years of age and over, the Advance/SILive.com learned Tuesday. Both are scheduled to open by the end of the year. As has been the case throughout parts of the city when a shelter is announced for a neighborhood, some community leaders and politicians on Staten Island were quick to voice their frustrations with the sites that are part of Mayor Bill de Blasio’s ‘Turning the Tide’ initiative. [...] Rep. President Obama's unilateral implementation of Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA), if not stopped by the U.S. Supreme Court, will cost New York's taxpayers tens of millions of dollars in additional Medicaid costs. Under the current Medicaid framework, the federal government and the state of New York split costs evenly. However, the federal government is prohibited from spending its funds on those non-citizens, so states will be forced to foot the bill in its entirety. The state has already set aside $38 million for this in last year's budget and anticipates an additional $80 million to be earmarked this year to fulfill the unfunded mandate." 'This means anything unlawful (for example, assault, etc.) would still be something that the government could settle,' she added. It would provide approximately $55 billion for water infrastructure and safety, including $30.7 billion for the Drinking Water State Revolving Fund, including $15 billion to replace lead service lines and $4 billion to address per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances and other emerging contaminants; and $12.7 billion for the Clean Water State Revolving Fund. Across various departments, the bill would provide funding for climate change response and environmental remediation, including; $11.3 billion for abandoned mine land and water reclamation projects, approximately $5.75 billion for wildfire management, $3.5 billion for the EPA hazardous substance superfund and $3.5 billion for FEMA flood mitigation. It would also provide more than $1.7 billion for cybersecurity resilience programs. The bill would include a number of provisions intended to offset spending, including by rescinding certain unobligated COVID-19 relief funding and establishing tax reporting requirements for cryptocurrency and other digital assets.” The motion was agreed to by a vote of 228-206. - White House Projected The $1 Trillion Bipartisan Infrastructure Deal Would Add About 2 Million Jobs Per Year For A Decade. “The $1 trillion infrastructure plan that now goes to President Joe Biden to sign into law has money for roads, bridges, ports, rail transit, safe water, the power grid, broadband internet and more [...] The new law promises to reach almost every corner of the country. It’s a historic investment that the president has compared to the building of the transcontinental railroad and Interstate Highway System. The White House is projecting that the investments will add, on average, about 2 million jobs per year over the coming decade.” Associated Press, [11/6/21]

March 2021: Malliotakis Said She Was “Concerned” The Infrastructure Bill Would “Become A Climate Change Bill.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] But we need to be focused on the infrastructure here in the United States right now. We have many needs. What I think the Republicans -- first, from the Republicans' perspective, we're concerned about what exactly do they mean by infrastructure because we do not want this to become a climate change bill. We know Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez is pushing to make this a green new deal and how much is this going to cost and how are we going to pay for it?” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [3/25/21] (VIDEO) :48

September 2021: Malliotakis Said She Was “Leaning Toward” Voting For BIF And Said She Would Act In The Best Interests Of Her District, Which Was “Desperate” For Infrastructure

Malliotakis Said She Was “Leaning Toward” Supporting The Infrastructure Bill. “A handful of Republicans including Reps. Don Young of Alaska, John Katko of New York, Don Bacon of Nebraska and Fred Upton of Michigan have already publicly committed to voting for the bill. Other Republicans including retiring Rep. Anthony Gonzalez of Ohio said this week they were undecided. Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R., N.Y.) said Wednesday she was leaning toward supporting it.” Wall Street Journal, [9/29/21]

Malliotakis On Infrastructure: “It’s Like Every Other Bill. There Are Good Things, And Not So Good Things. And You Have To Balance It With Your District And See What Would Be The Best Vote.” “It’s not just GOP Problem Solvers members who are signaling they’ll likely vote for the bill. Northeast Republicans such as Reps. Nicole Malliotakis (N.Y.), and Jeff Van Drew (N.J.) both told POLITICO they were leaning toward supporting it. ‘It’s like every other bill. There are good things, and not so good things. And you have to balance it with your district and see what would be the best vote,’ Malliotakis said in an interview.” Politico, [9/26/21]

Whether it was Superstorm Sandy or more recently the remnants of Tropical Storm Ida, it’s clear we need more investment in infrastructure, flood mitigation and resiliency projects. This project will go a long way in providing the surrounding community with protection from future storm waters and long-term beach erosion. I look forward to working with the Governor’s office until the completion of this project and ensuring that other projects such as the East Shore Sea Wall and Mid-Island Bluebelt are completed on schedule.’” STL News, [9/14/21]

The reality is that the City and the State have not kept pace with population growth. There’s been more development, there’s been more people, and the sewer system is not one that can take the capacity of a storm of this magnitude. There is little drainage and although they’ve made attempts in expanding wetlands and bluebelts as well as some infrastructure, it’s certainly not enough that’s needed. People pay taxes to the government for a reason, and one of those reasons is infrastructure.” Fox News, [9/4/21] (VIDEO) :42

September – October 2021: Malliotakis Accused Democrats Of Holding BIF “Hostage” To Build Back Better And That She Supported It As A Standalone Bill

10/6/21: Malliotakis Said BIF “Will Very Well Be Tied To” BBB If It Did Not Get A House Vote That Day. “Freshman Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-N.Y.) crystallized the case against House GOP infrastructure support last week by contending that any further vote delays would prove Democrats were permanently yoking one bipartisan bill to a party-line social spending plan, thereby uniting her party in opposition. ‘If it doesn’t come up today,’ Malliotakis said of the infrastructure bill on Thursday, ‘it will very well be tied to a much larger $3.5 trillion socialist wish list — which I don’t think gets any Republicans.’ Malliotakis added that, had the Senate-passed bill gotten a standalone vote, she would consider supporting it.” Politico, [10/6/21]

October 2021: Malliotakis: “It’s A Shame That The Majority Of New York City Members Held The Infrastructure Hostage [...] Because They Were Holding Out For This $3.5 Trillion Spending Plan.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] The reality is that not improving our infrastructure has a real detrimental effect on our economy and there are multiple studies out there that highlight the billions lost to GDP by not improving and keeping up with population and economic growth, particularly in cities like New York City where we have aging infrastructure, aging bridges, we have ports that we do need to increase the capacity of, we have a transit system that relies on World War II conditions, you have storm sewer systems that are inadequate. We need coastal resiliency, we saw that after hurricane Sandy, we saw it after Ida more recently. The impact of not improving our infrastructure, I think, far surpasses the investment that would be made. And I think that at the end of the day it’s a shame that the majority of New York City members held the infrastructure hostage basically, the bipartisan infrastructure bill, because they were holding out for this $3.5 trillion spending plan which, by the way, if implemented would have economic impacts that would basically take away the economic benefits of the infrastructure bill.” Bloomberg, [10/6/21] (AUDIO) 9:40

October 2021: Malliotakis Said She Would Have Considered Voting For The Senate-Passed Infrastructure Bill As A Standalone, But Said The Vote Being Delayed Was Proof It Was Tied To The Reconciliation Bill.

September 2021: Malliotakis Claimed Pelosi “Hijacked The Actual Infrastructure Bill” To Pass “Spending On So- Called Human Infrastructure.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I mean, look, there’s no doubt that we, as a society just need to be more environmentally friendly. But certainly what they’re pushing is, is a separate package that bases most of the spending on so- called human infrastructure, as opposed to true infrastructure needs, like sewer and water infrastructure, like roads, bridges, and highways, like the subway system, by the way here in New York City, which was gushing with water. These are the things that need to be modernized to be kept up with population growth, and Nancy Pelosi has hijacked the actual infrastructure bill that could potentially make that happen. So, I think there’s two issues here. There is a national issue of them playing politics with the true meaning of infrastructure, and the other issue is the way that our mayor and our governor have been handling things over the years where they haven’t used money wisely, putting it towards the things they needed to be put toward, to improve quality of life here.” Fox News, [9/3/21] (VIDEO) :19

September 2021: Malliotakis Accused Democrats Of Using Hurricane Ida To Pass A “$3.5 Trillion Socialist Wish List” And Said The Infrastructure Bill Would Have “Tremendous Bipartisan Support.” “[ANCHOR:] Do you think it’s appropriate to blame this on climate change? I mean maybe it is, maybe it isn’t, but should he be bringing politics into this when people are suffering [MALLIOTAKIS:] We all need to do our part to be more environmentally friendly and reduce our footprint but at the end of the day they’re using this to push their radical left agenda to try to pass a $3.5 trillion socialist wish list. Instead they should be calling on Nancy Pelosi to bring the actual infrastructure bill that passed already in a bipartisan fashion in the Senate for a real debate and discussion on where those infrastructure dollars are needed across the country. The reality is you will have tremendous bipartisan support if you are focused on true infrastructure like sewer and water infrastructure, like broadband, like roads, bridges, and highways.” Fox News, [9/4/21] (VIDEO) 3:53

November 2021: After She Voted For BIF, Malliotakis Claimed It Hurt Democrats’ Chances Of Passing Build Back Better, But Faced Backlash From Republicans Who Said She Empowered Them To Pass It

November – December 2021: After She Voted For BIF, Malliotakis Claimed It Was No Longer Tied To Build Back Better And Hurt Democrats’ Chances Of Passing It

11/8/21: Malliotakis Said Democrats “Abandoned Their Scheme” To Tie Infrastructure To The Reconciliation Bill. “Last Tuesday, Americans from one side of the country to the other, elected Republicans to state and local office, sending Joe Biden and the Democrats a message that we are not, and will never be, a socialist nation. Because this message was so clear, even Nancy Pelosi and the Democrats in Congress could not ignore it. Biden and Pelosi abandoned their scheme to tie a historic investment in our nation’s infrastructure, that was first proposed by President Trump five years ago, to their $3.5 trillion socialist reconciliation plan. As a result, New York City and the rest of our country will benefit from a desperately needed investment in our roads, bridges, ports, sewers, mass transit and coastal resiliency projects—including funding for Staten Island’s East Shore Sea Wall and the Brooklyn shoreline.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [11/8/21]

11/6/21: Malliotakis Said Her Vote For Infrastructure Was A Vote “Against AOC And The Squad” Because It Would Weaken Or Kill The Build Back Better Agenda. “What they’re saying: ‘I weakened their hand. They have no leverage now,’ said Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-N.Y.), who had shaped a GOP-friendly spin on her vote by the time she exited the chamber: ‘I voted against AOC and the squad tonight.’ Malliotakis told Axios that progressives will no longer be able to hold the bill hostage and predicted Build Back Better will be ‘drastically weakened’ in the Senate or ‘die altogether’ as a result of the infrastructure bill passing.” Axios, [11/6/21]

11/5/21: Malliotakis: “Now That The Bipartisan Infrastructure Bill Has Passed, We Have Weakened The Socialist’s Negotiating Hand And Perhaps Even Killed This Radical Socialist Spending Spree Once And For All.” “In a separate statement, Malliotakis reiterated her intention to vote against the social spending bill. ‘The day I vote for any budget thrown together in the dead of night by Senator Bernie Sanders and the socialist squad is the day I purchase a one-way flight to Cuba,’ she said. ‘It is my hope that now that the bipartisan infrastructure bill has passed, we have weakened the socialist’s negotiating hand and perhaps even killed this radical socialist spending spree once and for all.’” New York Post, [11/5/21]

12/6/21: Malliotakis Claimed Build Back Better Was “On Life Support In The Senate” After The Vote For BIF “[Took] Away AOC’s Leverage.” “[BARTIROMO:] So you don't think - you don't think you saved your colleagues? I mean, if you didn't vote for that, and you're on - your colleagues did not vote for that, we would not be talking about a reconciliation bill that's to come? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, that's - but those are two separate bills. And actually, what I think you see the reconciliation bill right now on life support, you see it on life support in the Senate. [BARTIROMO:] OK. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Because we've taken away AOC's leverage. Look, whenever I'm on the opposite side of AOC in a squad, I think I'm doing a good job for the people of my district. New York gets 10 percent of this funding out of 50 states. It is a good bill for New York City. November 2021: Matt Gaetz Criticized Malliotakis For Voting For BIF, Which He Said “Created Momentum” For Build Back Better

Matt Gaetz “Reacted To Malliotakis With Disgust” After She Said Passing Infrastructure Reduced Leverage For Reconciliation, And Added That The Infrastructure Vote “Created Momentum” For It. “Bannon played a clip of Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-NY) telling Fox News that she believes passage of the bipartisan bill reduces the likelihood of Democrat being able to pass the larger Build Back Better Act via the budget reconciliation process. The House passed the bill on Friday morning, but it faces an uncertain future in the Senate, where all 50 Democrats would need to be on board. Gaetz reacted to Malliotakis with disgust. ‘Thank you, Fox News, for demonstrating what abject weakness looks like from elements of the Republican caucus.’ He called the 13 Republicans who voted for the bipartisan bill ‘turncoats.’ ‘Here’s the key mistake,’ Gaetz said. ‘They thought that by passing a bad spending bill, they could stop a worse spending bill. They thought that it would create leverage. The reality is that it created momentum. There was never a circumstance in today’s Washington where we were gonna win one and the Democrats were gonna win one. They were gonna win it all, or we were gonna win it all.’” Mediaite, [11/19/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Attributed An Influx Of Angry Phone Calls Her Office Received Over BIF To “Misinformation” That Conflated Build Back Better And BIF, But Refused To Fault Trump For It

11/10/21: New York Times: “The Office Of Representative Nicole Malliotakis Of New York Has Been Inundated With Angry Messages Tagging Her As A ‘Traitor’” After Her Vote For BIF. “The office of Representative Nicole Malliotakis of New York has been inundated with angry messages tagging her as a ‘traitor.’ Investing in the nation’s roads and bridges was once considered one of the last realms of bipartisanship in Congress, and President Biden’s infrastructure bill drew ample support over the summer from Republicans in the Senate. But in the days since 13 House Republicans broke with their party leaders and voted for the $1 trillion legislation last week, they have been flooded by menacing messages from voters — and even some of their own colleagues — who regard their votes as a betrayal.” New York Times, [11/10/21]

Malliotakis Said She Was Getting Angry Calls Because Of “Misinformation” Conflating Infrastructure And Build Back Better. “I think what has really been the issue is the misinformation surrounding the infrastructure bill. And as I have tried to point out, it is 100 percent, cover to cover, real infrastructure, critical to my district and other districts across the country. What people are mostly upset about is the — Biden’s Build Back Better bill, that reconciliation bill, that we are currently fighting in Washington [...] Look, I have gotten my own share of very disturbing phone calls as well from people outside of my district. It’s very important that we do not try to mischaracterize these pieces of legislation, because that is where this anger is coming from. And, unfortunately, that’s what has occurred here. And that’s why I’m doing as many interviews as possible to explain to people that these are two separate bills. The infrastructure is cover-to-cover infrastructure that we desperately need, we have needed for decades in our country, and that local and national leaders just didn’t put it forward the investment that was needed.” PBS Newshour, [11/17/21] (VIDEO) 6:23

They don’t want to pay for that extra 87,000 IRS agents. They don’t want to pay for amnesty. They don’t want to pay for expanding welfare without work requirements or any other social programs. That is why people are extraordinarily upset. And that is why the Republican Party is united. November 2021: Malliotakis Said Trump Should Get “Some Credit” For BIF And That Trump’s Version Would Have Been Better

Malliotakis Said Trump Should Get “Some Credit” For BIF And Said That She Was “Appreciative To President Trump For Being One Of The First To Really Talk About The Need For Infrastructure.” “[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, I think at the end of the day, look, President Trump laid the groundwork for this infrastructure to pass. So, I'm happy and I'm appreciative to President Trump for being one of the first to really talk about the need for infrastructure. [END CLIP. HOST:] Congresswoman, what’s your response to that? [MALLIOTAKIS:] He’s absolutely right in saying if it was President Trump’s bill, because he also wanted to spend one trillion on infrastructure, it would have been a better bill. However, he is wrong when he says only 30 percent goes to infrastructure.” Fox News, via Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis YouTube, [11/9/21] (VIDEO) 4:24

Malliotakis Said BIF Would Provide A Minimum Of $100 Billion To New York Infrastructure Projects, “Just Like President’s Trump Plan That I Supported And Pledged To Pass.” “Equally frustrating, is the misinformation surrounding the infrastructure bill I supported. Every single dollar in that legislation funds infrastructure improvements, with half a trillion over five years dedicated to repairing our nation’s deteriorating hard infrastructure and the balance to other other [sic] infrastructure investments like broadband and public transit. Just like President Trump’s plan that I supported and pledged to pass when I was running for Congress, this will provide a minimum of $100 billion over five years that will benefit New Yorkers. From funding that could be used for expanded fast ferry service for Staten Island, upgrading NYC’s subway system’s pre-WWII signals and making improvements to the Staten Island Expressway to alleviate traffic congestion.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [11/8/21]

November 2021 – January 2022: Malliotakis Praised BIF’s Investments In New York Infrastructure

Malliotakis: “Every Single Dollar In That Legislation Funds Infrastructure Improvements,” Including Broadband And Public Transit. “While our country will be better off for both passing the bipartisan infrastructure bill and thwarting the socialist wish list, a lack of information and fake news has clouded the discussion. First, I voted for the bipartisan infrastructure bill and that legislation only. I voted against a measure that would have advanced the socialists’ $3.5 trillion reconciliation plan and I will fight like hell to prevent that from ever becoming law. Equally frustrating, is the misinformation surrounding the infrastructure bill I supported. Every single dollar in that legislation funds infrastructure improvements, with half a trillion over five years dedicated to repairing our nation’s deteriorating hard infrastructure and the balance to other other [sic] infrastructure investments like broadband and public transit.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [11/8/21]

Malliotakis: “I Am Proud To Have Fulfilled My Campaign Promise To Pass A Comprehensive Infrastructure Investment That Benefits My Constituents In New York City.” “I am proud to have fulfilled my campaign promise to pass a comprehensive infrastructure investment that benefits my constituents in New York City and struck a major blow against Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Bernie Sanders and the socialists in Congress who have maneuvered for months to tie together the passage of the infrastructure bill and their $3.5 trillion socialist wish-list.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [11/8/21]

Malliotakis On Infrastructure Passage: “These Are The Things That People Expect When They Pay Taxes.” “Freshman Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (N.Y.) told host John Berman on CNN’s ‘New Day’ on Monday that she voted to send the bill to President Biden’s desk for final approval because it allocated funding that would provide fundamental boosts to infrastructure in her district. [...] ‘When they pay their taxes they want basic things and roads and bridges and tunnels and ports, ensuring that, you know, they have clean water, ensuring that they have an adequate sewer system, these are the things that people expect when they pay taxes,’ she added.” The Hill, [11/8/21]

11/8/21: Malliotakis Highlighted BIF’s Investments In The Eastern Shore Seawall, Staten Island Expressway, Subway Signals, Brooklyn’s Belt Parkway, And New York Sewer Systems. “[MALLIOTAKIS:] But everything from flooding on the Belt Parkway in Brooklyn, to upgrading the subway signals for my constituents here in the city that are dealing with pre-World War II equipment and has led to numerous delays on the subway system. On Staten Island, there is funding here that we can complete the HOV lane on the Staten Island Expressway, to ensure sewer infrastructure, which is so critical, as somebody who represents a district that was slammed during Ida, we need to increase the capacity of our sewers across the city of New York. And, of course, to finish the east shore seawall, we allocated funding for that. But each day that passes, the cost of that project is increasing. And we need to make sure that it is fully funded so there are no further delays. That is something so critical to those that I represent that were impacted by Hurricane Sandy.” CNN via CNN Facebook, [11/8/21] (VIDEO) 1:13

January 2022: Malliotakis Announced $5 Million For The Coast Guard To Upgrade Housing At Fort Wadsworth Base As Part Of The Infrastructure Investment And Jobs Act. “Staten Island’s Coast Guard will receive $5 million for housing upgrades as part of the bipartisan infrastructure bill that passed last year. Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn), who voted in favor of the legislation, announced the funding in a Monday media release describing it as ‘long overdue.’ [...] The funding will go toward upgrades for 154 legacy housing units at the Coast Guard’s Fort Wadsworth base, according to the media release.” Staten Island Advance, [1/10/22]

December 2021: Malliotakis Denied That BIF Would Raise Taxes

December 2021: Malliotakis Denied That BIF Would Raise Taxes: “That Bill Is Paid For.” “[BARTIROMO:] Yes. But look, when you're talking about how bad the policies are of your colleagues on the left and then you go ahead and you vote with them, you're one of 13 Republicans who voted for the infrastructure package, Congresswoman. I want to give you an opportunity to explain yourself because it's because of you and 12 of your colleagues that we're here now, expecting higher taxes in 2022. [MALLIOTAKIS:] That's absolutely not true. That bill is paid for. That bill was paid for. And nearly half of that infrastructure bill goes to roads, bridges and highways. An aging city like New York City desperately needs this infrastructure investment.” Fox Business, [12/6/21] (VIDEO) 4:18

November 2021: Malliotakis Criticized Progressives For Voting Against BIF

Malliotakis Criticized Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez For Voting Against The Infrastructure Bill. “New Yorkers reacted with anger Saturday after Reps. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and Jamaal Bowman voted against a $1.2 trillion infrastructure bill. [...] ‘I think she did her district a disservice,’ Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/Brooklyn) told The Post. ‘New York City benefits more than any other part of the country. It’s all hard infrastructure and all things that we desperately need.’ Malliotakis bucked her own party to vote in favor of the bill, joining other statewide Republicans including Reps. John Katko (R-Syracuse), Tom Reed (R-Corning), and Andrew Garbarino (R-Sayville). She added that she has been disappointed with many of her GOP colleagues spreading ‘misinformation’ about the bill and for voting no to simply deny President Biden a win.” New York Post, [11/6/21]

INVEST In America ActMalliotakis Voted Against The INVEST In America Act, Authorizing More Than $720 Billion In Transportation And Water Infrastructure Projects

Malliotakis Voted Against The INVEST In America Act, Containing More Than $720 Billion In Surface Transportation And Water Infrastructure Spending. In July 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would authorize more than $720 billion in surface transportation and water infrastructure spending. It would reauthorize federal-aid highway, public transit, rail, and surface transportation safety and research programs for five years, through fiscal 2026, and reauthorize various water infrastructure programs for five or ten years. As amended, the bill would additionally authorize more than $36 billion through fiscal 2026 for activities related to electric vehicle infrastructure, access and manufacturing. It would authorize more than $548 billion through fiscal 2026 for federal surface transportation programs, including $333 billion for federal-aid highway programs; $109 billion for transit programs; and $96 billion for rail programs. It would establish requirements for many new and existing surface transportation programs to consider the environmental and equity impacts of funded activities. It would require the Transportation Department to establish a number of grant programs for project-level investments, including for carbon pollution reduction projects to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from the surface transportation system; development of electric vehicle charging and hydrogen fueling infrastructure; separation or elimination of highway-rail crossings; extreme weather resilience and mitigation improvements; activities to reconnect neighborhoods by removing or remediating the effects of transportation infrastructure construction in disadvantaged and underserved communities. It would authorize $12 billion for a new program to support large highway, transit, and rail projects of national and regional significance. It would modify a transit grant program to require the procurement of zero-emission buses and other vehicles. Within the total for rail funding, it would authorize $32 billion for Amtra; $25 billion for a new program to fund improvements to major intercity passenger rail bridges, stations, and tunnels grant; $7 billion for passenger and freight rail infrastructure and safety improvement grants; and up to $20 million annually to establish a university innovation institute to research and develop low- and zero-emission rail technologies. It would establish an independent nonprofit known as the Clean Energy and Sustainability Accelerator to facilitate the deployment of emissions reduction technologies, requiring the Energy Department to transfer $50 billion to the accelerator upon establishment and $10 billion annually for the subsequent five years. The bill would authorize more than $117.5 billion for drinking water infrastructure and $54.4 billion for wastewater treatment infrastructure over ten years. It would authorize $53 billion through 2031 for the EPA Drinking Water State Revolving Fund, which provides grants to states to provide loans and other financial assistance to public water systems, and increase the maximum percentage of such funding states may use to assist disadvantaged communities. It would authorize $4.5 billion annually through fiscal 2031 for grants to states to replace lead service lines; $4 billion available until expended for a low-income drinking water assistance program. It would authorize $40 billion through fiscal 2026 for the EPA Clean Water State Revolving Fund, which provides grants to states to provide loans and other financial assistance related to water treatment infrastructure projects. It would authorize $4 billion for a low-income wastewater assistance program, available until expended. It would authorize $2.6 billion to improve water sanitation facilities funded by the Indian Health Service. It would authorize $500 million annually through fiscal 2031 for community water system PFAS treatment grants. It would require the EPA to set national primary drinking water regulations for contaminants including per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances, microcystin toxin, chromium-6 and 1,4-dioxane.” The bill passed 221 to 201. 2001 – 2007: Kalikow Was Chairman Of The MTA When Transit Workers Went On Strike After He Proposed Raising Their Retirement Age

Kalikow Was The Executive Of A Multi-Million Dollar Real Estate Firm With “An Addiction To Ferraris.” “‘Usually when I do a real estate deal I get paid for it,’ grumbles Mr. Kalikow, popping a miniature Tootsie Roll in his mouth as an alternative to the tobacco habit he thinks he’s outgrown (unlike an addiction to Ferraris, which he hasn’t). He made and later inherited millions via the family real estate business, H.J. Kalikow & Company, built over six decades by his grandfather and father and consolidated in recent years to this flagship building at 101 Park Avenue and 10 less consequential properties.” New York Times, [5/6/05]

2001 – 2007: Kalikow Was Chairman Of The MTA. “When Peter S. Kalikow announced yesterday that he would be stepping down as chairman of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, it marked the end of six eventful and turbulent years, including a bitter transit strike, a bookkeeping scandal and the start of the first major expansion of the city’s transit system in decades.” New York Times, [5/8/07]

December 2005: MTA Transit Workers Went On Strike Over The MTA’s Wages And Pension Eligibility; Kalikow Called The Strike A “A Slap In The Face Of All MTA Customers And All New Yorkers.”

“Transport Workers Union Local 100 president Roger Toussaint, announcing the decision to strike, said that at a time when the Metropolitan Transportation Authority has a surplus of $1 billion, ‘this contract... should have been a no-brainer.’ ‘Make no mistake, these are bullying tactics and we will not accept them,’ said MTA chairman Peter Kalikow of the TWU’s strike decision, adding that the walkout is ‘a slap in the face of all MTA customers and all New Yorkers.’ [...] The transit workers’ old contract expired early Friday, but the union and the Metropolitan Transportation Authority agreed to keep talking through the weekend. The two sides are divided over wages and an MTA proposal to raise the age at which new employees become eligible for a full pension from 55 to 62.” CBS News, [12/19/15]

2003: As MTA Chair, Kalikow Oversaw A Bookkeeping Scandal, Was Accused Of Cooking Books To Justify A Fare Increase

2003: The MTA Under Kalikow Was Accused Of Publicizing Its Finances As More Dire Than They Really Were In Order To Make The Public Accept A Fare Increase, Which Kalikow Denied. “However, those improvements resulted directly from a bookkeeping scandal in 2003 in which the authority was accused of keeping two separate sets of books, one for internal use and one that provided a much bleaker view of its finances. Critics charged that the more dire account was intended to scare the public into accepting a fare increase. Yesterday, Mr. Kalikow counted the new financial disclosures among his achievements and dismissed charges that the books had been manipulated.” New York Times, [5/8/07]

Tolls & Congestion Pricing

August 2017: Malliotakis Supported Cuomo's Congestion Pricing Proposal

August 2017: Malliotakis Supported Cuomo's Congestion Pricing Proposal. "In regard to Gov. Andrew Cuomo's proposal for congestion pricing and de Blasio's proposal to tax the rich to pay for the MTA, some of the candidates preferred the former, but nearly all of them rejected the latter. While Bashner and Malliotakis said that they agreed with Cuomo's plan and opposed de Blasio's proposal, Polanco and Eisenbach agreed that neither plan would resolve the issue." February 2020: Malliotakis Voted Against A Congestion Pricing Proposal, Which She Said Was Too Vague And Disadvantaged Staten Islanders

February 2020: Malliotakis Voted Against A Congestion Pricing Proposal, Which She Said Was A Vague "Blank Check." "In her letter to Federal Highway Administrator Nicole Nason, Malliotakis, who voted against congestion pricing when it came before the legislature, urged the agency to reject congestion pricing until the MTA comes up with a concrete plan on exactly how congestion pricing would work. [...] Malliotakis said she is not opposed to congestion pricing per se, but that she voted against the bill because, in her view, it was too vague. 'I don't believe in voting for a bill that was basically a blank check. There is no information on exactly how congestion pricing would work and exactly where the money would go. I would like to see some of the money go to fix switches on the R train, express bus service and other things that would benefit my constituents,' she told the Eagle." Brooklyn Eagle, [2/25/20]

Malliotakis Wrote A Letter To The Federal Highway Administration, Which Had To Approve Of The Plan, To Reject It Unless It Granted Toll Credit Status To The Verrazzano Bridge. "Malliotakis, a Republican representing parts of Bay Ridge and Staten Island, wrote a letter to the Federal Highway Administration Feb. 20 urging the agency to reject congestion pricing in New York City. [...] 'I also urge you to reject this proposal unless the Verrazzano Bridge is given the same toll credit status that many other crossings across the city are expected to receive. The people of Staten Island and New York City are counting on you to make sense of this puzzling plan, which is missing many pieces,' she wrote." Brooklyn Eagle, [2/25/20]

- Malliotakis Said That The Verrazzano Bridge's Lack Of Toll Credit Status Unfairly Forced Staten Islanders Driving To Manhattan To Pay Two Tolls. "Malliotakis also pushed for the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge to be included in any congestion pricing plan. Specifically, she is seeking a toll credit for Staten Island residents, who, she said, would be unfairly forced to pay two tolls — one to drive on the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge and a second toll to drive into Manhattan." June 2021: Malliotakis Introduced A Bill To Prevent Double-Tolling In Congestion Zones, Which She Called "Another Tax On Drivers In The Left's War Against Cars"

June 2021: Malliotakis Introduced The "Protection Against Double Tolling Act" Which Would Provide Drivers A Credit For Tolls They Already Paid Upon Entering A Congestion Zone. "Congestion pricing in New York City has been in limbo since it passed as part of the 2019 state budget, but Rep. Nicole Malliotakis is trying to get ahead of an additional toll burden it could put on Staten Islanders. To be implemented, the new system needs federal approval through an environmental review process, because some of the roads that would be affected below Manhattan's 61st Street receive federal funding. Before that happens, Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn) introduced a bill on June 4, the 'Protection Against Double Tolling Act,' which would allow for a credit for tolls already paid before entering the congestion pricing district — a Staten Islander, for example, paying the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge toll would be credited that amount against congestion pricing fees in Manhattan." - Malliotakis Said Her Goal Was To Slow Down Or Stop A Proposal To Implement Congestion Pricing In Manhattan. “Mayor Bill de Blasio continued to call on state officials Tuesday to move forward with the implementation of congestion pricing in lower Manhattan. The new system would charge drivers for entering lower Manhattan, but Rep. Nicole Malliotakis has been pushing to ensure Staten Islanders don’t need to pay another fee after crossing the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge. [...] ‘My goal is to slow this program down, or perhaps even stop it altogether,’ Malliotakis said in a media release introducing the bill. ‘But, if the Congestion Pricing Program does get final approval, at a minimum I want protections in place for the residents of Staten Island to ensure they are not double tolled.’” Staten Island Advance, [7/20/21]

May 2021: Malliotakis Introduced A Bill To Study The Economic Impacts Of Congestion Pricing

Josh Gottheimer (NJ-05), introduced H.R.2476, the Economic Impact of Tolling Act, bipartisan legislation that pushes back on Congestion Pricing Programs by requiring thorough economic impact statements to provide more transparency to the public and policymakers as to the impacts and consequences congestion pricing will have on workers, residents and businesses.” [Rep. [...] U.S. Rep. Nicole Malliotakis, R-New York, said she is concerned with the pace of the would-be program’s rollout – particularly since it has not previously been implemented in this country. ‘It is irresponsible for the Federal Highway Administration to allow an environmental review, as opposed to a more detailed environment impact statement for this program,’ Malliotakis said in a statement.” Washington Examiner, [4/9/21]

February 2021: Malliotakis Supported Cancelling Scheduled Toll Increases After New York Accepted Federal Pandemic Relief. “Last week I wrote to Mayor de Blasio and Governor Cuomo asking them for a commitment to not raise income taxes and the property tax levy if they receive federal aid and use a portion of the funds to stop the toll increases and provide relief to the small businesses they shut down. So far, my calls have gone unanswered, but I’ll keep pushing. The worst thing the governor and mayor could do is accept the federal aid and still move forward with their anticipated toll and tax increases. It would not only be double-dipping on the part of the city and state governments, but it would be a slap in the face to our middle-class families who are struggling to

February 2021: Malliotakis Introduced A Bill To Use Revenue From Two-Way Tolling To Provide Discounts Or Credits For Drivers Living On Either Side Of The Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge. "Congresswoman Nicole Malliotakis (NY-11) today introduced her first bill, H.R.1356, the Resident Toll Commuter Relief Act, legislation that requires the extra revenue generated by moving from one-way tolling to two-way tolling, to be used to lower tolls or fund rebates and credits for individuals residing on landmasses on either side of the bridge. January 2021: After The MTA Announced It Would Not Delay Toll Increases, Malliotakis Urged The MTA To Maintain Its Discount On The Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge For Staten Island Residents. "With the MTA announcing that it will postpone planned fare increases, but will move forward with plans to increase bridge and tunnel tolls, Staten Island's elected officials are reminding the agency of the importance of maintaining the borough's resident discount program on the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge. [...] On Wednesday, Councilman Steven Matteo, R-Mid-Island, in partnership with Borough President James Oddo and Rep. January 2020: Malliotakis Opposed Two-Way Tolling On The Verrazzano Bridge, Which She Said Would Not Reduce Traffic And Increase Toll Costs For Staten Islanders. "That's why, when the MTA's chairman joined a news conference last April, under the Verrazzano Bridge, with Reps. Max Rose, Jerry Nadler and Nydia Velazquez, to inform us that two-way tolling was a good thing for Staten Island, I was skeptical of their bureaucratic double-talk and knew instantly that their claims had to be verified. [...] The MTA claims it stands to gain an additional $12 million in revenue from the change. But what does Staten Island and Southern Brooklyn get from the windfall? Nothing! The sad reality is that our congressman has been hoodwinked by the MTA, Rep. Nadler and Rep. Velazquez and it's all at our expense. Two-way tolling won't reduce our congestion or increase vehicle speeds and the projected $12 million increase will be gobbled-up by the MTA and will never be used to reduce the sky-high tolls." Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [1/21/20]

March 2019: Malliotakis Signed A Letter To Cuomo In Support Of Two-Way Tolling. "A source close to Rose showed the Home Reporter a March 25 letter to Gov. clogging Southwest Brooklyn streets during evening rush hours. Malliotakis cited a recent study by the Metropolitan Transportation Authority when she presented the 4,000 vehicle figure. ‘Traffic is already a nightmare. The study projects a decrease of 4,000 vehicles traveling into Brooklyn every morning. That’s more than a million fewer vehicles on the Staten Island Expressway every year, 85% of which would be out-of-state cars and trucks taking advantage of the toll-free route across Staten Island and into Manhattan. To quote from the MTA report, ‘during the AM peak hour, the SIE is heavily congested and operates at a very low level of service. Cabbies Win Millions More in Aid After Hunger Strike New York officials said Wednesday they had struck a deal with the largest holder of taxi loans in the city to help rescue thousands of cabbies who have been crushed under paralyzing debt after years of exploitative practices in the industry. [...] The roots of the crisis began about two decades ago, when a group of industry leaders began steadily and artificially inflating the price of medallions, which are regulated by the city. As the price soared to $1 million, drivers who wanted to own their own cab, instead of working for a taxi fleet, took on hefty loans that they could not afford, while lenders pocketed hundred of millions of dollars, The New York Times reported in a 2019 series.” New York Times, [11/3/21]

September 2021: Malliotakis Criticized The New York City Department Of Environmental Protection Budget For Underfunding The Sewer System. “Malliotakis also discussed the budget. ‘Less than 5% of the DEP budget going to sewers when it is probably the most important thing that they should be focused on. That’s what frustrates me. That’s what frustrates all of us and I know it’s what frustrates you. We pay taxes to the city for a reason,’ she said. ‘We need sewers. We do need storm drains. October 2021: Malliotakis And New York Senators Urged Biden To Allocate Federal Funds For Construction Of The Eastern Shore Seawall Amid Supply Chain-Related Delays. “A crucial infrastructure project designed to protect Staten Island’s East Shore from coastal storms will run out of funds due to COVID-19 pandemic-related supply-chain delays and shortages that have raised the cost of construction, a bi-partisan group of lawmakers said. Rep. Nicole Malliotakis (R-Staten Island/South Brooklyn), Sen. Chuck Schumer (D-N.Y.) and Sen. Kirsten Gillibrand (D-N.Y.) penned a letter to leading officials at the United States Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) calling for the agency to use federal funds recently made available by President Joe Biden to keep the project known as the East Shore seawall on-track.” Staten Island Advance, [10/28/21]

August 2021: Malliotakis Said She Remained In “Constant Contact” With USACE After It Declined To Clear A Hazardous Waste Site Necessary For The Construction Of The East Shore Seawall. “The position oversees civil works at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE), the agency leading construction of the project officially known as the ‘South Shore of Staten Island Coastal Storm Risk Management Project,’ but is more commonly referred to as the East Shore seawall. [...] The USACE will be handling the remediation efforts in the park, but has declined to handle the work needed in the area adjacent to the park where the seawall project will be. Additionally, the current Army Assistant Secretary of Civil Works declined to grant a policy waiver in May that would’ve allowed the USACE to handle the radiation remediation. [...] Additionally, Malliotakis said last week that she remains in constant contact with the USACE, and that work on the broader project hasn’t begun because the corps is waiting for the city to submit plans related to the Island’s blue belt system.” Staten Island Advance, [8/10/21]

The seawall project is critically important. It’s been delayed twice in the last two years. It’s going to be a large focus of mine. One of the first things I want to do is meet with the Army Corps of Engineers and get the status. I’ve met with (the New York City) Parks Department over this, because the seawall is an opportunity for us to bring recreational activity and economic opportunity to the East Shore and incorporate that into the seawall project. I’m going to use my voice to push that project along and make sure it’s completed. It’s not just the protection it provides, but it’s also the assistance in terms of reducing flood insurance rates for my constituents. Without access, also known as an easement, construction will be delayed indefinitely. To prevent the delay and ensure construction begins on time, Rep. Max Rose (D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn) will introduce a bill authorizing the easement for state and local government. [...] ‘Every day a shovel is not in the ground it costs my constituents money,’ said Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis (R-East Shore/Brooklyn). ‘This easement is not only necessary to build the sea wall that will protect East Shore residents, but until 50 percent of the wall is built, homeowners will continue to see their federal flood insurance rates rise.’” Staten Island Advance, [1/17/19]

In March 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would expand enforcement authorities of the National Labor Relations Board and modify procedures by which employees may unionize and elect representation under federal labor law. The bill would authorize the NLRB to enforce any orders it issues and to impose a number of civil monetary penalties, including penalties of up to $50,000 against employers who prevent or punish organizing activities by employees. It would require the NLRB to seek temporary injunctions against employers charged with engaging in unfair labor practices and allow employees to bring civil action if the board fails to seek an injunction. It would outline a number of procedures by which employees may petition for and elect representation for collective bargaining through an election directed by the NLRB. It would require the NLRB to schedule pre-election hearings within eight days of a petition being filed; prohibit employers from certain interference or participation in such elections; and require the NLRB to certify and order the employer to engage in collective bargaining with an elected labor organization. It would outline procedures for initial collective bargaining between an employer and a union, including to provide for federal mediation services if an agreement is not reached 90 days after the bargaining begins and referral to an arbitration panel if an agreement is not reached in an additional 30 days. Among other provisions, the bill would prohibit employers from taking certain retaliatory actions against employees who participate in a strike, including permanently replacing or discriminating against such employees. It would specify that employees' right to strike is protected regardless of the duration, scope, frequency, or intermittence of the strike. It would modify definitions of 'employee' and 'supervisor,' particularly to narrow the classification of independent contractors and supervisors, two categories of employees not eligible for collective bargaining. It would also authorize the use of collective bargaining agreements that require employees to pay fees to a labor organization as a condition of employment." The bill passed by a vote of 225-206. Before, during and after the vote, we heard from leaders like Senator Savino, Councilwoman Rose, AM Fall, AM Cusick and AM Reilly — a bipartisan call to action to save over 300 union jobs on Staten Island. This isn’t about politics, it’s about common sense and standing up for workers when they’ve struggled so much over the past year and a half. With that said, it’s beyond disappointing that Rep. The American Rescue Plan Provided $350 Billion In State And Local Funding To Hire Law Enforcement Officials, Pay Overtime For Community Policing, And Restore Law Enforcement To Pre-Pandemic Levels. “Today, the Treasury Department is highlighting that communities experiencing a surge in gun violence as a result of the pandemic may use the American Rescue Plan’s $350 billion in state and local funding for purposes such as: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic. [...] In addition, the Treasury Department is clarifying that any community may use ARP state and local aid for the above strategies and any other public safety programs, up to the level of revenue loss the jurisdiction experienced during the pandemic. And any community may use ARP funds to rehire police officers and other public servants to restore law enforcement and courts to their pre-pandemic levels.” White House, Press Release, [6/23/21]

Department Of The Treasury: “There Are Many Ways In Which The State And Local Fiscal Recovery Funds [...] Can Support Communities Working To Reduce And Respond To Increased Violence.” “Under Treasury’s Interim Final Rule, there are many ways in which the State and Local Fiscal Recovery Funds (“Funds”) under the American Rescue Plan Act can support communities working to reduce and respond to increased violence due to the pandemic. [...] In all communities, recipients may use resources to rehire police officers and other public servants to restore law enforcement and courts to their pre-pandemic levels. [...] In communities where an increase in violence or increased difficulty in accessing or providing services to respond to or mitigate the effects of violence, is a result of the pandemic they may use funds to address that harm. This spending may include: Hiring law enforcement officials – even above pre-pandemic levels – or paying overtime where the funds are directly focused on advancing community policing strategies in those communities experiencing an increase in gun violence associated with the pandemic o Community Violence Intervention (CVI) programs, including capacity building efforts at CVI programs like funding and training additional intervention workers.” Department of the Treasury, [7/19/21]

Biden: “The American Rescue Plan, Which We Passed In The First 100 Days Of My Administration, Is Providing Much-Needed, Historic Relief To Bring Back Those Law Enforcement Jobs.” President Biden: “The American Rescue Plan, which we passed in the first 100 days of my administration, is providing much-needed, historic relief to bring back those law enforcement jobs and social service jobs. Much of this relief has already arrived. The rest is on its way. And we’re now providing more guidance on how they can use the $350 billion nationally that the American Rescue Plan has available to help reduce crime and address the root causes. For example, cities experiencing an increase in gun violence were able to use the American Rescue Plan dollars to hire police officers needed for community policing and to pay their overtime. Mayors will also be able to buy crime-fighting technologies, like gunshot detection systems, to better see and stop gun violence in their communities. They can use the funding to scale up wraparound services for the residents as well, including substance abuse and mental health services that we know will make a difference in prevention of crime.” White House, [6/23/21]

2020: Malliotakis Criticized A $1 Billion NYPD Budget Cut, And Supported Pulling Federal Funds From NYC In Response To The Cut

2020: Malliotakis Criticized A Proposal To Cut NYPD’s Budget By $1 Billion, Which She Said Would Increase Crime And Eliminate The Department’s Plainclothes Unit

July 2020: Malliotakis Said The Proposed Plan To Defund NYPD By $1 Billion “Will Surely Increase Crime And Make Our City And Its Neighborhoods More Dangerous.” “As I write this, we are already fighting a new battle as Mayor de Blasio and radicals on the City Council are pushing through a plan to defund the NYPD by $1 billion (nearly 17% of the overall NYPD budget), an action that will surely increase crime and make our city and its neighborhoods more dangerous. Defunding makes the changes we’ve made to bail reform all the more important and emphasizes the need for further changes to the law. Their short-sighted plan is wrong and the decrease in police funding will only amplify the problems that our city already faces. It undercuts the fixes we applied to bail reform and cynically sets the stage for a continued rise in crime by slashing the resources the NYPD needs to keep our city and its people safe.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [7/1/20]

July 2020: Malliotakis Said Defunding The NYPD By $1 Billion “Led To 500 Fewer Detectives Solving Crimes, A 75% Increase In Retirements, And The Elimination Of The Plainclothes Unit.” “As someone who’s focused on restoring public safety in our communities, I was proud to host the House Committee on Homeland Security in New York City to meet with top law enforcement officials and the leadership of the police unions. During this meeting, we heard about the challenges our police are facing today, including rising rates of violent crime, resource management and officer retention in New York City. For them, cutting $1 billion from their budget has led to 500 fewer detectives solving crimes, a 75% increase in retirements, and the elimination of the plainclothes unit.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [7/3/20]

September 2020: Malliotakis Supported Trump’s Proposal To Pull Federal Funding From New York City In Response To The Budget Cut

9/2/20: The New York Post Reported That Trump Directed Federal Officials To Begin The Process Of Pulling Federal Funds From NYC Over Cuts To Its Police Budget And Handling Of Summer 2020 Protests. “President Trump is ordering the federal government to begin the process of defunding New York City and three other cities where officials allowed ‘lawless’ protests and cut police budgets amid rising violent crime, The Post can exclusively reveal. Trump on Wednesday signed a five-page memo ordering all federal agencies to send reports to the White House Office of Management and Budget that detail funds that can be redirected. New York City, Washington, DC, Seattle and Portland are initial targets as Trump makes ‘law and order’ a centerpiece of his re-election campaign after months of unrest and violence following the May killing of George Floyd by Minnesota police.” New York Post, [9/2/20]

Malliotakis Supported Trump's Proposal, Which She Said Sent "A Clear Message To Bill De Blasio And New York City's Left-Wing Elected Officials" About Their "Radical Far Left Policies." "Minutes later, Malliotakis, a state assemblywoman whose district overlaps with the 11th CD encompassing southern Brooklyn as well as Staten Island, applauded Trump's defunding plan and instead took aim at what she called the city's anti-policing policies and other wasteful spending by the de Blasio administration. 'President Trump is sending a clear message to Bill de Blasio and New York City's left-wing elected officials; you can't break federal laws with radical far left policies and squander billions in tax dollars on pet projects like Thrive NYC, then defund the NYPD with expectations that the federal government will bail you out,' Malliotakis said in a statement. 'Federal dollars need to come with commitments and restrictions to ensure that the taxpayers' money is being spent on its intended purposes.'" New York Post, [9/3/20]

November 2021: Malliotakis Said She Was Advocating For An Earmark With NYPD Funding.

"[MALLIOTAKIS:] Well, we're still in that process, we haven't gotten to that process yet. It's potentially a different earmark, is what it would be. I've been fighting to get money for the NYPD and that would be an appropriations measure." The Joe Piscopo Show, [11/9/21] (AUDIO) 41:17

June 2021: Malliotakis Called For The Restoration Of Plainclothes Unit That Combated Violent Crime.

"[MALLIOTAKIS:] Yes, some of these people have extensive histories. Two of the hate crimes that occurred in New York City recently, one individual had 40 prior arrests, the other had 77 prior arrests. So until the Democrats and Governor Cuomo decide that they're going to fix the bail reform, we're going to continue to have this problem. 2020: Malliotakis Falsely Claimed Rose Supported Defunding The Police After He Attended A March For Racial Justice, Then Declined To Condemn Ads That Attacked Her Constituents At The March

June 2020: Rose Attended A Peaceful Protest Organized By The Young Leaders Of Staten Island That Led Malliotakis To Repeatedly Accuse Rose Of Supporting Defunding The Police

June 2020: Rose Attended A Peaceful Protest For Racial Justice Organized By The Young Leaders Of Staten Island In Coordination With The NYPD. “The candidates have grown increasingly contentious discussing Rose’s attendance at a summer march for racial justice, where he was photographed next to protesters holding signs that called for defunding the police. ‘That was a defining moment. People were really upset, and rightfully so,’ Malliotakis said. ‘The fact that he saw those signs and proceeded to march with them is disrespectful to the police. Period.’ Rose opposes defunding the police and says the New York Police Department should pay its officers more than any other police force in the country. And, he counters, the June march was a peaceful protest, organized by Young Leaders of Staten Island in coordination with the NYPD.” Politico, [10/17/20]

June 2020: Malliotakis: “Congressman Max Rose Taking Part In Demonstration Where Marchers Chanted ‘Defund The Police’ And Carried Signs Saying ‘Blue Lives Murder’ Is A Disgrace.” “Rep. Max Rose was called out by likely Republican congressional challenger for taking part in a peaceful protest on Staten Island on Friday afternoon. [...] Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, R-East Shore/Brooklyn, criticized Rose’s participation in the march, the New York Post reported. ‘Congressman Max Rose taking part in demonstration where marchers chanted ‘Defund the Police’ and carried signs saying ‘Blue Lives Murder’ is a disgrace,’ Malliotakis said. Malliotakis said his actions prove he’s ‘just another liberal who will say or do anything to get elected,’ citing his backing of the closure of Rikers Island and bail reform.” Staten Island Advance, [6/6/20]

- Malliotakis: “Max, He Showed Up At This Rally, They Had Signs That Were Derogatory Towards Our Police.” “I went to a number of marches in support of the police. I used my platform on Twitter to speak out. There’s nothing wrong with peaceful protest. That’s a foundation of our democracy. It’s one of the constitutional freedoms that we need to protect. But it doesn’t necessarily mean that you proceed – like in the case with Max, he showed up at this rally, they had signs that were derogatory towards our police. ‘All Cops Are’ – I’m not going to complete the term. He proceeded to march with them. Then they started chanting ‘defund the police’ and he continued to stay there.” City & State NY, [11/9/20]

And while I support peaceful protest, I’m not going to participate in a march in which those messages are displayed. Everyone has had to make their own determination. But I still don’t understand what the men and women of the 122 (police precinct) did to warrant their Congressman standing in front with those very derogatory messages toward them.” City & State NY, [11/9/20]

Local News Outlets And Fact Checkers Called Malliotakis’ Claim That Rose Wanted To Defund The Police “False” And “Wrong-Headed;” Young Leaders Of Staten Island Called It “Misleading”

NY1 Fact Check: Malliotakis Claimed Rose Voted To Defund The Police, Which Was “False.” “‘Max Rose not only marched with the Defund the Police crowd,’ Malliotakis said. ‘He went to Washington and actually voted to defund the police. You may be familiar with a police officer named Eddie Byrne.’ It’s true that Rose attended a rally for George Floyd, the Black man killed after police knelt on his neck. And it’s true that he voted for the George Floyd Justice in Policing Act. It’s false that the Democratic congressman voted to defund the police. The legislation named for Floyd made the Edward Byrne memorial grant conditional. It did not eliminate it. Rose has voted to increase Byrne grants and secure other law enforcement funding.” NY1, [10/15/20]

Staten Island Advance Editorial Called Malliotakis’ Claim That Rose Wanted To Defund The Police And

Attacks On His Participation In The YLSI March “Wrong-Headed And Troubling.” “We find Malliotakis’ claim that Rose wants to defund the police and her attacks on his joining a march down Hylan Boulevard with local Black Lives Matter organizers wrong-headed and troubling. There were scattered signs among the marchers that called for defunding police departments. Does that mean that Max Rose wants to defund the police? Of course not. But that’s the tack Malliotakis has chosen to take, along with her supporters.” Staten Island Advance, Editorial, [10/25/20]

- The Young Leaders Of Staten Island (YLSI) Called Malliotakis’ Framing Of The Event “Misleading” Since It Was In Support Of Police Accountability, Not Defunding. “Isaiah Buffong had no idea Congressman Max Rose would show up to the protest he helped organize on Staten Island. Formed in response to the death of George Floyd at the hands of law enforcement, Buffong and other local young people felt they needed an outlet for their voices to be heard. The Young Leaders of Staten Island group was born a few months ago to address the experiences and needs of the island’s under-30 population. [...] Kevin Walton, another member of the Young Leaders of Staten Island, thinks the Malliotakis’ videos are misleading. Walton also assisted with organizing the march and says that though the NYPD’s budget is a concern, the group’s call is for the NYPD to use some of its money in a different way, on work like partnerships with community groups, not slashing the agency’s spending. ‘The mission of the protest was for police accountability,’ Walton says.” City Limits, [10/29/20]

Malliotakis Refused To Condemn Ads That Insinuated The March Was Violent And In Favor Of Defunding The Police

September 2020: A Congressional Leadership Fund Ad For Malliotakis Insinuated The YLSI March Was In Support Of Defunding The Police. “The ad, paid for by the Congressional Leadership Fund (CLF) super PAC, is titled ‘A Billion Reasons, Max Rose,’ and attempts to link the freshman congressman to $1 billion in city funding shifts from the NYPD to other agencies. According to the Citizens Budget Commission, 92% of NYPD funding comes from city coffers. Rep. Rose, D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn, is a member of the federal government, but the ad points to his participation in a June march organized by the Young Leaders of Staten Island (YLSI) against police brutality as related to the city government’s funding decision.” Staten Island Advance, [9/1/20]

- One Member Of The Young Leaders Of Staten Island Featured In The Ad Called It “Just Terrible” And Said It Included “False Information” That Cast Staten Island In A Negative Light. “Malliotakis’ campaign used footage of the march in a number of ads to denounce Rose. [Young Leaders of Staten Island leader Isaiah] Buffong was surprised, and outraged, to see his face in one of them on T.V. ‘It was just terrible. It just really pops up everywhere,’ Buffong says. ‘I don’t want my community to get a bad taste in their mouth based on false information.’ [...] Buffong says Malliotakis took the protest scene out of context. He was also disappointed that Malliotakis would cast the district she represents in such a negative light. Buffong maintains he and the rest of the organization want to work with police, not against them.” City Limits, [10/29/20]

YSLI Members Called For The Ad To Be Taken Down And For Malliotakis To Denounce It; Her Spokesperson Declined To Do So And Said The Campaign Was Not Involved In The Ad’s Production. “YLSI member Isaiah Buffong, footage of whom is prominently featured in the ad, took issue with its portrayal of his group as akin to violent protesters and ‘cop haters.’ He described the ad as ‘racist.’ ‘We have never advocated for violence and that is not who we are or what we stand for,’ Buffong said. ‘I am my mother’s oldest son — 21 years I have to thank for her — and what this ad did was hurt my mother, and seeing that hurt me.’ Buffong and other members of the group called for the ad to be taken down. They also asked for Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, R-East Shore/South Brooklyn, Rose’s opponent in the November Congressional election, to call for the ads removal. [...] Her campaign spokesman, Rob Ryan, was explicit in saying that they had no participation in production of the ad, which doesn't mention the candidate, but also did not address the YLSI members' calls for her to come out against the ad." Staten Island Advance, [9/1/20]

Police Accountability

March 2021: Malliotakis Voted Against The George Floyd Justice In Policing Act, Which She Claimed Would “Defund The Police Through Unnecessary Mandates”

Malliotakis Voted Against The George Floyd Justice In Policing Act, Overhauling Policing Laws. In March 2021, Malliotakis voted against The George Floyd Justice In Policing Act. NPR described the bill: “The [George Floyd Justice in Policing Act] would ban chokeholds and end qualified immunity for law enforcement — the legal protection for police officers that limits victims' ability to sue for misconduct. It would ban no-knock warrants in federal drug cases, mandate data collection on police encounters and create a nationwide police misconduct registry to help hold problematic officers accountable. The bill would also prohibit racial and religious profiling and redirect funding to community-based policing programs.” The motion was agreed to by a vote of 220 - 212. Same thing with the sanctuary policy in New York City where we have individuals who are here illegally and they are committing crimes. The Bill Was Opposed By The NRA Because Of Provisions To Prevent People Convicted Of Domestic Abuse And Stalking From Purchasing Guns

VAWA Reauthorization Closed “Boyfriend Loophole” Allowing Convicted Abusers And Stalkers To Purchase Guns, Drawing Opposition From The National Rifle Association. “The U.S. House voted 244-172 Wednesday to reauthorize the expired Violence Against Women Act with a gun-reform provision by Michigan U.S. Rep. Debbie Dingell that has drawn the ire of the National Rifle Association [...] It aims to close the so-called ‘boyfriend’ loophole by amending federal law to prohibit convicted abusers of current or former dating partners from purchasing or owning firearms. Currently, those convicted of domestic abuse can lose their weapons only if their victim is their current or former spouse, or they have a child with the victim. Dingell's provision also would prohibit firearm ownership by people convicted of misdemeanor stalking. The NRA opposes the legislation over the provision, arguing there are no ‘loopholes’ for domestic violence or stalking, and that the legal system has sufficient protections to prohibit dangerous individuals from possessing firearms. The gun owners group has said ‘former dating partners’ is a subjective term that could be abused and noted that some misdemeanor stalking offenses don't include violent or threatening behavior or even personal contact. The NRA also fought the Dingell provision when the House reauthorized the bill in 2019, when the legislation died in the Republican-led Senate.” Detroit News, [3/17/21]

The Violence Against Women Act Helped Decrease The Rate Of Intimate Partner Violence, And Improved The Reporting Process For Sexual Assault Victims

In The 15 Years After VAWA Passed, The Rate Of Serious Intimate Partner Violence Nationally Declined 72 Percent. “Between 1994 and 2011, the rate of serious intimate partner violence against women declined 72 percent, from 5.9 to 1.6 victimizations per 1,000 women. The annual rate of rape and sexual assault perpetrated against girls and women older than age 11 declined nearly 60 percent from 1995 to 2010. While these declines are likely the product of multiple causes, evidence tells us that declines in rape and sexual assault are linked to VAWA. A study examining rape and aggravated assault data from over 10,000 jurisdictions over a seven-year period found that VAWA funding, specifically those funds most likely to support local law enforcement, was associated with reductions in these violent crimes, even after controlling for general decreasing crime rates and other justice-related funding.” Urban Institute, [2/9/17]

VAWA Funding Prevents Sexual Assault Victims From Having To Pay For Their Forensic Exams. “If a person seeks medical attention within four days of an assault, they may also undergo a sexual assault medical forensic exam (SAMFE). This exam collects and preserves important evidence—like DNA—that could identify a suspect and provide invaluable corroborating evidence to support the victim’s account of the crime. Before VAWA, victims could be billed by the health care provider that conducted their exam. No victim of any other crime is expected to pay for the collection and preservation of evidence. VAWA has supported programs in every state to end this practice. Our research shows that these programs have nearly reversed the billing of victims for collecting forensic evidence from their own bodies.” Urban Institute, [2/9/17]

VAWA Funding Helps Train Sexual Assault Nurse Examiners, Who Improve Both Quality Of Health Care For Survivors And The Change Of A Successful Conviction. “Sexual assault nurse examiners (SANEs) are specially trained medical personnel who conduct the SAMFE, providing care and treatment for victims of sexual assault and rigorously collecting evidence for use during investigation and prosecution. VAWA resources support many state and local SANE programs. Exams conducted by SANEs are associated with increases in successful prosecution, even when compared with exams conducted by traditional emergency room personnel. The SANE training equips providers with the skills to create a more thorough record of all medical forensic evidence and to preserve crucial, fragile DNA evidence. Studies show that SANE programs improve the quality of health care delivered to survivors, the quality of forensic evidence, and the chances of obtaining a conviction. Eliminating VAWA would almost certainly reduce the number of SANEs available to treat sexual assault survivors, limiting important victim services and the availability of quality evidence to convict those who commit these crimes.” Urban Institute, [2/9/17]

Because of bail reform, 50% of criminals who were arrested for a shooting are released back on to our streets as are 9 of 10 perps arrested for possessing illegal firearms. Together, we faced a pandemic, witnessed social upheaval and civil unrest. The one constant since 12:01 a.m. on New Year’s Day has been that murder, shootings, burglaries and car thefts have increased compared to last year, as was predicted when the Criminal Justice Reforms passed under one-party Democratic rule. These so-called ‘reforms’ also generated a near-constant stream of news stories ranging from the tragic to the surreal. It proved, to anyone that might have been skeptical, that the root cause of crime is criminals, and that society is a better place when those that are dangerous, as well as career criminals, are kept behind bars.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [7/1/20]
- Malliotakis Called The Establishment Of “Qualifying Charges,” Which Were Eligible For Bail, And Conditions Other Than Bail That A Judge Can Enforce On Release A “Step In The Right Direction.” “While the amended law goes into effect on July 1, understand that it is far from perfect. But, the changes are substantial and a step in the right direction in a legislature controlled by progressive Democrats. Under the fixes achieved that take effect today, a variety of crimes, including felony drug offenses, sex trafficking, promoting sexual performances by a child, failing to register as a sex offender, a variety of assault and strangulation charges, vehicular manslaughter, grand larceny, possession of a weapon on school grounds, criminally negligent homicide and a number of other felony charges are now listed as ‘qualifying charges,’ which makes them eligible for bail. This means that a judge can, once again, use his or her discretion to keep someone in jail pre-trial. In addition, the new law adds a number of ‘court conditions’ that can be applied by a judge as part of a no-bail release. These include surrender of passport, banning interaction with individuals involved in the case, referring the accused to mandatory counseling or to a stay in a mental hygiene facility, among others.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [7/1/20]

The bill passed in June 2013 by 99-41, passed in May 2014 by 94-36, and passed for the last time in June 2014 by 117-13, and was later signed into law on July 5, 2014. 'The legislation has been around for decades. It was a poorly drafted bill that didn't iron out the kinks; it just sat there. Every year, the same thing,' she said. 2016: Malliotakis Sponsored A Bill Prohibiting Anyone With Two Or More Felony Convictions From Entering Drug Diversion Instead Of Serving Jail Time, Citing The Murder Of A Police Officer By A Repeat Offender. “One year ago today, NYPD Officer Randolph Holder was shot and killed by Tyrone Howard, a career criminal who was on the street instead of in jail. [...] The bill sponsored by the Republican assemblywoman would prohibit anyone with two or more felony convictions from entering drug diversion programs instead of serving jail time. Howard had pleaded guilty to drug possession and should have started a residential drug treatment program instead of serving a two-year prison term. But he didn't attend the treatment and in October 2015, shot and killed Holder. Malliotakis Voted Against Preventing Medicare Benefit Cuts

Malliotakis Voted Against Preventing Sequestration Cuts To Medicare And Providing The Senate With Procedures To Increase The Debt Limit. In December 2021 Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill, as amended, that would extend from Dec. 31, 2021, to March 31, 2022, a temporary suspension of the 2 percent annual sequester of Medicare payments, and provide for payment reductions of 1 percent for the period of April 1 through June 30, 2022. As an offset, it would increase sequestration percentages above 2 percent in fiscal 2030. It would also require budget year debit for 2022 to be rolled over to the 2033 scorecards under statutory pay-as-you-go requirements, thus delaying spending cuts to Medicare and other mandatory programs subject to sequestration that would otherwise be triggered in January. It would delay a number of other Medicare payment reductions and policies, including to extend a temporary increase in payment amounts for physicians to provide a 3 percent increase for services furnished in 2022; delay for one year a provision that would phase in payment reductions for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests, prohibiting any reductions for 2021 and 2022 and prohibiting reductions greater than 15 percent for 2023 through 2025; and delay through 2022 the implementation of the Medicare radiation oncology model. It would decrease from $165 million to $101 million funding that may be expended from the Medicare Improvement Fund for fiscal 2021. Finally, the bill would establish procedures to expedite Senate consideration of a joint resolution to increase the debt limit by a specific dollar amount. Specifically, it would provide for a non-debatable motion to proceed to the joint resolution and, if the motion is agreed to, up to 10 hours of debate on the measure with no amendments or other motions in order, immediately followed by a vote on passage. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a “maximum fair price” for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program’s debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. BBB Would Lower Drug Prices For Seniors By Reducing Co-Pays And Establishing A $2,000 Out-Of-Pocket Limit Under Medicare Part D

The Build Back Better Deal Lowered Drug Prices For Seniors By Reducing Co-Pays And Establishing A $2,000 Out-Of-Pocket Limit in Medicare Part D. “Pelosi celebrated the drug-pricing agreement: ‘For a generation, House Democrats have been fighting to deliver real drug price negotiations that will lower costs. With today’s agreement on strong lower drug price provisions for the Build Back Better Act, Democrats have a path forward to make good on this transformational agenda for our seniors.’ She said the deal will lower drug prices for seniors, reduce their out-of-pocket co-pays and establish a $2,000 out-of-pocket limit for seniors’ expenses in Medicare Part D. Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better And Said She Was “Completely Against All Elements” Of The Bill, Which Invested $150 Billion In Elder Care

Malliotakis Voted Against Build Back Better And Said She Was “Completely Against All Elements” Of The Bill

Malliotakis Voted Against The Build Back Better Act. In November 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the fiscal 2022 budget reconciliation bill, as amended, that would provide approximately $2 trillion in investments and tax cuts to address climate change and child care, health care, education, housing and other social policies intended to support families. It would establish a child care and early learning entitlement program, providing approximately $100 billion for the program through fiscal 2024. It would provide $18 billion through fiscal 2024 for a free universal preschool program. It would extend through 2022 the expanded child tax credit provided by prior coronavirus relief law (PL 117-2) and provide $5 billion to administer the credit. It would establish a paid family and medical leave benefit for up to four weeks per year, beginning in 2024. It would require the Health and Human Services Department to negotiate a "maximum fair price" for insulin and select Medicare-eligible, brand-name drugs that do not have generic competition. It would require manufacturers to provide rebates for single-source drugs under Medicare Parts B and D for which prices increase faster than inflation. For Medicare Part D, it would cap annual out-of-pocket limit at $2,000 beginning in 2024. It would establish or extend expanded eligibility for certain tax credits toward Affordable Care Act marketplace insurance premiums through 2025. It would establish or expand a number of tax credits to incentivize actions by businesses and individuals to mitigate climate change, including to expand credits for renewable energy production and facilities, carbon capture facilities, use of alternative fuels and energy efficiency improvements at residential properties; and to establish individual credits for the purchase of electric vehicles. It would raise royalty rates and fees for oil and gas drilling leases and cancel or ban certain offshore leases. It would provide $29 billion to support the deployment of low- and zero-emission technologies, more than $20 billion for federal climate resiliency and environmental conservation activities and $9 billion for federal procurement of electric vehicles and related infrastructure. It would provide $65 billion for public housing improvements, $24 billion for rental assistance housing vouchers and $15 billion for down payment assistance and loan programs for first-generation homebuyers. It would provide $9.8 billion for local transit projects to support mobility and affordable housing access disadvantaged communities and $9 billion for lead remediation and water line replacement projects. It would forgive all debt owed by the National Flood Insurance Program's debt, for a total of $20.5 billion. It would provide such sums as necessary for the USDA to forgive farm loan debt for economically distressed farmers and ranchers. It would provide $6.6 billion to the Small Business Administration and Minority Business Development Agency to help underrepresented individuals with business development. It would provide $20 billion for Labor and Education department workforce development programs and $1.9 billion for Labor Department worker protection agencies. It would allow individuals who entered the United States prior to Jan. 1, 2011, to receive a grant of parole allowing them to remain temporarily in the country for a period of five years, but no later than Sept. 30, 2021. It would temporarily increase from $10,000 to $80,000 the annual cap on the deduction for state and local taxes for tax years 2021 through 2030. To offset costs, it would establish or modify various taxes on corporations and high-income individuals, including to establish a 15 percent alternative minimum tax for corporations with an annual income exceeding $1 billion; a one percent tax on stock buybacks by public companies; and an additional five percent tax on individual income over $10 million and further three percent tax on income over $25 million. It would provide $78.9 billion to improve IRS operations and tax enforcement.” The bill passed by a vote of 220-213. HR 5376, [Vote #385, 11/19/21; CQ, 11/19/21]

November 2021: Malliotakis Said She Opposed Restoring SALT Deductions In Build Back Better

Build Back Better Would Raise The SALT Deduction Cap To $80,000. “The fate of the state and local tax deduction, a tax break that homeowners in high-tax states like New York counted on for decades, now depends on the fate of President Biden’s ‘Build Back Better’ plan to stitch a tighter social safety net. House negotiators agreed earlier this month to lift the cap on the deduction – set at $10,000 by the Republican-led Senate in 2017 – to $80,000 through the year 2030 and to include the change in the Build Back Better plan.” Associated Press, [11/14/21]

Malliotakis On Build Back Better: “I Very Much Support Restoring SALT But If It’s Going To Be Tied With A Bunch Of Other Nonsense, I Just Simply Won’t Be Able To Support That Package.” “[SCOTTO:] In that Build Back Better is the SALT deduction which would obviously help people in New York. So are you going to vote against Build Back Better even with the SALT being part of that. [MALLIOTAKIS:] Well as you know Roseanna I am one of the founding members of the SALT caucus. I very much support restoring SALT but if it’s going to be tied with a bunch of other nonsense, I just simply won’t be able to support that package. What good is it to give taxpayers back some money with one hand if we’re going to cost them tons of other money with the other hand? Malliotakis On The SALT Deduction: “What Good Is It If We Give Money Back To The Taxpayer On The Federal Level And Then The City And The State Just Increase Taxes.” “[BARTIROMO:] What’s the story on the SALT deduction? Do you want that in there? I know that some of your colleagues are pushing for it and in order to pay for it they want this 80,000 new auditors at the IRS, the $80 billion Biden is allocating to the IRS so they can surveil our bank accounts and tell the IRS every transaction $600 or more, that’s how they’re going to pay for a SALT deduction. Is it in or is it out? [MALLIOTAKIS:] I don’t know what’s going to happen just yet. I’m always in favor of giving more tax dollars back to hardworking New Yorkers, but we also have to make sure that burden is not increased by our mayor and governor. Institute On Taxation And Economic Policy: New Yorkers Would Pay $4 Billion More In Taxes Under Trump Tax Plan Due To SALT Deduction Cuts. According to the Institute on Taxation and Economic Policy, “An ITEP analysis reveals that four states would see their residents pay more in aggregate federal personal income taxes under the House’s Tax Cuts and Jobs Act. While some individual taxpayers in every state would face a tax increase, only California, New York, Maryland, and New Jersey would see such large increases that their residents' overall personal income tax payments rise when compared to current law. Californians would face the largest net tax increase, at $12.1 billion in 2027 alone. They are followed by New Yorkers ($4.0 billion in higher income taxes), Marylanders ($430 million), and New Jerseyans ($137 million). Overall, the residents of these four states combined would pay $16.7 billion more in federal personal income taxes by 2027. These increases are due in large part to House leadership's decision to dramatically curtail the deduction for state and local tax payments." Malliotakis Attributed New Yorkers' Losses Due To The SALT Cap To State And Local Governments "Taxing Residents To Death" And Supported Repealing It

Malliotakis: New Yorkers' Losses Due To SALT Deduction Cuts Are "Not The Federal Government's Fault. That's The Fault Of Our State And Local Governments For Taxing Residents To Death." BBB’s Expanded Child Tax Credit Would Benefit 134,000 Children In Her District And Was Endorsed By Richmond University Medical Center Head Start

As Of August 2021, NY-11 Had Received $33.7 Million In Expanded Child Tax Credit Payments For 134,000 Children. According to estimates from the Joint Economic Committee, New York’s 11th Congressional District had received $33.7 million in Child Tax Credit payments as of August 2021: “Using state-level data from the Treasury Department on advance Child Tax Credit (CTC) payments, the Joint Economic Committee estimated the number of qualifying children, total number of payments, and total payment amount by congressional district in August 2021, when the second round of CTC payments was distributed.” Joint Economic Committee, [9/9/21; Joint Economic Committee, Estimates of Advance Child Tax Credit Distribution by Congressional District, 9/9/21]

- Build Back Better Would Ensure That Families Received An Expanded Child Tax Credit Through 2022 And Make The Credit Permanent For Families With Low Or No Annual Income. “The House Build Back Better legislation would ensure that families continue to get a significantly expanded Child Tax Credit via monthly payments through 2022; and it would permanently make the full credit available to children in families with low or no earnings in a year, locking in substantial expected reductions in child poverty. The expanded credit benefits roughly 9 in 10 children across the country, and already data show signs of success. The vast majority of parents with low incomes are spending their Child Tax Credit payments on basic needs such as food, housing, utility bills, and education, which can help give their children a stronger start in life.” Center for Budget Policy Priorities, [11/11/21]

August 2021: Staten Island Head Start At Richmond University Medical Center Wrote Biden In Support Of Making The Expanded Child Tax Credit, Including For Immigrant Families, Permanent. In a letter to President Biden, Staten Island Head Start - A division of Richmond University Medical Center and other community organizations wrote, “Our request to you is straightforward: Now that you have lifted families up, do not let them down. Help us secure our children’s futures. Make the Child Tax Credit expansions permanent and fully inclusive. A permanently expanded and fully inclusive CTC that reaches all children who need it, including immigrant children, will help families meet their children’s basic needs, weather unexpected expenses, and plan for the future. It will also help prevent involvement in intervening systems like child protective services, promote children’s healthy development and well-being, increase educational attainment, boost future earnings, and ensure all children across the income spectrum have the opportunity to pursue their goals.” Letter to President Biden via Children’s Defense Fund, [8/4/21]

Head Start is a federal program that promotes school-readiness of children from low-income families, from birth to age 5. The funds from DHHS will go towards educational resources and healthcare services at RUMC, including its Head Start program. ‘RUMC is such an important institution in our community, focusing on bringing health, wellness and prevention services to Staten Islanders,’ Malliotakis said in the announcement. ‘I’m happy to have secured this funding for the doctors, nurses and healthcare professionals at RUMC so that they can better service children and their families in the areas of health, nutrition and education,’ the congresswoman added.” Staten Island Advance, [11/11/21]

April 2021: Malliotakis Said Proposed Increases In The Corporate Tax And Taxes On The Wealthy “Always [...] Fall On The Middle Class.” “[FISHER:] But one of the other big sticking points, of course, is how to pay for it. And President Biden really went out of his way tonight to make the case that this should not fall on middle class Americans, that he wants to raise taxes on the wealthy and corporations. Is there -- did you feel like there was any room for negotiation on that front? [MALLIOTAKIS:] Look, I think at the end of the day, it always does fall on the middle class. The reality is that when the wealthy people are not investing in expanding and growing their businesses and creating good jobs, when the when the American government is borrowing more money and spending and hitting a $30 trillion debt, you know, that's causing inflation, the cost of products will go up. You know, that's the reality, it will have an impact on everyday working Americans when the bill comes.” Fox News, [4/29/21] (VIDEO) 2:34

Property Taxes

March 2020: Malliotakis Called On De Blasio To Freeze Water Bill Payments And Property Taxes

March 2020: Malliotakis Called On De Blasio To Freeze Water Bill Payments And Property Taxes, But Opposed Freezing Rent. “Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis and City Council Minority Leader Steven Matteo sent another letter to Mayor Bill de Blasio asking for a pause on property tax and water bill collections during the crisis. The pair began calling for the freezes in a letter sent March 17. Rep. Max Rose, D-Staten Island/South Brooklyn, also signed onto the March 17 letter, but has been unable to do so since deploying with the National Guard to help respond to the outbreak, a spokesman for the Congressman said. ‘While we have not received a response to our letter, we have heard you call upon the state to freeze rent,’ wrote Malliotakis, R-East Shore/South

Brooklyn, and Matteo, R-Mid-Island. ‘Homeowners also have expenses they need to pay such as mortgages, property taxes and utilities with small landlords often relying on the income obtained from rent to make those payments.’” Staten Island Advance, [4/14/20]

August 2020: After The City Did Not Freeze Property Taxes, Malliotakis Said De Blasio’s Administration Was “Full Of It.” “Pointing to hotels and tourism being ‘obliterated’ and building owners struggling to collect rent while still having to make mortgage and tax payments, Staten Island Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis asked the city to freeze property tax collection or to reassess properties, to no avail. ‘I wrote to the Department of Finance and they told me we are not allowed to do that and need legislation from Albany to do it,’ she recalled. ‘So we passed legislation in Albany to allow them to do it. And they never did it. And they are full of it.’” The Real Deal, [8/21/20]

February 2020: Malliotakis Urged De Blasio To Issue A Two Percent Cap On New York City Property Taxes, Which He Said Could Result In Layoffs To Public Servants

February 2020: Malliotakis Urged De Blasio To Issue A Two Percent Cap On New York City Property Taxes, Which She Said Was “Critical To Provide Some Relief For Individuals Who Are Truly Struggling.” “But five-term Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, who pressured the mayor to fix the city’s current property tax system when she ran against him in the 2017 mayoral race, has been urging the mayor to immediately issue a 2% property tax cap until the commission issues its final set of recommendations. Malliotakis called on the mayor to put the cap in place Monday during his visit to Albany where he testified before state lawmakers at a budget hearing on local governments. ‘I’m really concerned about you saying that you cannot do this cap because it is critical to provide some relief for individuals who are truly struggling, the middle class the lower-income middle-income communities that I represent are struggling to pay their property tax bills,’ Malliotakis said. ‘A 2% cap until the changes are made would go a very long way in providing relief.’” Staten Island Advance, [2/10/20]

De Blasio Said A Two Percent Cap Could Require Layoffs To Public Servants, Including Police Officers And Firefighters. “But de Blasio cautioned that capping property taxes by 2% would result in cuts to city services or even civil servant jobs. ‘I just don’t agree with the cap and you represent a district with so many public servants,’ de Blasio said. ‘I think if I said ... to the police officers, the firefighters, the Sanitation workers “hey, if you were going to save on your property tax bill it could lead to a much smaller workforce, how would you feel?” I think people would say ‘no wait a minute, we don’t want to see a reduction.’” Staten Island Advance, [2/10/20]

2018: Malliotakis Supported Measures To Increase Property Taxes On Affluent New Yorkers And Non-Primary Residences

2018: Malliotakis Introduced Legislation To Increase Property Taxes On Affluent Neighborhoods, Cut Property Taxes For Seniors, Cap Property Taxes In New York City At 2%. “Fed up with the city’s efforts to fix inequities in its property tax system, Assemblywoman Nicole Malliotakis, Staten Island/Brooklyn, plans to introduce legislation of her own in Albany to try to get her constituents some relief. [...] Malliotakis’ legislation would: Ensure all Class 1 properties are assessed at full market value by removing the amount property assessments can increase so that the trendiest neighborhoods are not safeguarded from paying the same property tax rate as the rest of the city. Create a property tax cut for seniors 65 years old and older whose household income does not exceed $75,000 and have lived in their home for at least 20 years. Make New York City subject to a 2 percent property tax cap.” Staten Island Advance, [9/25/18]

2018: Malliotakis Suggested New York City Raise Property Taxes On Homes That Are Not Primary Residences. “The city can instead consider a higher rate on homes that are not primary residences similar to cities like Miami do. It’s a common practice that many high-income New Yorkers switch their primary residences to one of the seven states with no income tax such as Florida or Texas to avoid paying the tax man. The rest of us make up the shortfall.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [6/4/18]

Income Tax

March 2021: Malliotakis Said Wealthy New Yorkers Were “Fleeing” To Florida Due To Income Tax, Which She Said Hurt The Middle Class

March 2021: Malliotakis Said New Yorkers Were “Fleeing” To Florida Due To Income Tax.

“[MALLIOTAKIS:] What I have to tell you, though, is, when you look at New York states compared to Florida, the reason why people are fleeing, they have no income tax. They also have million more residents and they're spending about $96 billion annually. Here in New York state, putting forward a $208 billion budget, almost the same amount that California spends, and California has twice as many residents. It's completely unsustainable and inappropriate during a time when New York is recovering and wants people, or I hope they want people, to reopen their businesses, create jobs, and get New Yorkers off unemployment and back to work.” Fox News via Nicole Malliotakis Facebook, [3/15/21] (VIDEO) 1:07

Malliotakis: “As You Drive The Wealthier New Yorkers Out, Obviously The Middle Class, The Working Class Are Left Holding The Bag.” “I had actually sought to freeze taxes and require those states that were exceeding it to not now, you know, have their cake and eat it too, take the money from the federal government and then increase the property taxes, for example, on the city level or the income taxes at the state level. And, because of that provision that was placed, we're now seeing the opposite occur, where the New York state legislature and the governor are saying they want to further increase taxes and, you know, we know that that's already driving people out of the state. [...] Yeah, and as you drive the wealthier New Yorkers out, obviously the middle class, the working class are left holding the bag and the burden gets placed on them.” House Oversight and Reform Subcommittee on the Coronavirus Crisis Holds Hearing on Building a Post-Pandemic Economy via CQ Transcripts, [3/17/21]

February 2021: Malliotakis Supported Freezing Income Taxes And The Property Levy After New York Accepted Federal Pandemic Relief

February 2021: Malliotakis Supported Freezing Income Taxes And The Property Levy After New York Accepted Federal Pandemic Relief. “Last week I wrote to Mayor de Blasio and Governor Cuomo asking them for a commitment to not raise income taxes and the property tax levy if they receive federal aid and use a portion of the funds to stop the toll increases and provide relief to the small businesses they shut down. So far, my calls have gone unanswered, but I'll keep pushing. The worst thing the governor and mayor could do is accept the federal aid and still move forward with their anticipated toll and tax increases. It would not only be double-dipping on the part of the city and state governments, but it would be a slap in the face to our middle-class families who are struggling to get by during this pandemic and can't afford increases to their daily cost of living.” Staten Island Advance, Nicole Malliotakis Op-Ed, [2/23/21]

Gas Tax

April 2021: Malliotakis Opposed New York's Proposed Gas Tax

April 2021: Malliotakis Called New York's Proposed Gas Tax A “Cash Grab” And “Cockamamy.” “After going on an irresponsible spending spree, New York Democrats are now looking to raise NY's gas tax by $.55 to nearly $1 per gallon. This cash grab would make NY's gas tax more than 57% higher than any other state. Plus, increased taxes on heating oil, propane, and natural gas will raise heating costs by 26%. Staten Island Secession From New York City

December 2019: Malliotakis Said She Would Support A Study On Whether Staten Island Could Secede From New York City

December 2019: Malliotakis Called A Study On Whether Staten Island Could Secede From New York City “An Exercise Worth Conducting.” “All but one of the Island’s Democratic and Republican lawmakers say they support at least putting together a task force to study whether the Island could secede from New York City under legislation Councilmen Joe Borelli (R-South Shore) and Steven Matteo (R-Mid Island) unveiled Tuesday. Appendix X – Votes – 117th Congress

Abortion and Women's Health Issues

Malliotakis Voted Against The Women's Health Protection Act. In September 2021, Malliotakis voted against: "Passage of the bill that would statutorily establish that health care providers have a right to provide and patients have a right to receive abortion services, and it would prohibit certain restrictions related to abortion services. The bill would specify that rights established by the bill may not be restricted by certain requirements or limitations related to abortion services, including prohibitions on abortion prior to fetal viability, or after fetal viability if a provider determines that continuation of a pregnancy would pose a risk to a patient's life or health; requirements that patients disclose reasons for seeking an abortion or make medically unnecessary in-person appointments; requirements that providers provide medically inaccurate information or perform specific medical tests or procedures in connection with the provision of abortion services; limitations on providers' ability to prescribe drugs based on good-faith medical judgment, provide services via telemedicine or provide immediate services when a delay would pose a risk to a patient's health; and requirements for facilities and personnel that would not apply to facilities providing medically comparable procedures. It would also prohibit requirements or limitations that are similar to those established by the bill or that impede access to abortion services and expressly or implicitly single out abortion services, providers or facilities. It would specify factors that courts may consider to determine whether a requirement or limitation impedes access to abortion services, including whether it interferes with providers' ability to provide services; poses a risk to patients' health; is likely to delay or deter patients in accessing services or necessitate in-person visits that would not otherwise be required; is likely to result in a decreased availability of services in a state or region; is likely to result in increased costs of providing or obtaining services; or imposes penalties that are not imposed on other health care providers for comparable conduct. It would require a party defending a requirement or limitation to establish that it significantly advances the safety of abortion services or patient health and that such goals cannot be advanced by a less restrictive alternative measure. It would authorize the Justice Department, health care providers and private individuals and entities to bring a civil action in U.S. district court for injunctive relief against any state or government official charged with implementing or enforcing a requirement or limitation challenged as a violation of rights established by the bill. It would authorize district courts to award appropriate equitable relief, including temporary, preliminary or permanent injunctive relief, and to award costs of litigation to a prevailing plaintiff. It would require courts to "liberally construe" provisions of the bill to effectuate its purposes." The bill passed by a vote of 218-211. HR 3655, [Vote #295, 9/24/21; CQ, 9/24/21]

- Passage Of The WHPA Was In Response To A Restrictive Texas Abortion Law. "Passage of the Women's Health Protection Act is a response to a Texas law that essentially bans abortion after six weeks, before most people realize they are pregnant. The U.S. Supreme Court refused to block the law from taking effect, although the decision leaves the door open for future challenges." NPR, [9/24/21]
- Pelosi: "This Ban Necessitates Codifying Roe V. Wade." "In a statement, Pelosi said the Texas statute is 'the most extreme, dangerous abortion ban in half a century, and its purpose is to destroy Roe v. Wade, and even refuses to make exceptions for cases of rape and incest. This ban necessitates codifying Roe v. Wade.'" NPR, [9/24/21]

Malliotakis Voted For A Motion To Recommit The Women's Health Protection Act. In September 2021 Malliotakis voted for: "Letlow, R-La., motion to recommit the bill to the House Energy and Commerce Committee." The motion was rejected by a vote of 210-219. Malliotakis Voted Against Blocking Consideration Of The No Taxpayer Funding For Abortion And Abortion Insurance Full Disclosure Act Of 2021. In June 2021, Malliotakis Voted Against: "Agreeing to the Morelle, D-N.Y., motion to order the previous question (thus ending debate and possibility of amendment)." According to the Congressional Record, Rep. Burgess said, "If we defeat the previous question, I will offer an amendment to the rule to immediately consider H.R. 18, the No Taxpayer Funding for Abortion and Abortion Insurance Full Disclosure Act of 2021.” A vote for the motion was a vote to block consideration of the bill. The motion was agreed to, 218-209. In January 2021, Malliotakis voted against “Adoption of the article of impeachment that would impeach President Donald Trump for incitement of insurrection by ‘inciting violence against the government of the United States.’ Specifically, it would state that Trump ‘repeatedly issued false statements’ asserting that the results of the 2020 presidential election were the product of widespread fraud and should not be accepted or certified. It would state that Trump made statements at a rally on Jan. 6, 2020, that ‘encouraged -- and foreseeably resulted in -- lawless action’ at the Capitol building during the certification of electoral college votes, during which protesters entered the Capitol, attacked law enforcement personnel, ‘menaced’ members of Congress and the vice president, and engaged in other ‘violent, deadly, destructive, and seditious acts.’ It would state that Trump’s conduct on Jan. 6 followed prior efforts ‘to subvert and obstruct’ the certification of 2020 presidential election results, including during a Jan. 2 phone call during which he urged Georgia Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger to ‘find’ enough votes to overturn the state’s presidential election results and ‘threatened Secretary Raffensperger if he failed to do so.’ It would state President Trump’s ‘endangered the security of the United States and its institutions of government’ and that he ‘threatened the integrity of the democratic system, interfered with the peaceful transition of power, and imperiled a coordinate branch of government.’ Pursuant to the rule (H Res 41), upon adoption of the article of impeachment, the House agreed to the resolution (H Res 40) that would appoint and authorize the following impeachment trial managers to conduct the impeachment trial against President Donald Trump in the Senate: Reps. Specifically, it would require the EPA to designate certain PFAS -- perfluorooctanoic acid and its salts, as well as perfluorooctane sulfonic acid and its salts -- as hazardous chemicals under the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act and determine whether all PFAS should be designated as such within five years of enactment. It would require the EPA to issue a national primary drinking water regulation for maximum contaminant levels of certain PFAS, within two years of enactment, and issue health advisories for PFAS not subject to the regulation. It would authorize $500 million annually through fiscal 2026 for an EPA infrastructure assistance grant program for community water systems affected by PFAS to implement water treatment technologies that can remove all detectable amounts of PFAS from drinking water. It would require the EPA to establish effluent limits and pretreatment standards for PFAS in wastewater and authorize $200 million annually through fiscal 2026 for an EPA grant program to help publicly owned treatment works implement such standards. In June 2021, Malliotakis Voted Against: “Passage of the joint resolution that would provide for congressional disapproval of a September 2020 Environmental Protection Agency rule that reversed 2012 and 2016 rules establishing emission standards -- or new source performance standards -- to limit the amount of methane and volatile organic compounds that can be released in the production, processing, transportation and storage of oil and natural gas. Specifically, the 2020 rule rescinded the methane-specific standards and rescinded the applicability of all standards to transportation and storage activities. Malliotakis Voted Against The Paycheck Fairness Act. In April 2021, Malliotakis voted against: “Passage of the bill that would narrow the legal defense an employer may use in a lawsuit alleging pay discrimination on the basis of sex. Specifically, it would require employers to demonstrate that a difference in pay between employees is based on a business-related ‘bona fide factor other than sex, such as education, training, or experience’ as opposed to being based on ‘any factor other than sex.’ It would prohibit employers from retaliating against employees involved in lawsuits under fair labor standards law; prohibit employers from relying on a prospective employee’s wage history for hiring or wage determinations; increase employers’ liability for compensatory or punitive damages related to pay discrimination violations; and provide for automatic inclusion of all affected individuals in class action lawsuits related to pay discrimination. Among other provisions, the bill would authorize a new Labor Department grant program for public and private entities to carry out negotiation skills training programs to address pay disparities. It would establish an annual national award for an employer that made a ‘substantial effort to eliminate pay disparities between men and women.’ It would require the Labor Department to conduct a number of studies on sex-based pay disparities and require the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to collect compensation data disaggregated by employees’ sex, race and national origin. - The Paycheck Fairness Act Aimed “To Eliminate The Gender Pay Gap And Strengthen Workplace Protections For Women.” “The Paycheck Fairness Act, which aims to eliminate the gender pay gap and strengthen workplace protections for women, passed the House of Representatives on Thursday in a 217-210 vote [...] Biden added that a full passage of the Paycheck Fairness Act by Congress would address the wage gap by ‘closing loopholes that have allowed employers to justify gender pay disparities, strengthening provisions for holding employers accountable for systemic pay discrimination, and helping level the playing field for women and people of color by making it easier for workers to challenge pay disparities as a group. Additionally, he said the Paycheck Fairness Act would make it illegal for employers to ask employees about their salary history in the hiring process and promote pay transparency by requiring more employers to report pay data to the government. Right now, at least 18 states already have laws in place that ban employers from asking about salary history.” CNBC, [4/16/21]

It would prohibit employers from requesting or relying on the wage history of a prospective employee for consideration of employment, unless a prospective employee voluntarily discloses such information. Newsweek described the motion: “A group of 18 House Republicans has voted against Georgia Representative Marjorie Taylor Greene's most recent attempt to prematurely adjourn the House—her third such attempt over the last six days. Each of Greene's attempts has been in protest of Democratic legislation and comments introduced in the lower congressional chamber. Each of her attempts has also disrupted congressional work by forcing House members to return to the floor to vote on the matter. ‘I rise today to inform Democrats the radical path you're taking will cause you to lose in 2022,’ Greene said before asking the chamber to adjourn on Wednesday, according to Washington Post congressional reporter Paul Kane.” The motion was rejected by a vote of 182 - 222. - Rep. Greene’s Repeated Attempts To Adjourn The House Infuriated “Democrats And, Increasingly, Members Of Her Own Party.” “One day after Democrats made an unprecedented move to strip Rep. Marjorie

Taylor Greene of her committee assignments, the Georgia Republican countered that she'd now have plenty of time to obstruct her opponents' 'far-leftist' proposals and push her GOP colleagues harder to the right. Greene, an ardent supporter of former president Donald Trump, has kept her promise. Her repeated motions to adjourn legislative debate over the past several weeks have forced members to scramble to the House floor and vote to remain in session, a move that is infuriating Democrats and, increasingly, members of her own party." Malliotakis Voted Against The House Rules Package For The 117th Congress. In January 2021, Malliotakis voted against "Agreeing to the resolution that would establish the rules of the House for the 117th Congress. It would modify rules providing for a motion to recommit a measure to a committee, removing language that allows such motions to include instructions to report a measure back with amendments. It would also make such motions non-debatable. It would authorize the House Budget Committee chair to exempt legislation addressing the economic or public health consequences of the COVID-19 pandemic and legislation addressing the consequences of climate change from certain budgetary requirements, including discretionary spending caps and pay-as-you-go rules. Among other provisions, it would establish a Select Committee on Economic Disparity and Fairness in Growth; reauthorize a number of select committees established in the 116th Congress, including the Select Committee on the Climate Crisis; and codify the Office of Diversity and Inclusion established in the 116th Congress. It would prohibit any House member, officer, or employee from 'knowingly and willfully' disclosing a whistleblower's identity in most circumstances. It would require the House Ethics Commission to report to the House by the end of 2021 any recommended amendments to the House code of conduct related to discipline for knowingly disseminating distorted or manipulated media with the intent to mislead the public. It would bar former members from the House floor if they have been convicted of a crime related to their election to or service in the House. It would also extend procedures authorizing remote voting by proxy for House members and remote committee proceedings during the COVID-19 public health emergency, and it would require the House Administration Committee to identify 'operable and secure' technology that could be used to conduct remote voting." The Biden administration has extended border shutdowns with Mexico and Canada, extended European and other international travel restrictions, and has reimposed mask mandates for fully vaccinated people, contradicting previous CDC guidance and, sadly, choosing to follow the political science, not the science. But, Mr. Speaker, the chaos at our southern border, where illegal immigrants have been apprehended from over 160 countries, undermines any efforts to prevent the spread of COVID-19. That is why, if we defeat the previous question, I will personally offer an amendment to the rule to immediately consider Congresswoman Yvette Herrell's PAUSE Act of 2021. It would provide $25 billion for airports and approximately $17 billion for ports and waterways, including $3.4 billion to modernize land ports of entry and $2.25 billion for water port upgrades, including resilience and electrification projects. It would provide approximately $11 billion for various transportation safety and research programs. It’s a historic investment that the president has compared to the building of the transcontinental railroad and Interstate Highway System. - CNN: Experts Agreed The Infrastructure Spending Was “Sorely Needed To Ensure Safe Travel” And “Efficient Transport Of Goods And Produce.” “Congress passed a $1.2 trillion infrastructure package Friday, approving a signature part of President Joe Biden's economic agenda. It will deliver $550 billion of new federal investments in America's infrastructure over five years, touching everything from bridges and roads to the nation's broadband, water and energy systems. Experts say the money is sorely needed to ensure safe travel, as well as the efficient transport of goods and produce across the country. The nation's infrastructure system earned a C- score from the American Society of Civil Engineers earlier this year.” CNN, [11/5/21]
- Washington Post: Infrastructure Spending Included $16 Billion For “Major Projects That Are Too Large Or Complex For Traditional Funding Programs.” “The $1.2 trillion infrastructure bill adopted late Friday creates a multibillion-dollar fund to spur the type of complicated, ambitious projects that have been stymied by decades of tentative investment and inattention from Washington. Modern-day equivalents of megaprojects like the Hoover Dam can benefit broad swaths of the United States, but infrastructure experts say they have often stagnated. [...] Among the projects that could see a boost: the Gateway rail project, a vast plan to expand capacity for train traffic between New York and New Jersey; and a long-delayed effort to replace the outmoded Brent Spence Bridge connecting Kentucky and Ohio, which is one of the nation’s worst bottlenecks. [...] The infrastructure bill includes about $16 billion for 'major projects that are too large or complex for traditional funding programs,' but that have big economic benefits, according to the White House.”

- Bipartisan Infrastructure Deal Would Provide $110 Billion For Repairs To Highways, Bridges, And Roads. “The bill would provide $110 billion to repair the nation’s aging highways, bridges and roads. [...] By the numbers: The funding is aimed towards building high-speed internet networks, helping low-income families pay for service and digital equity programs. $42.45 billion in grants to states for broadband projects, which can range from network deployment to data collection to help determine areas that lack service. $14.2 billion to provide a $30-a-month voucher to low-income Americans to pay for internet service. It will replace the current $50-a-month Emergency Broadband Benefit program, offering less money monthly, but increasing the number of those eligible. $2.75 billion for digital inclusion and equity projects, such as improving digital literacy or online skills for seniors. $2 billion each for a rural broadband construction program called ReConnect, run by USDA, and to the Tribal Broadband Connectivity Program run by the Commerce Department's National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA). $1 billion to build so-called 'middle mile' infrastructure to connect local providers to larger internet access points. $600 million for private activity bonds to finance broadband deployment projects in rural areas.” Axios, [11/8/21]
- The Infrastructure Bill Included $1.75 Billion To Increase The Accessibility Of Transit Systems. “A $1.75 billion fund in the infrastructure package will aim to guarantee that transit stations are accessible, decades after campaigns by disability rights activists to demand lifts on buses helped to spur passage of the Americans With Disabilities Act. Almost a fifth of transit stations were not fully accessible in 2019, according to the most recent Federal Transit Administration data. [...] The bill also includes language about Amtrak, requiring that a person with disabilities be appointed to the railroad’s board and mandating spending on accessibility, which Duckworth said helped show that accessibility was a national issue and not only an urban concern. About 25 million people in the United States report having a disability that limits their transportation options, and the Labor Department attributes lower rates of employment among people with disabilities, in part, to those obstacles. People with disabilities are almost twice as likely as others to use public transit to get around, according to the Transportation Department.” Washington Post, [11/6/21]

- Bipartisan Infrastructure Deal Would Invest $66 Billion In Amtrak, The Largest Federal Investment In The Service Since Its Founding. “To reduce Amtrak’s maintenance backlog, which has worsened since Superstorm Sandy nine years ago, the bill would provide $66 billion to improve the rail service’s Northeast Corridor (457 miles, 735 km), as well as other routes. It’s less than the $80 billion Biden — who famously rode Amtrak from Delaware to Washington during his time in the Senate — originally asked for, but it would be the largest federal investment in passenger rail service since Amtrak was founded 50 years ago.” Associated Press, [11/6/21]

As an offset, it would increase sequestration percentages above 2 percent in fiscal 2030. It would delay a number of other Medicare payment reductions and policies, including to extend a temporary increase in payment amounts for physicians to provide a 3 percent increase for services furnished in 2022; delay for one year a provision that would phase in payment reductions for clinical diagnostic laboratory tests, prohibiting any reductions for 2021 and 2022 and prohibiting reductions greater than 15 percent for 2023 through 2025; and delay through 2022 the implementation of the Medicare radiation oncology model. Cuomo convened earlier this year, before the virus had reached the United States, to rein in the state’s growing Medicaid program by identifying $2.5 billion in savings. But the timing of the proposals, which were released in mid-March and include about $400 million in cuts to hospitals, was a blow to the morale of many hospitals and medical workers on the front lines of the fight against a ruthless virus that has infected tens of thousands in New York [...] Six lawmakers from Brooklyn wrote a letter to Mr. Cuomo calling the millions of dollars in cuts to four hospitals in their districts ‘cruel, inhumane and unacceptable’ and ‘catastrophic during a pandemic.’” New York Times, [3/30/20]

The provision, inserted into an annual budget bill by Cuomo’s aides, created one of the nation’s most explicit immunity protections for healthcare industry officials, according to legal experts. To do that he’s supporting a bill in the New York State Legislature that would finally guarantee a place for ratepayers at the regulatory table and while AARP is the signature organization for seniors, it’s a fight they’ve taken on for all ratepayers in the state. It’s a modern twist on the old battle cry of the American colonists – ‘no taxation without representation-’ but in this version the AARP has called for representation via a public advocate’s office - independent and insulated from political pressure - that can ensure transparency and accountability whenever the utilities (all seven of them) belly up to the regulatory bar looking for rubber stamp approval for rate hikes.
